A

OF THE

BY JOHN BURKE, ESQ.

Sixth Edition.

LONDON:
HENRY COLBURN, PUBLISHER,
GREAT MARLBOROUGH STREET.

MDCCCXXXIX.

THOMAS C. SAVILL,
PRINTER,
ST. MARTIN'S LANE, CHARING CROSS.

AFTER a long and very laborious revision, amounting to the re-composition of a portion, and the emendation of the whole, the Sixth Edition of "THE PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE" is now offered to the public.

From an humble and unassuming origin, the Work, to judge by the anxiety evinced for its re-appearance, is now become one of importance and general interest—the most flattering condition which the labours of a literary man could attain, and one which, if he did not strain every faculty to preserve it, he would be unworthy to enjoy. That such an effort has been made strenuously, the enlarged size of the Book—the great mass of matter it comprises—the numerous families it includes—embracing the whole privileged and titled orders, with their wide-spreading connexions, generation after generation—will, it is hoped, sufficiently attest;—that such an effort has been made successfully, remains for public opinion to determine.

For details regarding the existing members of each family, application has been made to its chief, and those applications have been responded to with promptitude and courtesy—demanding expressions of thanks and obligation. For the more important, the genealogical, division of his labours, the Author has resorted to the acknowledged authorities which have preceded him, and to the Public Records of the Country: in few instances has he solely relied upon private information.

DE FREYNE.

DE FREYNE, BARON, (Arthur French,) of Artagh, co. Roscommon. His lordship, who for some years represented his native county in parliament, succeeded his father in 1820, and was raised to the peerage of the United Kingdom in May, 1839.

Lineage.

The family of French, originally DE FREIGNE, or DE FRAXINIS, is of great antiquity, and claims descent from Rollo, 1st Duke of Normandy, who m. Gisla, daughter of CHARLES THE SIMPLE, King of France.* It was established in England by one of the companions in arms of the CONQUEROR, and was subsequently distinguished in English history. In 1254, Will de Fraxinis was sent ambassador from HENRY III. to Pope Innocent IV., who was then engaged in a project for the conquest of Naples; and undertook, for the assistance afforded to him by that king, to bestow the crown of that kingdom upon his 2nd son, Edmond.

In 1302, Gerard de Freyne was sent ambassador by EDWARD I. to the Count of Holland and Zeland. Hugh de Frenes m. Alice, dau. and heir of Henry de Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, and claimed in her right that earldom. He was summoned to parliament as a baron, 29 Nov. 1336, 10th EDWARD III. Alice de Lacy was first m. to Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster; and 2ndly, to Eubulo, Lord Strange; the latter was Earl of Lincoln in her right.

SIR HERBERT, or HUMPHREY DE FRAYNE, who accompanied Strongbow in his expedition against Ireland, acquired large possessions in the province of Leinster, and settled at Ballymacuoge, in Wexford. He had two sons, Patrick and Nicholas, whose descendants early gained distinction, and ranked amongst the most powerful of the Anglo-Norman barons. In 1303, Fulk de Freigne accompanied EDWARD I. to Scotland, at the time he conquered that kingdom. William de Freyne is mentioned in Ware's Annals as one of the officers of distinction who fell with Lord Thomas Botteler in a conflict with the M'Geoghans, near Mullingar. In 1332, Fulk de Fraxinis is mentioned in Rymer's Fœdera as one of the good knights to whom the king looked for the maintenance of tranquillity in Ireland. In 1333, Fulk and Oliver de Freigne were summoned as magnates of Ireland, to attend EDWARD III. with arms and men in the war of Scotland, and were present at the battle of Halidown.† In 1342, Fulk de Freigne was rated at ten men at arms, and twenty hobelars, to attend the king in the war with France. In 1344, Fulke de la Freigne was summoned to attend the Earl of Kildare, with Walter de Bermingham, Gerard de Roche, Eustace le Poer, Edward de Burgo, Richard de Tuite, Miles de Courcy, &c., to assist the king in the war with France, all rated at fifteen men at arms, and fifty hobelars. He distinguished himself particularly at the battle of Crescy in 1346.‡ Sir

* His third son, Harlovan, was father of another Harlovan, who left a son,

Fulk, who left a son,

Maximilian, who left a son,

Alexander, who left a son,

Alfrin, who was cotemporary with the CONQUEROR; and from Alfrin, or D'Alfrein, descended De Freigne.

† Hume says, in describing this battle, the Scots fled in confusion, and the English, much less the Irish, gave little quarter in the pursuit.

‡ At this celebrated battle there were 6000 Irish in EDWARD's army. Part of the French army was drawn up behind a bog, relying on their not being closed on. "The Iryshe sprung forward, and boundinge, like deere, across the bog, as they were wont in there owne countrie, fell on the French with knives and axes, and defeated them." These were the first bodies of the armies that came to close fight.—Ancient Record.

CORRECTING SHEET.

John Davis, in his History of Ireland, says, "The Irish at the siege of Calais were commanded by the Earl of Kildare and Folco de Freyne." In 1355, Sir Fulke de Freigne was with the Earls of Ulster and Ormond, security for the Earl of Desmond; and when Lionel, Duke of Clarence, came to Ireland, Ware states that he knighted three of this family as among the most distinguished soldiers of that kingdom.* In 1362, Patrick de la Freigne commanded a large force under the Earl of Ormond in the war with the rebels. In the parliaments of 1379, 1380, and 1382, two chiefs of this family, Sir Patrick and Sir Robert de Freignes, were summoned as peers. In 1383 (6 RICH. II.), Sir John Freigne was fined fifty pounds for refusing to attend parliament when summoned as a peer. In 1387, Patrick de la Freyne was fined twenty pounds for refusing to attend parliament as a peer. Fulk de Freigne, the descendant of Sir Humphrey de Freigne, settled his manor of Ballymacuoge, with remainder to his heirs, with various other remainders, 20 Nov. 1329, (4th EDWARD III.) He was succeeded by his eldest son, Sir Patrick, who died without issue male, leaving two daus.; the eldest, Ellen, with whom the moiety of the said manor went out of the family to her husband, Richard le Camelford. The other estates went by another settlement to his 2nd son, Oliver de Freyne, who was seneschal of Kilkenny in 1336, and was father of

SIR ROBERT FREYNE, who d. leaving three sons. The third of whom,

JAMES FREYNCH, was chosen to represent Wexford† in the parliament of Westminster, 1376. He had a son,

PATRICK FRENCH, who was sent as a judge into Connaught. He m. Mary, dau. of John D'Athi, a family of great antiquity long settled in that province, and was ancestor of

JOHN FRENCH, Esq. of Galway, b. in 1489 (4 HEN. VII.), a man of great wealth and unbounded liberality. He was a great benefactor of the church. It is stated in the annals of Galway, that he built at his own expense the north aisle of St. Nicholas church, in that town, from the north pinnacle of the chapel of the Holy Sacrament, and also the great chapel on the south side of St. Francis's Abbey, with the building which stands on the river side, which has ever since borne his name, and is called "John French's Chamber." In this church the French family, with two others, are alone entitled to the right of burial. His son and successor,

PETER FRENCH, Esq., mayor of Galway in 1576 (18 ELIZ.), m. Mary, sister of William Martin, Esq., and had five sons, Peter, (who had a son, John;) FRANCIS, of whom presently; Robert, of Galway; Nicholas; and Jasper.†

† Wexford was frequently represented by members of this family until 1642, when P. French was expelled from his seat in the House of Commons for being in arms with the rebels. Nicholas French, the "turbulent Bishop of Ferns," was descended from a branch of this family.

‡ In 1585, Robuck French was member for Galway, a town, stated in the letter of Henry Cromwell, which is quoted in Hardiman's History of Galway, to be at that period superior to any other town within the British dominions, except London, for wealth and commerce. In 1539, Arthur French Fitz Geffery was mayor of Galway; in 1563, Dominick French; in 1576, Peter French; in 1579, Martin French; in 1582, Robuck French; in 1583, Nicholas French; in 1592, Valentine French; in 1596, Oliver French; in 1604, Manus French Fitz John; in 1606, Edward French Fitz Robert; in 1615, Peter French Fitz Valentine was elected mayor, but refusing to take the oaths, was fined £100; in 1623, Manus French; in 1633, Patrick French Fitz George; and in 1656, Sir Oliver French.

In 1610, Geffery and Patrick French were sent over as a deputation to KING JAMES I. on the part of the corporation of Galway, who was much gratified by their deportment, and renewed the corporation charter, and granted new privileges to the town.

Peter French, whose will, dated 24 Sept. 1584, was proved in Dublin, was interred at Galway, and a sum of £5000 was expended on his monument, which adorned the church there, until destroyed in CROMWELL's time, by Colonel Stubber, then governor of the town. This monument was executed in Italy, and is described in the annals of Galway to have been of "rayre sculpture and guilded with golde." His son,

FRANCIS FRENCH, Esq. of Gortrassy and Sessueman Castle, in the co. of Sligo, m. Una O'Connor, of the ancient race of O'Connor Sligo; and dying 20 Oct. 1624, left a son, PEERAGES CLAIMED.

Under this article should have been inserted the claim of the REV. ERIC RUDD, of Thorne, near Doncaster, to the Scottish BARONY of DUFFUS, as nephew and heir general of JAMES, late lord. Sir Benjamin Dunbar, Bart., who has assumed the title as Lord Duffus, asserts his right as heir male. The patent of creation, which would determine the point, is not to be found. The late Lord Duffus, who d. unm., had three sisters; the eldest was mother of the Rev. Eric Rudd, the claimant; the second married the Hon. George Reay, of Skibo; and the third was grandmother of the present Earl of Caithness.

INTRODUCTION.

THE PEERAGE.

THE NOBILITY OF ENGLAND,* like the nobles of other countries, are a privileged order; but, personally, their immunities are very unimportant, and minister much more to the pomp than the power of the possessor. In their legislative capacity, the peers of England form one of the estates of the realm—that immediately between the crown and the people; in their judicial, they constitute its highest tribunal and court of dernier appeal: their functions—legislative and judicial—are inherent and exercised without responsibility. The nobility of England bear the ensign of dominion in the minor crown; but it is merely the ensign—they wield no minor sceptre. They are clothed in the purple and ermine of royalty, but they are invested with no regal jurisdiction, and they enjoy no sovereign seigniorship. In no one instance can the proudest peer transgress with impunity the laws of the land; in no one instance can the haughtiest lord invade the rights of the humblest commoner; and in no one instance (in matters of moment) can a noble exercise authority which a commoner dare not assume. Thus, then, the aristocracy of the British Empire, like its other inimitable institutions, exists but as a link in the great chain which connects the community at large,—a link more polished perhaps than any of the other—hardly more powerful.

The first order of nobility introduced after the Norman Conquest was that of

Baron by Tenure,†

A dignity attached to the possession of certain lands held, according to the feudal system, directly under the crown, and conditionally upon the performance of some honorary services to the king; such as attending him in the field and the cabinet, and furnishing a stipulated quota of knights, or men-at-arms; which quota was regulated by the territorial possessions of the baron, those possessions being divided

* Origin of hereditary nobility.—"We must not," says Francis Hotoman, the celebrated civilian, in his "Franca Gallia," written in 1574, "omit making mention of the cunning device made use of by Hugh Capet for establishing himself in his new dominions, (of King of France, anno 987.) For whereas all the magistracies and honours of the kingdom, such as Dukedoms, Earldoms, &c., had been hitherto, from ancient times, conferred upon select and deserving persons in the general conventions of the people, and were held only during good behaviour, whereof (as the lawyers express it) they were but beneficiaries, Hugh Capet, in order to secure to himself the affections of the great men, was the first that made those honours perpetual which were formerly but temporary, and ordained, that such as obtained them should have an hereditary right in them, and might leave them to their children. Of this, see Franciscus Conanus, the Civilian, Comment. i. chap. 9." When the kings of France conferred a dignity, they erected an estate into a MARQUISATE, a COMTE, or a BARONY, and then granted it to the person whom they meant to ennoble. By the old law of France, the acquisition of a fief de dignité ennobled the possessor of it, and gave him a right to the title of honour annexed to such fief.

† Lord Coke has observed, that in ancient records the Barony included all the nobility of England; because, regularly, all noblemen were Barons, though they had a higher dignity; and the great council of the nobility, when there were besides Earls and Barons, Dukes and Marquesses, were all comprehended under the name of the "Council de Baronage."

into allotments, for each of which he was required to provide a knight, armed cap-a-pie, whenever the sovereign commanded his presence in the field; hence, according to the number of warriors the feudal lord provided, he was said to possess so many knights' fees. But in the reign of King JOHN, so large a body of these lords of the soil were found to have alienated their grants, and so many to have become impoverished in consequence, that it was found necessary to enact a law, declaring such personages alone as retained their original tenures unspoiled qualified to retain the title of BARON, and degrading the less prudent to the rank of tenants in chief, or knights. It was subsequently discovered, however, that the title of BARON could not thus easily be taken away, and it was then arranged that the opulent lords should be styled BARONES MAJORES,—the poor ones, BARONES MINORES; and from that period until the reign of HENRY the Third,* when the privilege was entirely withdrawn from territorial lords, the Barones Majores alone appear to have assisted in the legislative councils of the nation. Barons by tenure have, however, long ceased to exist; and more than a century and a half ago (A.D. 1669), in the case of the Fitzwalter peerage, when Benjamin Mildmay was restored to that barony in opposition to Robert Cheeke, the lord of the soil, whence the dignity was alleged to have sprung, the House of Lords declared, “that baronies by tenure having been discontinued for many ages, were not then in being, and so not fit to be revived, or to admit any pretence of right of succession.” And recently, in 1805, the house resolved, in the case of the Barony de Ros, claimed by the Duke of Rutland, as feudal lord, from the possession of Belvoir Castle, said to have been the fountain of that dignity, “that his grace was not entitled to the barony;” and it was subsequently confirmed to one of the co-heirs, Lady Henry Fitzgerald.† There is, however, one earldom extant, that of Arundel, which the ducal house of Norfolk enjoys by the feudal tenure of Arundel Castle; but that, like other exceptions, only establishes the rule, as the honour endures solely by special act of parliament, passed in the third year of King CHARLES the First. To Barons by Tenure succeeded

Barons by Writ,

Or persons elevated to the rank of nobility by being summoned to attend the king in council, or parliament; which writs were of that description called brevia clausa, from being closed with wax, and impressed with the great seal of England. The first of these summonses upon record appears to have been tested on the 24th of December, in the 49th year of HENRY the Third; from which period no similar writ seems to have issued until the 22nd year of EDWARD the First, when about sixty persons were summoned to attend the king, “wheresoever he might be, to advise on the affairs of the kingdom;” but it has been questioned whether that summons constituted a peer of parliament.

To establish an hereditary Barony by Writ it was requisite, Sir William Blackstone was of opinion, that two writs of summons should have issued, and a sitting in two parliaments have taken place; but the great law-luminary seems upon this occasion to have been under misapprehension; for in the case of the Barony of Clifton there was but one writ and one sitting, and that barony was allowed. Baronies by Writ are heritable by heirs male or female; but in the event of the demise of the baron without the former, and with more than one heiress, the barony then devolving

* Matthew Paris states, that there were two hundred and fifty baronies in the time of HENRY the Third; but there were not so many barons, for several feudal lords held a plurality of baronies. In this reign, the prerogative of the crown regarding barons was settled by an act of parliament, passed in consequence of the quarrel between the king and Simon de Montfort; and thenceforward no nobleman could sit in parliament without a writ of summons. But there was this material difference between the greater and the lesser barons;—these were summoned at the pleasure of the crown; those, as a matter of right.

† Her ladyship was only youngest co-heir of one moiety of the Barony, the entire representation of the elder co-heir being vested in Sir Henry Hunloke, baronet.

conjointly upon the heiresses, it falls into abeyance* amongst them, and so continues until all but one of the daughters, or the sole heir of one of the daughters, survives. The crown can, however, at any time especially interfere, and terminate the abeyance in favour of any of the co-heirs, but it cannot alienate the barony from the representatives of the first baron: it is imperative that it be conferred upon one of those. The mode of terminating an abeyance in favour of a commoner is, by summoning the individual by the title of the barony which had been in abeyance. The course observed towards a peer of a higher dignity is, the issue of letters patent by the crown in confirmation of the barony; and a similar course, that of patent, is adopted towards heiresses.

The mode of creating peers by writ of summons has been, however, a long time discontinued, and the only writs now issued are those to the eldest sons of Dukes, Marquesses, and Earls, in their fathers' baronies; but such writs do not create heritable peerages. If, however, a writ of summons issue to the eldest son of a peer, as a baron, under a misapprehension that the barony had been vested in his father, then the writ is deemed a new creation, and the dignity is heritable as a barony by writ. This was established in 1736, by the decision regarding the Barony of Strange, in which James Stanley had been summoned in 1628, under the supposition that the barony had belonged to his father, William, sixth Earl of Derby; and again, in the similar case of the Barony of Clifford. The first writ to an elder son is stated to have issued in the twenty-second year of King EDWARD the Fourth, when Thomas Fitz-Alan was summoned to parliament (in his father's, the Earl Arundel's barony) as Baron Maltravers. As Barons by Tenure gave place to Barons by Writ, so the latter have been superseded by

Barons by Letters Patent,

The first instance of which occurred in the reign of the second RICHARD, when John Beauchamp, of Holt, was elevated to the peerage as Baron Beauchamp, of Kidderminster, by letters patent, dated the 10th of October, 1387. Lord Beauchamp never took his seat, however, in parliament, as he died in the same year, and was succeeded by his son, with whom the dignity expired in 1420. In olden time, it was deemed necessary to invest with robes the newly created baron in open parliament; and so lately as the era of King JAMES the First, that monarch in person solemnly inducted the barons, created by patent in the thirteenth year of his reign, by enrobing each peer in scarlet, with a hood furred with minerver: but in the same year it was determined to discontinue those ceremonies in future, the legal advisers of the crown having declared that the delivery of the letters patent constituted a sufficient creation; and in the patents of more modern times the ceremony of public investiture is expressly dispensed with.

Viscount.

The next grade in the British Peerage is that of Vice-Comes, or VISCOUNT, which title formerly applied to the sheriff of a county, but was not used as a designation of

* ABEYANCE.—When this inheritance (a barony falling amongst co-heiresses) is in the dormant state, it is said to be in abeyance; not in the ordinary sense of the term in which it is applied to an estate in fee simple, or freehold in suspense, floating, fixing nowhere, and vesting in no one; but it simply denotes that the title to a barony which has descended upon and is vested in co-heirs remains in them in an active and dormant state, incapable of being asserted or being enjoyed. It falls into abeyance because, in point of right, no one co-heir can sustain a claim to it, and because all the co-heirs together, though they constitute the complete heir to the ancestor, cannot claim it with effect, and therefore cannot claim it at all.—Cruise upon Dignities.

† There is an instance, in the reign of King CHARLES the First, of the son and heir of a baron who possessed two baronies having been summoned to parliament in one of them. The Hon. Conyers Darcy, son of Conyers, Baron of Darcy and Conyers (who was subsequently created Earl of Holderness), was summoned to parliament in his father's Barony of Conyers in 1680.

nobility before the reign of HENRY the Sixth, when that monarch created John, Baron Beaumont, K.G., by letters patent, dated 12th February, 1440, Viscount Beaumont, a dignity which expired with his lordship's son and successor in 1507. A viscounty is always created by patent, and it descends according to the specified limitation. The honour was originally conferred as an advancement to barons, but afterwards created frequently with the barony; and in modern times it has been conferred without a barony, as in the instance of Viscount Leinster, Viscount Sidmouth, Viscount Goderich, &c.

The style of a Viscount is "Right Honourable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and well beloved Cousin."

Earl.*

The dignity of Earl, which existed in England before the Conquest, was, according to Mr. Cruise, originally annexed to a particular tract of land; and there were three descriptions of Earldoms.

"The first was where the dignity was annexed to the seisin and possession of an entire county, with jura regalia; in which case the county became palatine, and the person created Earl thereof acquired regal jurisdiction and royal seignior. By reason of the royal jurisdiction the Earl Palatine had all the high courts and offices of justice which the king had, with a civil and criminal jurisdiction; and by reason of his royal seignior he had all the royal services and all the royal estreats which the king had; so that, in fact, a county palatine was in every respect a feudal kingdom of itself, but held of a superior lord."†

The second description of Earldom was that which derived the title only from a county, but had no territorial possession annexed to it within the county, nor any of the privileges of an Earl Palatine, and whose revenue arose from participating in the profits derivable from the pleas of the county court.

The third kind of Earldom was constituted by the crown's granting a considerable tract of land, to be held "per servitium unius comitatus."

For several centuries, Earldoms have been created by letters patent, and the descent of the honour regulated accordingly. The ancient ceremony of investiture, as in other dignities, has been discontinued; and the custom of deriving the title from some county or town has been extended, in consequence of the number of earls, to villages, private estates, and family surnames.

The style of an earl is, "Right Honourable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and right well beloved Cousin."‡

He bears also, upon some occasions, the title of "Puissant Prince."

Marquess.

A MARQUESS, marchio, is the next degree of nobility. "His office (says Sir William Blackstone) formerly was (for dignity and duty were never separated by our ancestors) to guard the frontiers and limits of the kingdom, which were called the marches, from the Teutonic word marche, a limit; as in particular were the marches of Wales and Scotland, while each continued to be an enemy's country. The persons who had commanded there were called Lords Marches, or Marquesses, whose authority was abolished by statute, 27th HENRY VIII., though the title had long before been made a mere ensign of honour."

* SPELMAN was of opinion that the title of Earl was derived from the Germans; and having been adopted from them by the French, was rendered feudal and hereditary by Hugh Capet.

† Cruise on Dignities.

‡ This mode of address is as ancient as HENRY the Fourth, by whom it was first adopted. That prince being either by his wife, his mother, or his sisters, actually related or allied to every earl in the kingdom, artfully and constantly acknowledged that connexion in all his letters and other public acts; from whence the usage has descended to his successors, though the reason has long ago failed.
—Blackstone.

The first English Marquessate was conferred by King RICHARD II., in 1386, upon Robert de Vere, who was created Marquess of Dublin, and in the next year, Duke of Ireland. His grace was, however, banished and attainted in 1388, when his honours became forfeited. And the second creation of the same dignity occurs in the same reign, when John Beaufort, Earl of Somerset, (eldest legitimated natural son of John of Gaunt,) was created, 29th September, 1397, Marquess of Dorset. From that period the dignity of Marquess appears to have remained dormant until the reign of EDWARD VI., but thenceforward it became a regular and common grade of nobility.

A Marquessate is invariably created by letters patent, and the descent regulated accordingly.

The style of a Marquess is "Most Honourable," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and entirely beloved Cousin."

He bears also the title, upon some occasions, of "Puissant Prince."

Duke.

The Dukedom,* the most elevated dignity in the English peerage, was first introduced by King EDWARD III., who created his eldest son, Edward the Black Prince, in 1337, (then Earl of Chester,) Duke of Cornwall, and subsequently Prince of Wales, when the Dukedom merged in the principality, and has ever since been vested in the heir apparent to the crown, who, at his birth, becomes Duke of Cornwall. The second Dukedom was conferred on the 6th March, 1351, upon Henry Plantagenet, (son and heir of the Earl of Derby,) under the title of Duke of Lancaster, which dignity expired at his grace's decease, in 1360, without male issue, but was re-conferred, in 1362, upon John of Guant, who had espoused the duke's second daughter, and eventually sole heiress, the Lady Blanch Plantagenet. In the reign of ELIZABETH, anno 1572, the whole order became utterly extinct; but it was revived about fifty years afterwards by her successor, in the person of George Villiers, Duke of Buckingham.

A Duke is styled "His Grace," and the "Most Noble," and he is officially addressed by the Crown, "Our right trusty and right entirely beloved Cousin and Councillor."

His grace is likewise entitled, upon some occasions, "Puissant Prince."

SPIRITUAL PEERS.

Archbishops.

Archbishops have the ducal title of "Grace," and take precedence of all dukes next to those of royal blood. The Archbishop of Canterbury ranks as first peer of the realm, and the Archbishop of York as third, coming immediately after the lord

* DUKEDOM.—In France, before the Revolution, the title of Duke was very superior to the other dignities, and the PEERAGE was composed of Dukes only; but the rest of the nobility were properly jealous of this pre-eminence, and opposed with spirit every encroachment of the peers. In a procession of the order of the Holy Ghost several Ducs et Pairs endeavoured to prevent M. de Gamache from walking at the side of the last duke. The master of the ceremonies hastened to inform the king of the dispute, who decided that the dukes were wrong if they pretended that a gentleman should not walk aside of them. So, after the procession, the dukes said they had never formed such a pretension and that it was a misunderstanding.

chancellor. His grace of Canterbury styles himself, "by divine providence;" while the Archbishop of York and the bishops adopt the term "permission" instead of "providence."

Bishops.

By an act of parliament passed in the thirty-first year of HENRY VIII., it was settled that bishops take precedence of all barons, and immediately after viscounts, the Bishops of London, Durham, and Winchester preceding their Right Reverend brethren.

Bishops are styled "Lords," and "Right Reverend Fathers in God."

Note.—In the time of the Saxons, the bishops, abbots, and other ecclesiastical persons, held their lands free from all secular services, except the trinoda necessitas,—namely, expeditio, pontium et arcuum constructio, et refectio. But soon after the establishment of the Normans, they were charged with the same obligations of military service as laymen. In consequence of this change, the bishops became tenants in capite per baroniam, and were, of course, bound to attend the curia regis, which at that time was considered as a burthensome office. It is therefore probable that the bishops did not willingly acquiesce in this alteration: and when the immunities of the church were so much restrained by the constitutions of Clarendon, in 10th HENRY the Second, it was expressly declared, that the archbishops and bishops should hold their lands as baronies, and attend the king's court.

The bishops were always exempt from doing homage for their baronies, but were bound to take the oath of fealty.

The great abbots were also bound to attend parliament, if summoned, when they held their land per baroniam. Cruise upon Dignities.

OFFICIAL COSTUME OF THE PEERAGE.

Duke.

The robes worn by a Duke at a coronation consist of a mantle and surcoat of common velvet, lined with white taffeta, the mantle doubled from the neck to the elbow with ermine, having four rows of spots on each shoulder.

His grace's parliamentary robes are of fine scarlet cloth, lined with taffeta, doubled with four guards of ermine at equal distances, with gold lace surmounting each guard, and tied up to the left shoulder by a white ribbon; his cap is of crimson velvet, lined with ermine, having a gold tassal on each top; and his coronet, which is of gold, is set with strawberry-leaves, also of gold.

Marquess.

The robes worn by a Marquess at a coronation are of crimson velvet, lined with white taffeta, having four guards of ermine on the right side and three on the left, placed at equal distances, each guard surmounted with gold lace; the robe is tied up to the left shoulder by a white ribbon.

His lordship's cap is of crimson velvet, lined with ermine, having a gold tassal at top.

Earl.

The coronation robes of an Earl are similar to those of a duke and marquess, with the exception that there are but three guards of ermine and gold lace.

His lordship's cap is the same as that of a marquess.

His coronet has pearls raised upon points, with strawberry-leaves low between them.

* * * The Lord-Treasurer Cecil, Earl of Salisbury, was the first peer of the degree of Earl who wore a coronet.

Viscount.

The robes of a Viscount differ from those of an earl in having two rows of plain white fur only.

His lordship's cap is the same as that of an earl, and the golden circle of his coronet is surmounted by fourteen pearls.

Baron.

The robes of a Baron have two guards only of white fur, with as many rows of gold lace; in all other respects they correspond with the robes of the other peers.

The coronet was granted to Barons by King CHARLES II. They wore previously but a plain circle of gold. The coronet of a Baron has four pearls set at equal distances upon the circle.

PRIVILEGES OF THE PEERAGE.

PEERS are free from all arrest for debt, and cannot be outlawed in any civil action, nor can any attachment lie against their person.

They are exempt from attending courts-leet, or sheriff's turns; or, in case of riot, the posse-committatus.

When arraigned for any criminal offence, it must be before their peers, who return a verdict, not upon oath, but upon honour.

Peers are tried in courts erected specifically for the purpose, in the centre of Westminster Hall, at the expense of the crown, which courts are pulled down as soon as the investigation terminates.

By the law denominated scandalum magnatum, any man convicted of spreading a scandalous report regarding a peer of the realm, no matter whether true or false, is subject to an arbitrary fine, and to remain in prison until the same be discharged.

Peers have the privilege of sitting covered in courts of justice during their proceedings.

Peers of parliament have the privilege of franking letters; but it is as members of parliament, not as peers.

Peers have the privilege of voting in parliament by proxy.

The Barons of Kingsale enjoy, exclusively, the hereditary privilege of being covered in the Royal presence.

A Peer cannot lose his nobility but by death or attainder; though there was an instance, in the reign of EDWARD the Fourth, of the degradation of George Nevill, Duke of Bedford, by act of parliament, on account of his poverty, which rendered him unable to support his dignity. But this is a singular instance, which serves at the same time, by having happened, to shew the power of parliament, and by having happened but once, to shew how tender the parliament hath been in exerting so high a power. It hath been said, indeed, that if a Baron wastes his estate, so that he is not able to support the degree, the KING may degrade him; but it is expressly held by authorities, that a peer cannot be degraded but by act of parliament.—Blackstone.

Note.—Some peers of Ireland, created since the Union, have taken their titles from places in England; but by a sort of fiction, the name of an English county is never introduced into the patent. Lord Rendlesham is of Rendlesham, without any county. Lord Macdonald is of Slate, in the county of Antrim, whereas Slate is in the Hebrides. Lord Newborough is "of Ireland."

THE BARONETAGE.

Of England.

THE order of Baronet, instituted by King JAMES the First, 1611, is said to have been suggested by the Barones Minores, (minor barons,) but the title is of ancient standing both in England and France, and was used in the former for Banneret, when it was meant to designate a knight-banneret, who was a parliamentary baron, as in the statute of RICHARD the Second, by which every archbishop, &c., baron, baronet, knight of a shire, &c. &c., are commanded, under penalty of amerciamment, or other punishment, according to ancient usage, to appear in parliament; and in the reign of HENRY the Sixth, we find that a juror challenged himself, because his ancestors had been "baronets, or seigneurs des parliaments." As knighthood, which had existed from the earliest period, and long antecedently to nobility, always implied the performance of certain specific services, it was deemed advisable, upon the institution of this hereditary equestrian order, to attach to it some particular conditions: and a rebellion at that period happening to rage in the northern province of Ireland, called Ulster, each newly-created baronet was obliged to pay into the exchequer a sum of money adequate to the maintenance in Ireland of thirty soldiers for three years, at eight-pence per day, which, with the official fees, amounted to nearly twelve hundred pounds. It was required, too, that the candidate for the dignity should be a gentleman by birth, and in the possession of an unencumbered estate of one thousand pounds per annum. The number of baronets was first confined to two hundred, but the order is now only limited by the discretion of the crown.

Baronets take precedence of all knights, except those of the Garter, knights who are of the privy-council, and bannerets created under the royal banner displayed in open war, the king himself being present. Baronets have the privilege to bear in a canton of their coat-of-arms, or in a whole escutcheon, the arms of Ulster; viz., "in a field, argent, a sinister hand, gules." The word "Sir" is prefixed to the Christian name of a baronet, as it is used before that of a knight, and his wife is entitled, "Lady," "Madam," or "Dame," "according (as it is stated in the patent of creation) to the custom of speaking."

Baronets and the heirs male of their bodies have place in the armies of the king near about the royal standard, for the defence of the same.

Baronets and their male heirs are entitled, at their obsequies, to two assistants of the body to support the pall, a chief mourner, and four assistants to him, being the medium funereal honours between those of a baron and a knight.

The eldest son of a baronet on coming of age enjoyed the right of claiming the honour of knighthood from the king, until GEORGE the Fourth, by letters patent, dated 19th December, 1827, annulled the privilege. His majesty could not, we presume, though, revoke an especial clause in the patents already granted; the regulation must therefore have been prospective solely.

Of Ireland.

The Baronetcy of Ireland followed that of England, and was instituted by King James I. for the same avowed purpose—the plantation of the Province of Ulster. The dignity was first conferred by letters patent, dated 30th September, 1619, upon Sir Dominick Sarsfield, lord-chief-justice of the court of King's Bench; and in the next month (14th October), Sir Francis Blundell, knight, was advanced to the same honour.

The Baronetage of Ireland was placed upon an exactly similar footing, regarding immunities, arms, &c., as the order instituted for England.

Of Nova Scotia, or Scotland.

The order of Baronets* of Nova Scotia (or Scotland) was also projected by King JAMES I., for the purpose of encouraging the plantation of the province of Nova Scotia, in America, the earliest settlement made by the Scots beyond the Atlantic; but that monarch deceasing, his Majesty's son and successor, King CHARLES I., soon after his accession, put the project into execution, and instituted the order by creating the Hon. Robert Gordon, of Gordonstone, son of the Earl of Sutherland, a Baronet of Nova Scotia, by patent, dated 22nd of May, 1625, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, a limitation invariably granted to all Nova Scotia Baronets previous to the Restoration. In addition to the honour and privileges of the order, each baronet, prior to the surrender of Nova Scotia to the French, had a grant of eighteen square miles of land in that province, three miles the one way, extending along the sea-shore or navigable rivers, and six miles within land the other way. These grants were erected into baronies, with most ample privileges, and were destined to the patentees, their heirs and assignees; and infestment, taken on the Castle Hill of Edinburgh, was declared in each patent to be sufficient to complete the transfer of the property. In 1629, King CHARLES granted to the Baronets of Nova Scotia the privilege of wearing a ribbon and badge, which last was presented by his Majesty in person to each gentleman of the order. The grant runs thus: "That they, and every of them, and their heirs male, shall wear and carry about their necks, in all time coming, an orange taunie silk ribbon, whereon shall be pendant, in a scutcheon, argent, a saltire, azure; thereon an inescutcheon of the arms of Scotland, with an imperial crown above the scutcheon, and incircled with the motto, 'Fax mentis honestæ Gloria.'"

Note.—Since the Legislative Unions between England and Scotland, and Great Britain and Ireland, the separate Orders of Baronets have been superseded by one general Institution of BARONETS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM.

* The only instance of this dignity having been conferred upon a female occurs in that of Dame Mary Bolles, of Ashurton, who, in 1635, was elevated to the Baronetcy of Scotland, with remainder to her heirs whatsoever.

The pretensions of this monarch to the throne were opposed by his cousin, the Empress Matilda, and the contest finally terminated in a compromise, by which Stephen was to sway the sceptre during his life, upon condition of its devolving upon HENRY PLANTAGENET, the son of the Empress, at his decease. In this unhappy reign the first blood flowed between the houses of York and Lancaster, and the contest endured for the ensuing thirty years; it ceased at length, after immolating at the shrines of the conflicting factions four score princes of the blood royal at least, with almost the whole body of the ancient nobility of England.

King Henry the Sixth, who was deposed after the second battle of St. Albans, in 1461, died in the Tower of London, a few days after the battle of Tewkesbury, in 1471, by (supposed) violence. GEORGE THE FOURTH. His Majesty had previously exercised the royal authority as REGENT. He was born 12th August, 1762, and married 8th April, 1795, to his cousin, Her Serene Highness Princess Caroline-Amelia-Elizabeth, second daughter of Charles-William-Ferdinand, Duke of Brunswick-Wolfenbuttel, by whom (who died 7th August, 1821) he had an only daughter

PRINCESS CHARLOTTE-AUGUSTA OF WALES, b. 7 March, 1796; m. 2 May, 1816, to PRINCE LEOPOLD-GEORGE-FREDERICK, third son of Francis-Anthony-Frederick, late reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg; and d. in childbed, 6th Nov. 1817.

His Majesty died 26th June, 1830, and was succeeded by his brother, WILLIAM HENRY, Duke of Clarence, as

This monarch when a youth entered the Royal Navy, and attained the rank of Post Captain, in 1786. He was then Prince WILLIAM-HENRY, but in 1789, (20th May,) he was created DUKE of CLARENCE and ST. ANDREWS, in the Peerage of Great Britain, and EARL of MUNSTER in that of Ireland. Having passed through the degrees Rear Admiral and Admiral, His Royal Highness succeeded Sir Peter Parker, as Admiral of the Fleet, in 1811, and at one time was Lord High Admiral of England. He died on the 20th June, 1837, and having no legitimate issue, the crown devolved upon his niece, the Princess ALEXANDRINA VICTORIA, who ascended the throne as QUEEN VICTORIA the FIRST.

KINGS OF SCOTLAND.

The remote History of Scotland, like that of other countries boasting antiquity, is enveloped in darkness. Whatever light may be thrown upon its early transactions, from the absence of anything like familiar or interesting detail, affords but little information to the general reader, and is only of value to the microscopic eye of the laborious antiquary. We shall therefore commence our sketch of its ROYAL LINE with the accession of KENNETH THE SECOND, from whose reign the Scottish History first assumes an intelligible form.

KENNETH THE SECOND, surnamed Mac Alpine, having united the Scots and Picts under one sceptre, became FIRST KING OF ALL SCOTLAND. He died in 858, and was succeeded by his brother,

DONALD, who was succeeded, after an inglorious reign of four years, by his nephew,

CONSTANTINE THE SECOND, (son of KENNETH Mac Alpine.) In this monarch's reign the Danes invaded Scotland, and the King giving the barbarians battle, fell into their hands, and was beheaded in 878, leaving no issue. He was succeeded by his brother,

ETHUS, surnamed the Swift-footed. The rule of this Prince was brief and turbulent. A party, headed by GRIG, or GREGORY, rendering an appeal to the sword indispensable, Ethus was wounded in battle, and dying soon afterwards, the crown was usurped by his rival,

GREGORY, surnamed the Great. This monarch, who was contemporary with ALFRED, King of England, upon ascending the throne, selected for his colleague, EOCHA, King of Strathclyde, grandson of KENNETH Mac Alpine, but both were compelled to abdicate within three years, when

DONALD THE FOURTH assumed the reins of government; and after a prosperous rule of eleven years was succeeded by the son of ETHUS,

CONSTANTINE THE THIRD, who reigned forty years, and then retiring to a monastery, resigned the sceptre to the son of DONALD the Fourth,

MALCOLM THE FIRST, who was succeeded by

KENNETH THE THIRD, who was killed in 994, when the throne was usurped by

CONSTANTINE THE FOURTH, (great-grandson of ETHUS, the Swift-footed,) who died the following year, and was succeeded by his son,

KENNETH THE FOURTH, whose grandson,

BANCHO, Thane of Lochabyr, had a son,

FLEANCE, who espoused Mary, dau. of Griffydh ap Llewelyn, Prince of North Wales, and left a son,

WALTER, who returning to Scotland after the restoration of MALCOLM CEAN-MOHR, was created LORD-HIGH-STEWARD, from which office his HOUSE assumed the surname of STUART. The great-grandson of the LORD STEWARD, WALTER, had issue,

1 ALEXANDER, an eminent warrior, of whose great-grandsons

ROBERT ascended the THRONE as ROBERT THE SECOND, and was founder of the STUART DYNASTY.

EUPHAME, who m. Sir Patrick Graham, patriarch of the eminent families of MENTEITH, GRAHAM of Gartmore, and GRAHAM of Netherby and Esk.

2 ROBERT, (Sir) founder of the HOUSE OF LENNOX.

The right of KENNETH the Fourth being contested by Malcolm, son of KENNETH the Third, he was deposed in 1003, and his competitor ascended the throne, as

MALCOLM THE SECOND. This monarch had two daughters,

BEATRIX, m. to GRIMUS, governor of the Scots Island, and left a son,

DUNCAN, successor to his grandfather.

DORCHA, m. to Finley, Thane of Angus, and left a son,

MACBETH, of whom hereafter.

The King was murdered in 1033, and was succeeded by his grandson,

DUNCAN THE FIRST, who had two sons,

MALCOLM.

DONALD.

This unfortunate Prince was slain by his cousin, who ascended the throne, as

MACBETH. This Prince espoused the Lady GRUOCH, daughter of KENNETH the Fourth, the celebrated LADY MACBETH, who, with her husband, has afforded materials to the BARD OF AVON for one of his most splendid works.) He had a son, LAHAULAN, who was crowned king after his father's defeat, but was slain within a few months by KING MALCOLM.

Macbeth was eventually killed by MACDUFF, Thane of Fife, in 1057, and the rightful heir ascended the throne, as

MALCOLM THE THIRD, surnamed Cean-Mohr,* who married MARGARET, sister of EDGAR ATHELING, and had three sons,

EDGAR,
ALEXANDER, } successively kings.
DAVID,

Matilda, m. to HENRY I., of England.

Malcolm fell in battle, when besieging Alnwick Castle, 13th November, 1098, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

EDGAR, who died s. p. in 1106, and was succeeded by his brother,

ALEXANDER THE FIRST, who died also issueless (in 1124), and was succeeded by his brother,

DAVID THE FIRST, who espoused MAUD, daughter of WALDEOFF, Earl of Northumberland, by JUDITH, niece of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, (refer to BURKE'S Extinct Peerage, article ST. LIZ, Earls of Huntingdon;) and had an only son,

HENRY, Prince of Scotland, who d. before his father, leaving issue by his wife, the Lady Adeline de Warren, daughter of William, Earl of Warren and Surrey,

I. MALCOLM, who succeeded his grandfather upon the throne.

II. WILLIAM, successor to his brother.

III. David, Earl of Huntingdon, in England; who m. Maud, dau. of HUGH (Kiveliok), Earl of Chester, and had a son and four daughters, viz.,

* CEAN-MOHR, great-headed.

- 1 JOHN, (surnamed Le Scot,) who inherited the Earldom of Chester, and d. s. p.
- 2 Margaret, m. to Alan de Galloway, and had two daughters,
 DIVORGAL, m. to John de Baliol, and was mother of JOHN DE BALIOL, who was declared
 KING OF SCOTLAND by EDWARD I. of England.
 Marjory, m. to JOHN COMYN; and d. leaving
 JOHN, called the Red Comyn, who claimed the crown of Scotland, and was killed by BRUCE in the church of the Friars Minorete.
- 3 Isabel, m. to Robert de Brus, and was mother of ROBERT BRUCE, who contended for the crown.
- 4 Maud, d. unm.
- 5 Ada, m. to Henry de Hastings, and had a son,
 HENRY DE HASTINGS, whose grandson,
 JOHN, second BARON HASTINGS, was one of the competitors for the crown.

David the First died in 1153, and was succeeded by his grandson,

MALCOLM THE FOURTH, who died unmarried, in 1165, and was succeeded by his brother,

WILLIAM the Lion,* who was succeeded, in 1214, by his only son,

ALEXANDER THE SECOND, who married first, Joan, daughter of King JOHN, of England, but by her had no issue; and he espoused secondly, Mary, daughter of Ingelram de Courcy, and had a son, his successor in 1249,

ALEXANDER THE THIRD, who married Margaret, daughter of HENRY THE THIRD of England, and had three children,

Alexander, } who both d. s. p. in their father's lifetime.
 David, }

MARGARET, m. in 1281, to ERIC, King of Norway, and left an only daughter, MARGARET, successor to her grandfather.

The King died in 1285, and was succeeded by his granddaughter,

MARGARET, the Maiden of Norway, who died unmarried on her passage to Scotland.

On the death of this queen a violent competition arose for the vacant throne between the descendants of DAVID, Earl of Huntingdon, (refer to DAVID the First,) namely,

JOHN BALIOL,
 ROBERT BRUCE, and JOHN, Lord Hastings.

The competitors having finally agreed to submit their claim to the arbitration of EDWARD the First, of England, that monarch decided in favour of

JOHN BALIOL, who was accordingly declared KING OF SCOTLAND in 1292. In the reign of this monarch FOUGHT—CONQUERED—and FELL the renowned SIR WILLIAM WALLACE. Baliol died in 1296, when an interregnum of ten years ensued; at length,

ROBERT BRUCE, Earl of Carrick, was declared KING, as ROBERT the First. This prince, THE BRUCE OF BANNOCKBURN, was the most illustrious monarch that ever swayed the Scottish sceptre, and his name alone, so long as one descendant shall survive of the “Scots, wham Bruce has aften led,”

will be sufficient to fill with enthusiasm the coldest breast in Caledonia. He married first, Isabel, daughter of DONALD, Earl of Marr, and had one daughter,

MARGERY, who m. Walter, third LORD-HIGH-STEWARD of Scotland, and had a son, ROBERT STUART, of whom hereafter, as FIRST of the STUARTS.

The king espoused secondly, Elizabeth, daughter of AYMER DE BURG, EARL OF ULSTER, and had issue,

DAVID, his successor.
 Margaret, m. to William, 4th Earl of Sutherland, ancestor of the present Countess of Sutherland.
 Matilda, m. to Thomas de Isaac.
 Elizabeth, m. to Sir Walter Oliphant.

On the death of this renowned monarch, in 1329, the administration was assumed by JOHN RONDOLPH, third Earl of Moray, as REGENT OF SCOTLAND, during the minority of

DAVID THE SECOND, who was crowned at Scone in 1331. With this monarch EDWARD BALIOL, aided by the English king, disputed the throne. King DAVID died in 1370, and was succeeded by his nephew,

ROBERT THE SECOND. In this reign was fought the celebrated battle of Otterbourn, wherein the Earl of Douglas fell, and the English, under the "PERCYS of Northumberland," sustained a total defeat. King ROBERT married first, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Adare Mure, of Rowallan, in the county of Ayr, and had, with other issue,

JOHN, Earl of Carrick, who changed his name to ROBERT on succeeding to the throne.

ROBERT, Duke of Albany, who was REGENT OF SCOTLAND during the minority of his nephew, KING JAMES I. Alexander, Earl of Buchan and Ross.

Margery, m. to John Dunbar, Earl of Moray.

Jane, m. 1st, to Sir John Lyon, ancestor of the Earls of Strathmore; and 2ndly, to Sir James Sandelands, of Calder, ancestor of the Lords Torphichen.

Elizabeth, m. to Sir Thomas Hay, of Errol, ancestor of the Earls of Errol.

DAVID, Earl of Caithness and Strathern.

Walter, Earl of Atholl. This nobleman was beheaded at Edinburgh, in 1437, for the murder of his nephew, KING JAMES I., and his title and extensive estates became forfeited.

Robert the Second died in 1390, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

ROBERT THE THIRD, who married Annabella, daughter of Sir John Drummond, and had issue,

DAVID, Earl of Carrick, who was created DUKE OF ROTHSAÏ* in 1398. This prince fell a victim to the ambition of his uncle, the DUKE OF ALBANY, by whom he was starved to death in Falkland Castle, anno 1402. JAMES, who succeeded his father.

MARY, m. 1st, to Sir George Douglas, Earl of Angus, by whom she had issue; 2ndly, in 1404, to Sir James Kennedy, and the lineal descendant of this marriage is the present ARCHIBALD KENNEDY, Marquess of Ailsa. Her ladyship espoused 3rdly, Sir William Graham, of Kincardine, from which union descended the GRAHAMs of Claverhouse, (the gallant LORD DUNDEE, and THOMAS GRAHAM, the equally gallant LORD LYNDCH.) The Princess Mary wedded 4thly, Sir William Edmonstone.

Margaret, m. to Archibald, Earl of Douglas, DUKE OF TOURAINE, Marshal of France, who fell at Verneuil, in 1424.

Elizabeth, m. to James, Lord Dalkeith, grandfather of James, 1st Earl of Morton.

Robert the Third† died in 1406, and was succeeded by his only surviving son,

JAMES THE FIRST, who espoused Lady Jane Beaufort, daughter of John, 1st EARL OF SOMERSET, and granddaughter of JOHN OF GAUNT, and had issue,

JAMES, Duke of Rothsay, his successor.

Margaret, m. to LOUIS, Dauphin of France, afterwards LOUIS X.

Isabel, m. to Francis, 1st Duke of Brittany.

Jane, m. 1st, to James, 3rd Earl of Angus; and 2ndly, to George, 2nd Earl of Huntly.

Eleanor, m. to SIGISMUND, ARCHDUKE OF AUSTRIA.

Mary, m. to John, Lord of Campvere, in Zealand.

Johanna, m. 1st, to the Earl of Angus; and 2ndly, to James, 1st Earl of Morton.

King JAMES was murdered by his uncle, Walter, Earl of Atholl, at Perth, in 1423, and was succeeded by his son,

JAMES THE SECOND, during whose minority SIR ALAN LIVINGSTON was REGENT OF SCOTLAND. His Majesty married Mary, daughter of Arnold, Duke of Gelders, and had issue,

JAMES, Duke of Rothsay.

Alexander, Duke of Albany, m. twice; and by his second wife, Anne, dau. of the Count of Boulogne, had a son,

JOHN, Duke of Albany, REGENT in the minority of JAMES V.

John, Earl of Marr, who was bled to death by his brother in 1479.

* It is understood that, from this period, the PRINCIPALITY and STEWARTCY OF SCOTLAND, the DUKEDOM OF ROTHSAÏ, the EARLDOM OF CARRICK, the LORDSHIP OF THE ISLES, and BARONY OF RENFREW, have been vested in the first-born son and heir-apparent of the sovereign, who, from the moment of his birth or of his father's accession to the throne, enjoys those honours.

† ROBERT III. left a natural son,

SIR MICHAEL SHAW-STEUART, Bart. of Blackhall.

Mary, m. 1st, to Thomas, Lord Boyd, to whom she conveyed the Isles of Arran, of which he was made earl.

Her ladyship espoused 2ndly, JAMES, LORD HAMILTON.

Margaret, m. to William, 3rd Lord Crichton.

The King was killed by the bursting of a piece of ordnance at the siege of Rosburgh Castle, in 1460, and was succeeded by his son,

JAMES THE THIRD, who married Margaret, daughter of CHRISTIAN the First, King of Denmark, and being murdered by the confederated nobility, involuntarily headed by his own son, the Duke of Rothsay, in 1488, was succeeded by that Prince as,

JAMES THE FOURTH, who married the Lady MARGARET TUDOR, eldest daughter of King HENRY the Seventh, and falling at Flodden, in 1513, was succeeded by his son,

JAMES THE FIFTH. This monarch espoused first, Magdalen, third daughter of FRANCIS the First, King of France, but by that Princess had no issue. He married secondly, MARY, daughter of CLAUDE de Lorraine, DUKE DE GUISE, and left an only daughter,

MARY.

The King* died in 1542, and was succeeded by his only child,

MARY, Queen of Scots, born the year her father died, and inherited the throne in seven days after her birth. This lovely and unfortunate princess espoused first, in 1558, Francis, Dauphin of France, afterwards FRANCIS II., who d. s. p. in two years afterwards. Her Majesty married secondly, HENRY, Lord Darnley, by whom she had a son,

JAMES, Duke of Rothsay.

The Queen wedded thirdly, James Hepburn, fourth EARL of BOTHWELL, but had no other issue. The fate of the unhappy Mary is a matter of too much notoriety to be dwelt upon at any length. Her rule was opposed by a confederation of the Scottish nobles, headed by her bastard brother, the Regent MORAY, and to those she was forced to surrender at Carberry Hill, 15th June, 1567, whence she was sent prisoner to LOCHLEVEN CASTLE, and there placed under the immediate surveillance of the Lady MARGARET DOUGLAS, the REGENT's mother. In this state of restraint the Queen was compelled to sign a formal resignation of the crown to her son JAMES, Duke of Rothsay. Subsequently she effected her escape from the walls of Lochleven by the aid of the generous and intrepid GEORGE DOUGLAS, and unfurling the royal banner, faced her foemen at LANGSIDE; but the God of battle for once, at least, forsook the cause of beauty, chivalry, and right, and MARY sustained a signal defeat. In this her extremity, the Queen of Scotland fled into England, and flung herself in full confidence upon the boasted magnanimity of the English nation, and the generosity of her kinswoman, the English Queen; but she reposed, alas! upon a shadow—the nation shewed her no sympathy—the Queen gave her no protection. From both she experienced a series of cruel and unrelenting persecutions; and after enduring nineteen years of unjustifiable and unmitigated captivity, was put to death, at Fotheringay Castle, by decapitation, on the 8th of February, 1586.

“ She fell, but fell with spirit truly Roman,
To glut the vengeance of a rival woman.”

Upon the (forced) resignation of the crown by Queen MARY, at Lochleven, her son JAMES, Duke of Rothsay, then but a year old, was declared KING, as

JAMES THE SIXTH, and under this monarch the sceptres of England and Scotland became united at the decease of ELIZABETH, in 1603, when he ascended the English throne, as King JAMES the FIRST.

* JAMES V. left illegitimate children :—

By Elizabeth Shaw, of the family of Sauchie,

ROBERT, Earl of Orkney.

HOUSE OF GUELPH.

The founder of the illustrious family of GUELPH,

ANULPHUS, HUNULPHUS, or GUELPH, younger brother of ODOACER, conqueror and first barbarian King of Italy, obtained possession in Bavaria, where he died in 489, leaving an only son,

OLFIGANDUS, who did not assume the supreme authority in Bavaria, but entered as a volunteer into the Roman army, under the celebrated Belisarius, with whom he became a favourite, and eventually obtained a command. The period of this gallant soldier's death is unascertained, but he left an only son,

ULIGAGUS, who served under Belisarius in that general's last campaigns in Persia, and was subsequently engaged in the defence of Italy against the Lombards. He died in 590, and his son or grandson,

CADUINUS, residing chiefly in France, enjoyed the confidence of Queen Brumhilda, a princess then in the zenith of power; and having, at the head of the Austrasian army, subdued a great part of the kingdom of Burgundy, these provinces were erected into a duchy, and the victorious general made duke thereof in 613. In the latter years of Caduinus he was commissioned by CLOTHAIRE THE SECOND, under the title of Ambassador of the King, (Missus Regius), then acknowledged sovereign of Austrasia, Burgundy, and Neustria, to collect and digest the laws of the Bavarian and German nations dependent upon France, a duty which he fulfilled with so much zeal and success as, in a great measure, to establish the dominion of that power throughout the neighbouring provinces. Caduinus died in 640, and his son,

CATHICUS, obtained the government of Alsace, and was *MAYOR OF THE PALACE in the kingdoms of Neustria and Austrasia, in the reigns of Childeric, son of Clovis, and afterwards in that of Dagobert the Second, along with whom he was murdered in the forest of Vaivres, anno 670. From this period the Dukes of Bavaria, allying with the Lombards, began to acquire large possessions in Italy, where a branch of the Guelphic family had already been established as Dukes of Este, in the Lombard kingdom. From Duke Cathicus we pass to

GUELPH, son of Ruthard, Count of Altdorf, from whom, who died about 823, descended

GUELPH, sometimes called Wolfard, Count of Altdorf, and Duke of Nether Bavaria, married Imagi, daughter of Frederick, Count of Luxemburg, and had issue, GUELPH, Duke of Carinthia.

Cunegunda, m. to Azo the Second, Marquess of Este, and had a son, GUELPH, who inherited the estates of Altdorf at the decease of his uncle.

Guelph, alias Wolfard, was succeeded in 1036 by his son,

GUELPH, Duke of Carinthia, who was succeeded by his nephew,

GUELPH, Count of Altdorf, and Duke of Upper and Lower Bavaria. This prince engaged in the first crusade, anno 1096, and died in returning from the Holy Land, at Paphos, in Cyprus, in 1101, leaving by his wife Judith, daughter of Baldwin the Fifth, Count of Flanders, and sister of Maud, wife of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, four sons, and was succeeded by the eldest,

GUELPH, who died issueless in 1119, and was succeeded by his brother,

* The youth and imbecility of the royal race (of France) had allowed the mayors of the palace to rise from being mere servants of the court to the important rank of commanding in the kingdom. They were appointed to the office by the grandees of the state, and not by the sovereign; and after the death of Dagobert (A.D. 644), they assumed the command of the armies, and the management of the finances, so that nothing was left to the descendant, Moeroveus, but the empty title of king.—Halliday's Annals of the House of Hanover.

HENRY THE THIRD, surnamed Niger. This prince married Wolfilda, daughter and heiress of Magnus, the last Duke of Saxony of the line of Billung, and in her right assumed the title of Duke of Saxony; though the Emperor, Henry the Fifth, seized upon the Duchy and conferred it upon another family. The duke obtained, however, the Duchy of Spoleto and the Margraviate of Tuscia, with the principality of Sardinia. He died in 1127, and was succeeded by his eldest son,

HENRY THE FOURTH, surnamed Superbus, who married Gertrude, daughter and heiress of the Emperor Lothaire, by Richensa, daughter and eventually heiress of Henry the Fat, Duke of Saxony, by whom he obtained a restoration of the Duchy of Saxony. This prince subsequently acquired the Duchy of Brawnsweig, (now Brunswick,) and the county of Northeim, and was invested with the Margraviate of Tuscia, and all the dominions of his aunt-in-law, Mathildis, wife of Guelpho the Sixth. He died by poison in 1138 or 1139, and was succeeded by his son,

HENRY THE FIFTH, surnamed THE LION, Duke of Saxony and Bavaria, who added to his possessions the counties of Meclenburg and Luneburg, by conquest from the Slaves. But neglecting his duty to the Emperor, Frederick Barbarossa, and joining the Pope, he was publicly proscribed in 1180, and despoiled of his Saxon and Bavarian dominions by the neighbouring princes who combined against him. Henry still retained, however, Brunswic and Luneburg, but was obliged by oath to absent himself from Germany for three years, when he repaired with his second consort, Maud, to the court of her father, King Henry the Second of England; and through that monarch's intercession, obtained permission to return home in 1185, but was again driven into England in 1189; he returned, however, in the same year, and died on the 6th August, 1195, leaving issue by his second wife, the English princess, three sons and a daughter, viz.,

HENRY, of Zelle.

Otto, of Brunswic, elected emperor in 1198; crowned in 1208; and d. issueless in 1218.

William, Duke of Luneburg, surnamed Longospada, b. at Winchester, in England, in 1148.

Mechtild, m. to Henry Burewen, Prince of the Wenden.

The eldest son,

HENRY, Longus, of Zelle, was Count Palatine of the Rhine from 1195 to 1215. This prince partitioned his father's dominions between his brothers; and after his decease, his nephew,

OTHO, Puer, (son of William, of Winchester,) who was first created Duke of Brunswic-Luneburg laid claim to Brunswic as heir male; but his claim being disputed, he established it by his sword in 1228, and styling himself Duke of Brunswic, gave and confirmed to that principality many privileges. The prince married Matilda, daughter of Albert the Second, Elector of Brandenburg, and from him descended

WILLIAM, (son of Ernest Pius, of Zelle,) founder of the new house of Luneburg, who was born 4th July, 1535, and succeeded to the government in 1559. This prince married Dorothy, daughter of Christian the Third, King of Denmark, by whom he had seven sons and eight daughters. The sons having agreed amongst themselves not to divide the dukedom, determined that one only should marry, and decided by lot the individual, at the same time they agreed to reign primogeniturally; and those engagements they adhered to inviolably, to the admiration of all Europe. The matrimonial prize fell to

GEORGE, the sixth brother, a great military commander, who married in 1617, Anne-Eleanor, daughter of Lewis the Fifth, Landgrave of Hesse-Darmstadt, by whom he had (with four daughters) four sons, viz.,

CHRISTIAN-LEWIS, the eldest, who became Duke of Zelle; but dying issueless in 1665, was succeeded by his next brother, GEORGE-WILLIAM, of Calenberg and Gottengen, who espoused Eleanora d'Esmars, daughter of Alexander d'Olbreuse, by whom he left an only dau., Sophia-Dorothea, the unhappy consort of KING GEORGE I. of England.

JOHN-FREDERICK, who s. to Calenberg and Gottengen, (the Hanoverian dominions,) upon the demise of his brother, George-William. This prince became a catholic, and d. in Italy, in 1679, leaving four daus.

ERNEST-AUGUSTUS.

The youngest son,

ERNEST-AUGUSTUS, became Bishop of Osnaburg in 1662, and succeeded upon the demise of his brother, John-Frederick, to the Dukedom of Hanover. This prince, a military commander, was made ninth Elector of the Empire, on the 9th of December, 1692, under the title of ELECTOR OF HANOVER, and GREAT MARSHAL of the Empire; not, however, without considerable opposition from six of the other Electors, having the support only of the Electors of Saxony and Brandenburg.

His Serene Highness married Sophia, daughter of Frederick, Elector Palatine and King of Bohemia, by the English Princess ELIZABETH, daughter of KING JAMES THE FIRST, and had issue,

GEORGE-LEWIS, who ascended the British throne under the title of GEORGE I., in right of his mother, the Electress Sophia, who had been declared successor to the crown by the act of settlement passed on the 6th of March, 1702. Her Serene Highness, who was esteemed a lady of great wit and sound judgment, d. at Hanover on the 8th of June, 1714, about seven weeks prior to the decease of QUEEN ANNE.

Frederic-Augustus, an imperial general, killed in the war with the Turks in 1690.

Maximilian-William, general of the Venetians, who embraced the doctrines of the church of Rome, and became the emperor's general; d. in 1702.

Charles-Philip, col. of an imperial regiment of dragoons; killed by the Turks in 1690.

Christian, drowned in an engagement with the French in 1703.

Ernest-Augustus, Bishop of Osnaburg, created Duke of York and Albany and Earl of Ulster, on the 29th of June, 1716, and invested with the order of the Garter. He d. unm. in 1728.

Sophia-Charlotte, m. in 1684, to Frederic, Elector of Brandenburg, afterwards King of Prussia; and d. in 1705.

The Elector, Ernest-Augustus, died on the 23rd of January, 1698, and was succeeded in the Electorate by his eldest son,

GEORGE-LEWIS, who became subsequently the

FIRST BRITISH MONARCH OF THE HOUSE OF GUELPH.

Claud Hamilton. The earl was excommunicated, by the general commission of the church of Scotland, in 1649, as a Roman Catholic, and ordered to depart the kingdom. His lordship, on the discomfiture of his royal master at the Boyne, having embarked for France, lost his life in the voyage. In 1691 he had been outlawed, and forfeited the estate and title of Strabane; but the earldom of Abercorn devolved upon his brother,

CHARLES, 5th earl, who, the late lord's attainder having been reversed, succeeded likewise to the restored title and estate of Strabane; but, leaving no issue at his decease in 1701, the honours and estates devolved on his kinsman, (revert to Sir George Hamilton, Bart. of Donalong, 4th son of James, first Earl of Abercorn.)

Succeeding to the Earldom of Abercorn, his lordship, in virtue thereof, took his seat, in 1706, as a member of the Scottish parliament. Ireland was, however, the usual place of his residence; and of that realm, 2 Dec. 1701, he was created Baron Mountcastle and Viscount Strabane.  Hon. John Hay Forbes, and has issue.

III. Mary-Anne.

His lordship s. to the title at the decease of his mother, Mary-Anne, Baroness Abercromby, 11
 Feb. 1821.

Lineage.

This is a junior branch of the family of Abercromby of Birkenbog, co. Banff, springing from ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, (second son of Sir Alexander Abercromby, the 1st bart.) who settled at Tullibody, co. Clackmannan, having inherited that estate from his consin, George Abercromby, of Skeith. He, Alexander, was s. by his son,

GEORGE ABERCROMBY, Esq. of Tullibody, who m.
 Mary, dau. of Ralph Dundas, Esq. of Manour, and had issue,

RALPH, of whom presently.

Burnet, d. s. p. 1792.

Robert, (Sir) K.B., a general officer in the army, and governor of Edinburgh Castle, d. 1827.

RALPH ABERCROMBY, Esq., the eldest son, b. 1738, entered the army 23 May, 1756, as a cornet in the 2nd regiment of dragoon guards, and, ascending through the intermediate gradations, was appointed, 3 Nov. 1781, col. of the 103rd foot. In 1787, Col. Abercromby attained the rank of major-general, and in 1796 the command of the 7th regiment of dragoons. In the beginning of the war with republican France, General Abercromby served on the Continent under the Duke of York; and he conducted the march of the guards from Deventer to Ochensaal, in the retreat of the British from Holland, in the winter of 1794-5.

In August, 1795, he succeeded Sir Charles Grey as commander-in-chief in the West Indies; and within two years he added, by conquest, to those possessions, Demerara and Issequibo, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, and Trinidad. In 1797, he returned to Europe; and, in reward for such important services, was invested with the red ribbon, appointed to the command of the regiment of Scotch Greys, intrusted with governments of the Isle of Wight, Fort George, and Fort Augustus, and raised to the rank of lieutenant-general. He subsequently held for some time the chief command of the forces in Ireland. In that important station he laboured to maintain the discipline of the army, to suppress the rising rebellion, and to protect the people from military oppression, with an anxiety worthy alike of the gallant soldier and enlightened statesman. When he found, however, that he could no longer save, he refused to destroy, and he flung up his command, with strong expressions of horror and indignation. In 1801, Sir Ralph Abercromby was dispatched, at the head of an army, to dispossess the French of Egypt; and he fell, in the moment of victory, at the celebrated battle of Alexandria. The following just tribute to his memory appeared in the London Gazette, from the pen of Lieut.-Gen. Hutchinson, afterwards Lord Hutchinson, the late Earl of Donoughmore, who succeeded to the command of the army:—"Head Quarters, Camp, four miles from Alexandria, 3 April, 1801. We have sustained an irreparable loss in the person of our never sufficiently to be lamented Sir Ralph Abercromby, who was mortally wounded in the action, and died 28 March. I believe he was wounded early; but he concealed his situation from those about him, and continued in the field, giving his orders with that coolness and perspicuity which had ever marked his character, till long after the action was over, when he fainted, through weakness and loss of blood. Were it permitted for a soldier to regret any one who has fallen in the service of his country, I might be excused for lamenting him more than any other person; but it is some consolation to those who tenderly loved him, that, as his life was honourable, so was his death glorious. His memory will be recorded in the annals of his country, will be sacred to every British soldier, and embalmed in the recollection of a grateful posterity." Sir Ralph married,

MARY-ANNE, dau. of John Menzies, Esq. of Fernton, co. Perth, who, on an official account of the triumph and fate of her lamented husband reaching England, was elevated to the peerage, 28 May, 1801, as BARONESS ABERCROMBY, of Aboukir and Tullibody, with remainder to the heirs male of the deceased general. By Sir Ralph her ladyship had issue,

GEORGE, present baron.

John, (Sir) G.C.B., a general officer, who d. unm. 1817.

Sir Robert inherited the title as 5th bart. at the decease of his father, 18 July, 1831.

Lineage.

The surname Abercromby, like others of great antiquity, was assumed from a territory in the co. Fife; and the possessor of that property was esteemed the chief of the family, until the 17th century, when the chiefship, by the extinction of that line of Abercromby, devolved upon Abercromby of Birkenbog, the head of which house,

JAMES ABERCROMBY, of Pitmedden, Ley, and Birkenbog, (the lineal descendant of Humphredus de Abercromby, son of Abercromby of that ilk, who obtained a charter of the lands of Harthill and Ardun from ROBERT I.,) was killed at Flodden, leaving by Margaret, his wife, dau. of Sir James Ogilvie, of Findlater, a son and successor,

GEORGE ABERCROMBY, of Pitmedden, b. in 1512, who m. Christian, dau. of — Barclay, and was direct ancestor of

ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, of Pitmedden, &c., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Leslie of Pitcaple, and was s. by his son,

ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, of Pitmedden, Birkenbog, &c., who m. Margaret, dau. of William Leslie, of Balquhan, and had two sons, namely,

JAMES, his heir.

Alexander, laird of Fetternear, who m. Jean, dau. of John Seaton, of Newark, and had two sons, of whom the elder was created Lord Glassford by JAMES VII., and the younger, Patrick, M.D., became known as author of "The Martial Achievements of the Scottish Nation."

The elder son,

JAMES ABERCROMBY, of Birkenbog, was father of

ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, of Birkenbog, falconer to CHARLES I. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Bethune of Balfour, and had (with two younger sons, John, ancestor of the Abercrombys of Glassaugh, and Walter, of Bracon Hills, and a dau., the wife of Robert Grant, of Dalvey,) a successor,

I. ALEXANDER ABERCROMBY, of Birkenbog, who was created a BARONET OF NOVA SCOTIA, 1637. Sir Alexander took so active a part against KING CHARLES, that an historian of the period characterizes him as "a main covenant." In May, 1645, he joined Major Urry, and was at the battle of Auldearn; but Montrose retaliated, by quartering himself and some of his troops at Birkenbog. Sir Alexander m. thrice, and had by his last wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir James Baird, of Achmedden, two sons, viz.,

JAMES, his heir.

Alexander, ancestor of LORD ABERCROMBY.

ROBERT, present baronet.

v. Frances, d. 1834.

Lineage.

The Gordons, Earls of Aberdeen, and the Gordons, Dukes of Gordon, derive from a common progenitor—the earls preserving throughout male descent, the dukes springing from the heir-female of the senior line, ELIZABETH GORDON.

PATRICK GORDON, of Methlic, a firm adherent of JAMES II. of Scotland, lost his life under the banner of that monarch, at the battle of Arbroath, 1445, and was s. by his son,

JAMES GORDON, of Methlic, who obtained a grant from JAMES II. of a part of the barony of Kellie, then vested in the crown, by the forfeiture of Alexander, Earl of Crawford, and acquired other large possessions, which still remain in the family. This gentleman left five sons and two daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

PATRICK GORDON, of Methlic and Haddo, who obtained charters under the great seal, from JAMES III. in 1481, from JAMES IV. in 1505, and from JAMES V. in 1514, all of considerable tracts of land, besides acquisitions from Lord Sinclair, the Bishop of Aberdeen, and others; the whole of which were embodied in one charter. Mr. Gordon lived to a very advanced period of life, and, dying in 1531, was s. by his grandson,

JAMES GORDON, of Methlic and Haddo, whose property was considerably extended by grants from JAMES V. In the beginning of MARY'S troubles, this gentleman was one of those who signed the association, in 1567, for the defence of the young prince JAMES; but, upon ascertaining that the queen had been imposed upon, he joined the Earl of Huntley, her majesty's lieutenant in the north, adhered faithfully and firmly to her interests ever after, and obtained royal charters of several other lands and baronies. He m. Marjory, dau. of Sir Thomas Menzies, of Pitfodils, comptroller of Scotland; and, dying in 1582, was s. by his grandson,

JAMES GORDON, of Methlic and Haddo, (only son of Patrick Gordon, by Agnes, dau. of Alexander Frazer, of Muchil.) This gentleman m. Jean, dau. of William, Lord Keith, and was s. at his decease, in 1624, by his grandson,

SIR JOHN GORDON, of Haddo, (only son of John Gordon, by Margaret, dau. of Sir Alexander Bannerman, of Elsie.) This gentleman, who was second in command to the Marquess of Huntley, over the forces raised against the Covenanters in 1639, was created a BART. OF NOVA SCOTIA, by CHARLES I., in 1642, for his distinguished conduct at the battle of Turreff. In the following year Sir John defended the house of Kellie against the Covenanters, but, being obliged to capitulate, he was sent to Edinburgh, and imprisoned in a church there, which afterwards bore the name of Haddo's Hole. He was subsequently tried, condemned, and executed at the cross of Edinburgh, in 1644. The estates of Sir John Gordon were forfeited, and remained under sequestration until the restoration of CHARLES II., when they were inherited by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN GORDON, of Haddo, who m. Mary, only dau. of Alexander, 1st Lord Forbes, of Pitsligo, by whom he had an only child, Jean, m. to Sir James Gordon, of Lesmoir, bart. He d. in 1665, and was s. by his brother,

SIR GEORGE GORDON, of Haddo, an eminent lawyer, who was appointed one of the senators of the college of justice in 1680, made president of the session in 1681, and constituted LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF SCOTLAND in the following year, when he was elevated to the peerage of that kingdom (30 Nov. 1682) by the titles of Lord Haddo, Methlic, Tarves, and Kellie, Viscount Formantine, and EARL OF ABERDEEN. His lordship, owing to a difference of opinion with his colleagues of the privy council, resigned the chancellorship in 1684; and retired to the country at the revolution, to avoid taking the oaths of allegiance to KING WILLIAM. Upon the accession of QUEEN ANNE, however, he took the oaths and his seat in parliament. He subsequently opposed the Union, but did not attend at the final settlement of the measure. His lordship m. Anne, dau. and heiress of George Lockhart, Esq. of Torbrecks; and, dying at the age of 83, in 1720, was s. by his only surviving son, WILLIAM, 2nd earl, one of the representative peers of Scotland in 1721. This nobleman being elected to parliament in the lifetime of his father, 1708, for the co. Aberdeen, the question, whether the eldest sons of the peers of Scotland were eligible to be returned to the House of Commons, was raised upon a petition being presented against his lordship, and decided by the house in the negative, when the election was declared void, and a new writ ordered to be issued by the speaker. His lordship is the 16th baron and 2nd earl.

Lineage.

The barony of Bergavenny, or Abergavenny, as it is now written, was originally a feudal dignity, and in the time of HENRY III.,

WILLIAM, Lord Cantilupe, having espoused Eva, dau. and coheir of William, Lord Braose, acquired with that lady the castle and lands of Bergavenny, and thus became its feudal lord. This nobleman is said to have been summoned to parliament as Baron Bergavenny, and to have been the first who had assumed the designation; but there is no record of the fact extant. He d. 1253, and was s. by his son,

GEORGE CANTILUPE, who d. s.p. 1272, when the castle and lands passed to the son of his sister, his nephew and heir,

JOHN HASTINGS, 2nd Lord Hastings, who then became feudal lord of Bergavenny. This nobleman d. 1313, and was s. by his son,

LAWRENCE HASTINGS, 3rd Lord Hastings, who was raised to the dignity of Earl of Pembroke, in the 13th of EDWARD III., and in that the feudal barony of Bergavenny merged, until the decease of

JOHN HASTINGS, K.G., 3rd Earl of Pembroke, who d. without issue, in 1389, when the earldom became extinct, and the lands and castle of Bergavenny passed, Collins says, by purchase, but Dugdale alleges, by virtue of an entail, to

WILLIAM BEAUCHAMP, 4th son of Thomas, Earl of Warwick, who was summoned to parliament from 23 Nov.

1392, to 26 Aug. 1408, as "Willielmo Beauchamp, de Bergavenny." His lordship, who was a K.G., d. 1410, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD BEAUCHAMP, Lord Bergavenny, who was created Earl of Worcester 1420. His lordship m. Isabel de Spencer, sister and heir of Richard, 8th Baron Despencer, and Baron Burghersh, and d. 1421, leaving an only dau. and heiress,

THE LADY ELIZABETH BEAUCHAMP, who espoused

SIR EDWARD NEVILLE, (4th surviving son of Ralph, 1st Earl of Westmorland, by his second wife, Joane, dau. of John of Gaunt, and uncle of Richard Neville, Earl of Warwick and Salisbury, commonly called the king maker. Refer to Burke's Extinct and Dormant Peerage, article, Nevill, Earls of Westmorland.) Sir Edward, thus becoming possessed of the castle and lands of Bergavenny,* was summoned to parliament as BARON BERGAVENNY, from 5 Sept. 1450 (29 HEN. VI.), to 19 Aug. 1472 (12 EDW. IV.) His lordship was a Yorkist, and high in the confidence of EDW. IV. He had issue by the heiress of the Beauchamps, Richard, who pre-deceased him.

GEORGE, his successor.

Alice, m. to Sir Thomas Grey, Knt.

Katherine, m. to — Iwarby, Esq.

His lordship espoused, secondly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Robert Howard, Knt., and sister of John, Duke of Norfolk,† by whom he had three surviving daus.,

Margaret, m. to John Brooke, Lord Cobham.

Catharine, m. to Robert Tanfeild.

Anne, m. to Lord Strange.

He d. 18 Oct., in the 16 of EDW. IV., and was s. by his son,

SIR GEORGE NEVILLE, (who had been knighted at the celebrated battle of Tewkesbury, 9 May, 1471,) as 2nd LORD BERGAVENNY of this family. His lordship m. 1st, Margaret, dau. and heiress of Sir Hugh Fenne, Knt., sub-treasurer of England, and had by that lady, who d. 28 Sept. 1485, with other issue,

1. GEORGE, his successor.

11. Edward, (Sir) of Aldington Park, in Kent, who was a military man of high reputation, and a knight banneret in the time of HENRY VIII. He was eventually, however, attainted and beheaded, on the charge "of devising to maintain, promote, and advance, one Reginald Pole, late dean of Exeter, enemy of the king, beyond the sea, and to deprive the king." Sir Edward Neville had m. Eleanor, dau. of Andrew, Lord Windsor, and widow of Ralph, Lord Scrope, of Upsal, by whom he left,

1 EDWARD, who succeeded, as 5th BARON ABERGAVENNY.

2 Henry, of Billingbeer, in Berks, from whom descended the Nevilles of that co., ancestors of the Lords Braybrook.

3 Catharine, m. to Clement Throgmorton, Esq. of Hasely, co. Warwick.

* Sir Edward had livery of the lands of his wife's inheritance in the 14th HENRY VI., but was kept out of the castle and manor of Bergavenny by Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick; which Richard, as also his son, Henry Beauchamp, Duke of Warwick, enjoyed the said castle &c. so long as they lived, by a special entail made in the reign of RICHARD II. by William Beauchamp, Lord Bergavenny, that, on failure of issue male of his body, by Joan, his then wife, the said castle &c. should revert unto Thomas Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick (brother of him, the said William), and to the heirs male of his body. However, in the 27th of HENRY VI., Henry Beauchamp, Duke of Warwick, being deceased, and Anne, his sole daughter and heir, in ward to the king, upon the humble remonstrance of Sir Edward Neville and his wife, they obtained livery of the said castle of Bergavenny; and in the patent he is styled LORD BERGAVENNY.

† For this marriage they were both excommunicated, in regard to their intimacy in the lifetime of his first wife, and likewise for that he was of near kindred to her—viz., within the third degree of consanguinity. Howbeit, at length making their application to POPE NICHOLAS V., they were absolved, and had a special dispensation for their marriage, dated at Rome, 15 Oct. 1448.—Collins.

5 Elizabeth, m. to Thomas Emeys, or Heynes, of Yorkshire.

His lordship m. 2ndly, Elizabeth ———, and dying 20 Sept. 1492, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR GEORGE NEVILLE, 3rd Lord Abergavenny. This nobleman was created a knight of the Bath in the reign of EDWARD V., was distinguished against the Cornish rebels temp. HENRY VII., and became the companion in arms of HENRY VIII. in his French wars. From the last monarch he obtained the garter, with many high and important commands, and was summoned to parliament in the 21st of the king's reign, as "George Nevyle de Bergevenny, Chivaler." At the coronation of Queen Anne Boleyn, his lordship claimed the office of chief larderer, and was allowed to officiate. He d. in the 27th of HENRY VIII., and was s. by his eldest son, (by Mary, his second wife,* dau. of Edward Stafford, Duke of Buckingham,)

This nobleman was committed to ward for striking the Earl of Oxford in the chamber of presence, but obtained, within a month, special pardon for the offence. His lordship was one of the peers who sate in judgment upon the unfortunate Mary of Scotland. He m. Frances, dau. of Thomas Manners, Earl of Rutland, by whom he left at his decease, 10 Feb. 1586-7, an only dau., ELIZABETH, the wife of Sir Thomas Fane, Knt., who then claimed the barony of Bergavenny; but, after a long investigation, the House of Lords decided that the said barony belonged to the heirs male; whereupon the crown, to give some satisfaction to the heir female granted, by letters patent, the barony of Le Despencer to her ladyship and her heirs; and her cousin, (revert to Sir Edward Neville, second son of George, second baron,)

Lineage.

The earliest honour of this branch of the house of Lindsey being derived from the ancient family of NORRIS or NORREYS, we shall commence our genealogical detail with the Norris's who were located at Speke, in Lancashire, long before the time of HENRY III.

SIR HENRY NORREYS, Knt. of Speke, had (with an elder son, William, ancestor of the Norreys of Speke and Davyhulme—see BURKE'S Commoners.)

JOHN NORREYS, of Bray, ancestor of

SIR WILLIAM NORRIS, of Pattenden, co. Berks, who was one of the knights of the body to EDWARD IV., and in the 2nd of HENRY VII. had a command in the king's army at the battle of STOKE. He m. 1st, Isabel, daughter and heiress of Edmund Ingaldethorp, and widow of John Nevill, Marquess of Montagu, and had three surviving daus. Sir William m. 2ndly, Lady Jane De Vere, dau. of John, Earl of Oxford, and had a son,

SIR EDWARD NORRIS, Knt., who m. Fridiswide, dau. and co-heir of Francis, Viscount Lovel, by whom he had issue,

John, esquire of the body to HENRY VIII., m. Elizabeth, sister of Edmund, Lord Bray, but died without issue.
Henry, (Sir.)

The younger son,

SIR HENRY NORRIS, succeeded Sir William Compton as usher of the black rod 23 Oct. in the 18th of HENRY VIII., "to bear the same before the king, or his lieutenant, at St. George's feast in the castle of Windsor." He was also esquire of the body to the king, one of the gentlemen of the privy chamber, and constable of Wallingford Castle. "But," says Dugdale, "upon 1 May, there being a solemn just held at Greenwich, wherein George Bullen, Viscount Rochford, was chief challenger, and this Henry, principal defendant; the king suddenly departed thence, no cause for it being at all known, (which much discomposed the whole company, particularly the queen.) Some say that she let fall her handkerchief, wherewith one (supposed her favourite) did wipe his face, and that it was perceived by the king. But whatever it was, the next morning, this Henry, with the Lord Rochford, was committed to the Tower, so likewise the queen : who, when she came thither, fell upon her knees, beseeching God so to help her, as she was not guilty of what she was accused. Others were also committed at that time upon the same account. It is reported that she seemed to exclaim against this Henry, as if he had accused her ; yet said they should both die together. But so they did not, nor on the same day ; she being tried before the Duke of Norfolk (high steward for that occasion), and found guilty by her peers. He also, with the rest, soon after, and beheaded on the 14th of that month. It is likewise reported that the king greatly favoured this Henry, and that he much grieved that he was to die with the rest : also, that thereupon he offered pardon to him ; conditionally, that he would confess that whereof he was accused : but he answered resolutely that, in his conscience, he thought the queen guiltless of the objected crime ; but, whether she were or not, he could not accuse her of anything, and that he had rather undergo a thousand deaths than betray the innocent. Upon relation whereof to the king, he cried out, Hang him up, hang him up, then."

This unfortunate gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of the South, and left issue,

Lineage.

The barony of Bruce of Whorlton, co. York, was conferred by CHARLES I. (1 Aug. 1641) upon

THOMAS BRUCE, 3rd Lord Bruce of Kinloss, who had previously (18 July, 1633,) been elevated to the Scottish Earldom of Elgin. His lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir Robert Chichester, Knt. of Raleigh, co. Devon, by whom (who d. 1627) he had an only son, ROBERT, his successor. He espoused, 2ndly, Anne, dau. and co-heir of William, Lord Burghley, and widow of Henry De Vere, Earl of Oxford, but had no other issue. He d. Dec. 1663, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT, 2nd Earl of Elgin, Baron Bruce of Kinloss, and Baron Bruce of Whorlton, who, for the very essential services rendered to CHARLES I. and his lordship's active exertions in promoting the Restoration, was created in the English peerage, 18 March, 1663-4, Baron Bruce, of Skelton, co. York; Viscount Bruce, of Amphil, co. Bedford; and Earl of Ailesbury, co. Bucks. He m. Diana, daughter of Henry Grey, 1st Earl of Stamford, by whom he had eight sons and nine daus. At the coronation of JAMES II., 23 April, 1685, the Earl of Ailesbury was one of the lords who bore St. Edward's staff; and he was appointed, 30 July following, LORD CHAMBERLAIN OF THE HOUSEHOLD. He d. 20 Oct. in the same year, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

THOMAS, 3rd Earl of Elgin and 2nd Earl of Ailesbury, who m. 13 Aug. 1676, Elizabeth, only surviving dau. of Henry, Lord Beauchamp, son of William, Marquess of Hertford (afterwards 2nd Duke of Somerset), and at the death of her brother, William, 3rd Duke of Somerset, 26 Sept. 1671, sole heir to Tottenham Park and Savernake Forest, in Wiltshire, besides divers estates in that and other counties. By this great heiress his lordship had issue,

CHARLES, his successor, who was summoned to parliament in the lifetime of his father as Lord Bruce.

Elizabeth, m. to George Brudenell, 3rd Earl of Cardigan, by whom she had four sons; the youngest of whom,

THOMAS BRUDENELL, s. his uncle, the Earl of Aylesbury, in the barony of Bruce of Tottenham.

The Earl of Ailesbury, although amongst the first to invite the Prince of Orange into England as a mediator between the crown and the people, peremptorily refused to sanction his advancement to the throne, or to swear allegiance to the government of the Revolution. In 1690-1, during KING WILLIAM's absence in Ireland, QUEEN MARY issued a proclamation for the apprehension of his lordship, with other suspected persons, but he was not then imprisoned; in a few years afterwards, however, being accused of attending meetings at the Old King's Head Tavern, in Leadenhall-street, for the restoration of KING JAMES, he was committed to the Tower, which so affected the countess that she died in childbed, 12 Jan. 1696-7; the earl was admitted to bail on 12 Feb. following. His lordship obtained subsequently leave from KING WILLIAM to reside at Brussels, where he married Charlotte, Countess of Sannu, of the ancient and noble house of Argentaui, in the duchy of Brabant, and by her, who d. 23 July, 1710, had an only daughter, Charlotte-Maria, who m. 1722, the Prince of Horne, and d. 1736, leaving several children.

His lordship d. Nov. 1741, and was s. by his only surviving son,

CHARLES, 4th Earl of Elgin, and 3rd Earl of Ailesbury. This nobleman m. 1st, Lady Anne Saville, eldest dau. and co-heir of William, Marquess of Halifax, and had,

ROBERT, Lord Bruce, who m. Frances, dau. of Sir William Blacket, Bart., and d. s. p. in the lifetime of his father.

Mary, m. 1728, to Henry Brydges, Marquess of Carnarvon, afterwards Duke of Chandos.

His lordship m. 2ndly, Lady Juliana Boyle, 2nd dau. of Charles, Earl of Burlington, but by that lady had no issue. He espoused, 3rdly, 1739, Caroline, only dau. of Gen. John Campbell, of Mamore, who was afterwards Duke of Argyll, and by her had an only daughter, Mary, m. 1757, to Charles, Duke of Richmond, and d. 1796, s. p.

In consequence of the failure of male issue, his lordship obtained, 17 April, 1746, by patent, the Barony of Bruce of Tottenham, co. Wilts, with remainder to his nephew, the Hon. Thomas Brudenell; and, dying 10 Feb. 1747, the earldom of Ailesbury, &c. became extinct: the Scottish titles devolved upon Charles, 9th Earl of Kincardine, and the barony of Bruce, created as above, descended to his nephew,

THE HON. THOMAS BRUDENELL, 2nd baron, who thereupon assumed the name and arms of Bruce, in addition to those of his own family. His lordship m. 1st, 17 Feb. 1761, Susanna, dau. of Henry Hoare, of Stourhead, co. Wilts, Esq., and relict of Viscount Dungarvon; by whom he had,

Lineage.

DUNCAN DE CARRICK, proprietor of a considerable estate in the district of Carrick, co. Ayr, was father of

NICOL DE CARRICK, who granted the church of St. Cuthbert, at Maybole, to the nuns of North Berwick, in 1220: from this Nicol descended,

SIR GILBERT DE CARRICK, Knt., who obtained from Malcolm, Earl of Lennox, a charter of the lands of Kennedy, &c. This Sir Gilbert was one of the prisoners taken at the battle of Durham in 1346.

About this time the family began to drop the ancient name of Carrick, and to assume that of Kennedy. Alexander Kennedy, clerk, canon of Glasgow, chancellor to John Baliol, King of Scotland, one of those who swore fealty to KING EDWARD I. in 1296, is the 1st of the name on record.

SIR JOHN KENNEDY, designated son of Sir Gilbert de Carrick in many authenticated writs, obtained a confirmatory charter from DAVID II. of the lands of CASTLYS, co. Ayr, with other territorial possessions which he had acquired with his wife, Mary, dau. of Sir John Montgomery. He was s. by his son,

SIR GILBERT KENNEDY, one of the hostages delivered to the English in 1357, for the liberation of DAVID II. This gentleman was s. by his son,

SIR JAMES KENNEDY, who carried on the line of the family, and obtained from ROBERT III. a charter of confirmation of the bailiary of Carrick, to be Caput totius proprie, and to have the command of the militia of Carrick, &c.; the king's charter bears "Delecto consanguineo suo Jacobo Kennedy Militi," &c. Sir James m. the Lady MARY STEWART,* widow of George Douglas, Earl of Angus, and dau. of ROBERT III., and got a confirmation from that monarch, then his father-in-law, of the lands and barony of Dalrymple, to himself and the princess his wife, dated at Dundonald, in 1485. Sir James Kennedy was s. by his eldest son,

* This lady espoused, 3rdly, Sir William Graham, of Kincardine; and 4thly, Sir William Edmonstone.

SIR GILBERT KENNEDY, Knt., who was elevated to the peerage of Scotland in 1452, by the title of Lord Kennedy; and in 1460 was appointed one of the six regents of the kingdom, during the minority of JAMES III. His lordship m. Catherine, dau. of Herbert Lord Maxwell, by whom he had three sons and two daus.: the latter were,

Catherine, wife of Alexander, 2nd Lord Montgomery.
Muriot, the wife of Sir John Wallace, of Craigie.

His lordship was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 2nd lord, who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Alexander, Lord Montgomery, by whom he had a son, DAVID. His lordship espoused, 2ndly, Lady Elizabeth Gordon, dau. of George, Earl of Huntly, and by her had three sons and two daus. He was s. in 1508 by his eldest son,

DAVID, 3rd lord. This nobleman, being of the privy-council of JAMES IV., was created by that monarch, in 1502, EARL OF CASSILIS. His lordship m. 1st, Agnes, dau. of William, Lord Bothwick, by whom he had three sons. He espoused, 2ndly, Mary, dau. of Thomas Boyd, Earl of Arran, relict of Alexander, Lord Forbes. The earl fell at the battle of Flodden, and was s. by his son,

GILBERT, 2nd earl, who m. Isabel, dau. of Archibald, Earl of Argyll, and was slain, Dec. 1527, in endeavouring to rescue JAMES V. from the Earl of Angus. He was s. by his son,

GILBERT, 3d earl, who filled the high office of lord treasurer of Scotland, and assisted, as a deputed Scottish peer, in 1558, at the marriage of the ill-fated Mary Stuart with Francis, dauphin of France. The ceremony was celebrated with great pomp, but when the crown matrimonial was demanded, the Scotch deputies, in a respectful but firm manner, discovered a fixed resolution of consenting to nothing that tended to introduce any alteration in the order of succession to the crown. This opposition to the views of the French court gave great offence, and occasioned a report that poison was administered to the deputies, of whom Lord Fleming died at Paris, and the Earls of Cassilis and Rothes, and Bishop Reid, president of the Court of Session, at Dieppe, all three in one night, 28 Nov. 1558. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Alexander Kennedy, of Bargany, and had, with two daus.,

I. GILBERT, his successor.

He is a representative Scottish peer.

Lineage.

The antiquity of this family is indisputable; it ranks amongst the most ancient of North Britain, and can be deduced, by well-authenticated evidence, from Dubican, son of Indechtraig, Thane of Angus, who flourished in the early part of the 10th century. We shall begin, however, with a more recent progenitor.

GILCHRIST, (or Gille Chriosda, signifying the servant of Christ,) the 5th Earl, or Thane, of Angus, in 1120, whose son,

GILIBREDE, or GILBERT, Thane of Angus, fought in the battle of the Standard, in 1138; was one of the hostages for the release of WILLIAM the LION from the English, in 1174; and d. 1180, leaving issue, by a dau. of Earl Cospatrick, sister of Waldeve, 1st Earl of Dunbar, inter alios, a third son,

GILBERT, who obtained from KING WILLIAM the lands of Pourie, OGILVIE, and others, and thence assumed the surname of OGILVIE. From him lineally descended

SIR WALTER OGILVIE, of Wester Pourie and Auchterhouse, sheriff of Angus, who fell at Gaskelune, in 1392, leaving, by Isabel, dau. and heiress of Sir Malcolm Ramsay, of Auchterhouse, three sons, viz.,

Alexander, (Sir) of Auchterhouse, whose great-grand-dau. and representative, MARGARET OGILVIE, m. 1466, James Stewart, Earl of Buchan, and conveyed to that nobleman the barony of Auchterhouse, and the hereditary sheriffalty of Angus. Thence descended CHRISTIAN-STEWART, Countess of Buchan, who m. Robert, 2nd son of Douglas of Lochleven, and d. 1580; her grand-dau., MARY DOUGLAS, Countess of Buchan, m. John Erskine, 2nd son of John, Earl of Mar, and d. 1628. One of their descendants, an Earl of Buchan, sold the lands and barony of Auchterhouse, which, after passing through various hands, were re-purchased by John, 4th earl of Airlie.

Walter, (Sir) of Lintrathen, of whom presently.

John, (Sir) who got from his elder brother a charter of the lands of Innerquharly, dated 3 June, 1420, was ancestor of the Ogilvies of Innerquharly.

The second son,

SIR WALTER OGILVIE, Knt., of the privy council of JAMES I., was constituted, in 1425, LORD HIGH TREASURER OF SCOTLAND, master of the royal household in 1430, and a commissioner for renewing the truce with England in the following year. Sir Walter attended the Princess Margaret into France, on her marriage with the Dauphin, 1434, and, by an order from the king, erected the tower, or fortalice, of Eroly, or Airlie, into a royal castle. This eminent person m. Isabel de Durward, heiress of Lintrathen, by whom he acquired that barony, and was subsequently designated therefrom. After the battle of Culloden, he effected his escape into France, and there getting the command of a regiment, called "Ogilvy's," rose to the rank of lieutenant-general. Lineage.

ARNOLD-JOOST VAN-KEPPEL, Lord of Voorst, accompanied the Prince of Orange in 1688, and, on the establishment of his master upon the throne of England, was created, 10 Feb. 1695-6, Baron Ashford, of Ashford, co. Kent; Viscount Bury, co. palatine of Lancaster; and EARL OF ALBEMARLE,* a town and territory in the Dukedom of Normandy. The earl was subsequently honoured with the garter. "About this time (says Burnet) the king set up a new favourite, Keppel, a gentleman of Guelder, who was raised from a page into the highest degree of favour that any person had ever attained about the king. He was now (1695) made Earl of Albemarle, and soon after knight of the Garter, and, by a quick and unaccountable progress, he seemed to have engrossed the royal favour so entirely that he disposed of every thing that was in the king's power. He was a cheerful young man, that had the art to please, but was so much given up to his own pleasure that he could scarce submit to the attendance and drudgery that was necessary to maintain his post. He had never

* ALBEMARLE, or AUMARLE. This territory belonged, at the time of the Norman conquest, to Stephen, son of Odo, descended from the Earls of Champagne, whom WILLIAM the Conqueror made EARL OF ALBEMARLE, as being the son of his half sister by the mother's side; and gave to him, for the future maintenance of his estate, the territory of Holderness, in Yorkshire. When the line of this nobleman failed, both male and female, Thomas Plantagenet, Duke of Gloucester, son of EDWARD III., was summoned to parliament, as DUKE OF AUMARLE, anno 1385, and after him, Edward Plantagenet (subsequently Duke of York,) was created DUKE OF ALBEMARLE, (1397.) This prince fell at Azincourt, and, leaving no issue, the earldom expired. In 1411, Thomas Plantagenet, 2nd son of HENRY IV., was created Earl of Albemarle and Duke of Clarence; but, dying s. p. 1421, the earldom again became extinct. Richard Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, was the next Earl of Albemarle, and with him the dignity once more ceased in 1439. From that period ALBEMARLE remained unappropriated until conferred by CHARLES II. as a dukedom upon the celebrated GENERAL MONK, in 1660, with whose son it expired in 1688. In eight years afterwards the earldom of Albemarle was conferred upon the present family.

yet distinguished himself in anything. He was not cold nor dry, as the Earl of Portland was thought to be, who seemed to have the art of creating many enemies to himself, and not one friend; but the Earl of Albemarle had all the arts of a court, was civil to all, and procured many favours." His lordship m. 1701, Gertrude, dau. of Adam Vander Duin, Lord of St. Gravemoer, in Holland, and had issue,

The earl was a member of the nobles in Holland; deputy forester; gen. of the horse, and of Swissers in the service of the States-Gen.; governor of Bois-le-duc, &c. KING WILLIAM held his lordship in the highest esteem, and bequeathed to him, in a codicil annexed to his majesty's last will and testament, the Lordship of Breevost, and 200,000 guilders, the only legacy the king gave from the Prince of Nassau-Friezland, whom he had made his heir. "The elder branch of the ARDERNES," (says Lysons, in his Cheshire,) "whose chief seat was at Aldford, where they had a castle, became extinct in the principal line by the death of Walkeline Arderne, in or about the reign of RICHARD II. The present JOHN ARDEN, Esq., for so the family have of late years spelt the name, is descended from SIR JOHN ARDERNE, a younger brother of Walkeline before mentioned, whose posterity settled in the parish of Stockport in the 15th century; and he is also the representative of the Barons of Montalt, and of the ancient family of the Dones of Utkington and Flaxyards. A younger branch of the Ardernes settled at Alderley about the beginning of the reign of EDWARD III., and ended, after a few descents, in a female heir, who married into the Weever family, whose heiress married the ancestor of Sir J. T. Stanley, Bart. The Ardernes of Leicestershire were descended from a younger son of RALPH ARDERNE, of Harden, in the 15th century."

The above-named

SIR RALPH ARDERNE, of Harden, d. about 1420, leaving, by the dau. of Stanley of Hooton, two sons; the younger, Thomas, was the progenitor of the Ardernes of Leicestershire; and the elder,

A farmhouse, called Alvanley Hall, occupies the site of an ancient mansion belonging to the Arden family, called by Webb, in 1622, "a very fine house, belonging to Henry Arderne, Esq."—Lysons's Cheshire.

The Marquess of Anglesey, having adopted the military profession, entered into active service under the command of his royal highness the late Duke of York, in the early part of the first war with revolutionized France, as lieut.-col. of a regiment of infantry; from which exchanging into the hussars, he subsequently distinguished himself, during Sir John Moore's campaign, as the gallant leader of the cavalry brigade, in the Spanish peninsula; and at the close of the sanguinary struggle contributed mainly, at the head of the united British, Hanoverian, and Belgian horse, to the glorious result of Waterloo; in that memorable conflict, at nearly the close of the battle, his lordship received a wound on his right knee, which rendered amputation eventually necessary. The marquess has been twice lord-lieut. of Ireland.

Lineage.

WILLIAM PAGET, one of the serjeants-at-mace of the city of London, left, with other children,

WILLIAM PAGET, who, after receiving the rudiments of education under the famous Lily, in St. Paul's school, and, passing through the University of Cambridge, entered the family of Stephen Gardiner, Bishop of Winchester, and was thence introduced into political life. In the 21st of HENRY VIII., Paget went into France to obtain the opinions of the learned in that kingdom, touching his royal master's divorce from Queen Katherine; and thenceforward, during the remainder of HENRY'S reign, we find him actively and confidentially employed, often as a diplomatist upon secret and important missions, and at one time he filled the office of secretary of state. He received the honour of knighthood, and had a legacy of £300 from the king, who constituted him one of his executors, and of the council to EDWARD VI. Sir William Paget subsequently formed a close alliance with the Protector SOMERSET, and thus retained the opportunity of devoting his great abilities to the services of the state. On 14 Feb. 1546-7, he was elected a knight of the Garter; and he was summoned to parliament as BARON PAGET, of Beaudesert, co. Stafford, 23 Jan. 1552. In the government of the protector he took a prominent part, and participated in the downfall of his patron. He was committed to the Tower, fined £6000 by the Star Chamber, and divested of the insignia of the Garter. His disgrace was not, however, of endurance; within a short time he obtained his liberty, with a general pardon for all offences, and a remission of the debt due to the crown. On the death of EDWARD, he espoused the cause of MARY, and after her accession to the throne was sworn of the privy council. He had also a restoration of the Garter, and he obtained several important grants from her majesty. He was afterwards appointed lord privy seal. When ELIZABETH succeeded, in 1558, he retired from public life at his own request; and Camden informs us, that her majesty "retained an affection and value for him, though he was a strict zealot of the Romish church." His lordship m. Anne, daughter and heir of Henry Preston, Esq., and, dying in 1653, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HENRY PAGET, K.B. (so made at the coronation of MARY,) who was summoned to parliament as Baron Paget, 30 Sept. 1566. He m. Catharine, dau. of Sir Henry Knevet, of Buckenham, in Norfolk, and left at his decease in 1578, an only daughter,

ELIZABETH PAGET, who m. Sir Henry Lee, Knt., but had no issue. There is some confusion as to this lady's having inherited the barony. Collins says she died 29 June, 1571; if so, her uncle enjoyed the dignity before her decease; for we find that gentleman,

THOMAS PAGET, summoned to parliament as BARON PAGET, on the 4th of the preceding April. In the 27th of ELIZABETH, this nobleman, being zealously affected to the catholic religion, and letters having been intercepted which betrayed good feelings towards the Queen of Scots, he deemed it advisable, on the apprehension of Francis Throgmorton, to withdraw privately, with Charles Arundel, into France. He was attainted soon after, with his brother, Charles Paget, by parliament, and his property confiscated. He m. Nazaret, dau. of Sir Henry Newton, of Barr's Court, co. Somerset, and was s. at his decease, 1589, by his only son,

WILLIAM, 4th baron, who was restored by parliament in the 1st of JAMES I. to his rank and honours, and was summoned to parliament from 5 Nov. 1605, to 7 March, 1628. His lordship m. Lettice, dau. and co-heir of Henry Knolles, Esq. of Kingsbury, in Warwickshire, and, dying 20 Aug. 1629, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 5th baron, b. 13 Sept. 1609; m. Lady Frances Rich, dau. of Henry, Earl of Holland, and had, with eleven other children,

- I. WILLIAM, his successor.

- II. Henry, who settled in Ireland, and left at his decease, by his wife, Anne, dau. of Robert Sandford, Esq. of Sandford, in Shropshire, (with a dau., Dorothy, wife of Sir Edward Irby, bart.)

THOMAS, brigadier-gen. in the army, whose only dau. and heiress,

CAROLINE, espoused Sir Nicholas Bayly, bart. of Placenywyd, son and successor of Sir Edw.

Bayly, who had been created a baronet of Ireland, 4 July, 1730,* and had a son,
HENRY-BAYLY, who inherited as 9th BARON PAGET.

Lord Paget, who, 1642, was appointed by the parliament lord lieut. co. Buckingham, returned soon afterwards to his allegiance, and commanded a regiment under the royal standard at Edge-hill in the same year. He d. 19 Oct. 1678, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

HENRY, his successor, alone survived. He wedded, 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of Sir Anthony Irby, Knt. of Boston, and had another son,

William, who died young. His lordship d. at an advanced age, 25 Feb. 1713, and was s. by his son,

HENRY, 7th Lord Paget, who had been created Baron Burton, of Burton, co. Stafford, 1712, during his father's lifetime; and was advanced to the Earldom of Uxbridge, 19 Oct. 1714. He m. 1st, Mary, eldest dau. and co-heir of Thomas Catesby, Esq. of Wheston, co. Northampton, and had an only child,

THOMAS CATESBY, Lord Paget, who m. Lady Elizabeth Egerton, sister of Scroop, Duke of Bridgewater, and, dying before his father, left a son,

HENRY, successor to the earldom. The earl espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir W. Bagot, but had no other issue. He d. 1743, and was s. by his grandson,

HENRY, 8th baron and 2nd earl. This nobleman dying unm. Nov. 1769, the Earldom of Uxbridge and barony of Burton became extinct; but the barony of Paget, being a barony in fee, devolved upon the eldest surviving son of the deceased,

CAROLINE-PAGET, dau. of Brigadier-Gen. Thomas Paget, (refer to William, 5th baron,) and her husband, Sir Nicholas Bayly, Bart., namely,

HENRY BAYLY, Esq., who thereupon assumed the surname and arms of Paget alone, and was summoned to parliament 13 Jan. 1770, as 9th BARON PAGET. (Sir Edward Bayly, the 1st baronet, already mentioned, was grandson of the Right Reverend Lewis Bayly, Bishop of Bangor, chaplain to Henry, Prince of Wales, son of JAMES I., with which monarch Doctor Bayly came into England, and was tutor to CHARLES I.) His lordship m. 11 April, 1767, Jane, eldest dau. of the Very Reverend Arthur Champagne, dean of Clanmacnoise, in Ireland, and great-granddaughter of Arthur Forbes, Earl of Granard, by whom he had issue,

- I. HENRY-WILLIAM, present Marquess of Anglesey.

ROBERT, Alexander, John, William, Philip, James; Jean; Christian, m. to James Lumsden, Esq.; and Catherine. He was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

III. SIR ROBERT, b. 21 April, 1733, who m. Lady Janet Erskine, youngest dau. of Alexander, 5th Earl of Kellie, by Janet, his countess, dau. of the celebrated Dr. Archibald Pitcairn, and had three sons and three daus., viz., ROBERT; Alexander, chief justice of Madras; Philip; Jean m. to Sir T. Robert, the eldest son, b. 3 March, 1768, entered at a very early period of life into the Guards, and, in 1793, accompanied his regiment into Holland. In 1796, he joined the Austrian army in the Brigau, under the Archduke Charles, then at war with France; and in one of the victories gained by the Austrians, received a wound in the left side. In 1797, he returned home, purchased a company in the 3rd Guards, and was appointed deputy quarter-master general. In 1798, he went upon a diplomatic mission to Germany, whence he returned in the spring of the ensuing year, and in the autumn of the same year embarked with the expedition to the Helder. In 1800, Capt. Anstruther went to Egypt, as quarter-master general to the army, under the command of Sir Ralph Abercrombie, at which time the order of the Crescent was conferred upon him by the Turkish monarch. In 1802 he was appointed adj.-gen. in Ireland. In 1808, he went to Portugal as brig.-gen., and distinguished himself at the celebrated battle of Vimiera. In the subsequently disastrous campaign in Spain, under the gallant Sir John Moore, Gen. Anstruther commanded the rear guard of the army, which he brought safely into Corunna, on the night of 12 Jan.; but survived only one day the extraordinary exertions he had made, and the fatigue he had endured during the march. He d. 14 Jan. 1809, and lies interred in the north-east bastion of the citadel of Corunna. Sir John Moore, by his own desire, was buried by the side of the general. Lineage.

The family of Campbell is one of the most distinguished in Scotland, and its head, ARGYLL, in feudal times, was perhaps the most powerful subject in the kingdom. Eight centuries ago, Gillespick Campbell acquired, by marriage with an heiress, the lordship of Lochow, in Argyllshire, and from him descended

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who, distinguishing himself as well by the great acquisitions he had made to his estate as by his warlike actions, obtained the surname of MORE, or GREAT; and from him the chief of this illustrious family is in the Gaelic styled, to this day, MAC CALLUM MORE. He was knighted by ALEXANDER III., 1280, and was one of the nominees, 1291, on the part of ROBERT BRUCE, in the contest for the crown of Scotland. This renowned and warlike chieftain was slain in a conflict with his powerful neighbour, the Lord of Lorn, at a place called the String of Cowal, where a great obelisk is erected over his grave. This event occasioned continued feuds for a series of years between the houses of Lochow and Lorn, which terminated at last by the marriage of the 1st Earl of Argyll with the heiress of Lorn. Sir Colin m. a lady of the name of St. Clair, and had issue,

NIEL, his successor.

Donald, progenitor of the Campbells of Loudoun.

Dugald, (Sir) who swore fealty to EDWARD I. in 1299, but afterwards joined ROBERT BRUCE.

Arthur, who, having sworn fidelity with his brother to King EDWARD, like him, afterwards joined ROBERT BRUCE, from whom he obtained two charters of the constabulary of Dunstaffnage, with the mains thereof.

Duncan, likewise a supporter of the BRUCE.

Sir Colin was s. by his eldest son.

SIR NIEL CAMPBELL, who was knighted by ALEXANDER III., towards the close of his reign. He swore fealty with his brothers, in 1296, to KING EDWARD, but afterwards joining ROBERT BRUCE, adhered to him in prosperity and adversity, and fought by his side in almost every field from the battle of Methven to that of Bannockburn. The king had so high a sense of his services that he gave him his sister Lady Mary Bruce, in marriage, and granted to him and his said wife, and John their son, all the lands which belonged to David de Strathbogie, Earl of Athol. When the triumph of Bannockburn had decided the independence of Scotland, Sir Niel Campbell was one of the great barons in the parliament which met at Ayr, 26 April, 1315, and fixed the succession to the crown. By the Lady Mary Bruce he had three sons, viz.,

COLIN.

John, (Sir) of Moulin, who, upon the forfeiture of David de Strathbogie, 11th Earl of Atholl, was advanced to that dignity. He fell at the battle of Halidon-hill, 1333; and dying without issue, the Earldom of Atholl reverted to the crown.

Duncan of Menstrie.

Sir Niel d. 1316, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who accompanied the king into Ireland in 1316, to assist in placing his brother, Edward Bruce, upon the throne of that kingdom. The Scottish army passing through a wood, (Feb. 1317,) Robert issued positive orders to his soldiers to march in order of battle, and on no pretence to leave their ranks. It happened that two English yeomen discharged their arrows at Sir Colin, who rode off at full speed to avenge the insult. The king followed and struck his nephew so violently with his truncheon, that he was all but unhorsed, exclaiming, "Return! your disobedience might have brought us all into jeopardy." Sir Colin, in 1334, assisted the steward of Scotland in the recovery of the CASTLE of DUNOON from the English, which gave the first turn of fortune in favour of KING DAVID BRUCE, and he was in consequence appointed heritable governor of that fortress. He m. a lady of the house of Lennox, and had three sons and a daughter, viz.,

ARCHIBALD.

John, whence derive the Campbells, of Barbreck, Succoth, and others. (See BURKE'S History of the Commoners, vol. ii. p. 563.)

Dugald.

Alicia, m. to Alan Lauder, of Hatton.

He d. 1340, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ARCHIBALD, or GILLESPICK, CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who was s. by his son,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who m. Margaret, 2nd dau. of Sir John Drummond, of Stobhall, and sister of Annabel, queen consort of ROBERT III., by whom he had issue, viz.,

DUNCAN.

Colin, of Ardkinglass.

Donald.

Christian, m. to Duncan Macfalane of Arrochar.

Sir Colin was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

SIR DUNCAN CAMPBELL, of Lochow, who assumed the designation of ARGYLL, and was raised to the dignity of a lord of parliament by JAMES II. in 1445, by the title of Lord Campbell, having, in the previous reign, been of the privy council, and been appointed the king's justiciary and lord lieutenant of the co. Argyll. His lordship m. 1st, Lady Marjory Stewart, dau. of Robert, Duke of Albany, Regent of Scotland, and had three sons, viz.,

Celestine, who d. young.

Archibald, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Somerville, of Carnwath; and dying before his father, left a son, COLIN, who s. his grandfather.

Colin, (Sir) ancestor of the Campbells of Glenurchy, now Marquesses of Breadalbane.

Lord Campbell m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Stewart, of Blackhall, natural son of ROBERT III., and had three more sons. His lordship was one of the hostages for the redemption of JAMES I., in 1424, and his annual revenue at that time was stated to be fifteen hundred marks, a larger income than that of any other of the hostages. He d. at the close of the year 1453, and was s. by his grandson,

COLIN, 2nd Lord Campbell, who was created Earl of Argyll, 1457. His lordship was appointed master of the king's household in 1464; and after filling several most important public situations, as ambassador to the courts of England and France, justiciary, &c., he was eventually made LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF SCOTLAND. He m. Isabel Stewart, eldest dau. and co-heiress of John, Lord of Lorn, and, in consequence, added the galley to his achievement, with the designation of Lord Lorn to his other titles. Of this marriage there were two sons and seven daus. The earl d. 10 May, 1493, and was s. by his elder son,

ARCHIBALD, 2nd Earl of Argyll, who fell in the command of the vanguard at the celebrated field of Flodden, on 9 Sept. 1513, leaving, with a numerous family beside, by Elizabeth, dau. of John, Earl of Lennox, his successor,

COLIN, 3rd Earl of Argyll. This nobleman was appointed, 1528, lieutenant of the borders, warden of the marches, heritable sheriff of Argyllshire, justice-general of Scotland, and master of the king's household. His lordship m. Lady Jane Gordon, dau. of Alexander, Earl of Huntly, and dying in 1533, was s. by his eldest son,*

ARCHIBALD, 4th earl. This nobleman was the first person of importance in Scotland who embraced the Protestant religion, and he became subsequently a strenuous advocate for the Reformation. He m. 1st, Helen, dau. of James, Earl of Arran, and had one son,

ARCHIBALD, his successor.

He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of William Graeme, Earl of Menteith, by whom he had, (with two daus.,)

COLIN, who succeeded as 6th earl.

His lordship d. 1558, and was s. by his eldest son,

ARCHIBALD, 5th earl, who, at the breaking out of the civil wars in Scotland, espoused the cause of Queen Mary, and commanded her Majesty's forces at the battle of Langside, 1568. After the assassination of the REGENT MORAY, the Earl of Argyll and other noblemen of the queen's party assembled at Linlithgow, 10th April, 1570, and his lordship was then constituted, with the Duke of Châtellherault and the Earl of Huntly, her majesty's lieutenant in Scotland. When the Regent LENNOX fell in 1571, also by assassination, he was candidate for the regency; but not succeeding, he was sworn of the privy council, and the next year constituted LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR. His lordship m. 1st, the Lady Jane Stuart, natural dau. of JAMES V. (this lady was at supper with her sister, Queen Mary, when Rizzio was murdered, 9 March, 1566; and she stood sponsor, as proxy for ELIZABETH of England, at the baptism of JAMES VI.) The earl m. 2ndly, Lady Johanna Cunningham, 2nd dau. of Alexander, 5th Earl of Glencairn, but had no issue. He d. in 1575, when the estates and honours devolved upon his half-brother,

SIR COLIN CAMPBELL, of Boquhan, as 6th earl, who was sworn of the privy council in 1577, and appointed lord high chancellor of Scotland in two years afterwards: by his 2nd wife, Agnes, dau. of William Keith, earl marischal, and widow of James, Earl of Moray, he had two sons,

ARCHIBALD, his successor.

Colin, of Lundie, created a bart.

His lordship d. 1584, and was s. by his elder son,

ARCHIBALD, 7th earl, a military officer of high reputation, who, after distinguishing himself in arms at home, entered the service of Philip III. of Spain, and obtained renown in the wars of that monarch against the States of Holland. His lordship m. 1st, Anne, dau. of William, Earl of Morton, by whom he had, with four daughters,

ARCHIBALD, his successor.

He m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir William Cornwallis, of Brome, and had, with a dau., another son,

James, created Earl of Irvine 1642, who d. s. p., when the dignity expired.

The earl d. 1638, and was s. by his elder son,

ARCHIBALD, 8th earl, who was advanced to the Marquisate of Argyll, by letters patent, dated 15 Nov. 1641. This nobleman resigned into the hands of CHARLES I. the justiciary of all Scotland, which had been in his family for several ages, reserving only to himself and his heirs the jurisdiction of the Western Isles, and of Argyll, and wherever else he had lands in Scotland, which arrangements were ratified by act of parliament in 1633. His lordship, during the civil war, was a most zealous and active supporter of the royal cause, and at the king's coronation at Scone, 1 Jan. 1650-1, had the honour of placing the crown upon his majesty's head. After the defeat of the royalists at Worcester, Argyll retired to Inverary, where he continued to act on the defensive for a whole year, until, falling sick, he was surprised by Gen. Dean, and brought prisoner to Edinburgh. Having received orders from Gen. Monk to attend a privy council, his lordship was thus entrapped to be present at the ceremony of proclaiming Cromwell Lord Protector. On the restoration of the monarchy, the marquess immediately repaired to London, for the purpose of congratulating the king; but his majesty, refusing to see him, ordered his committal to the Tower, where he remained until Dec. following, when he was sent back to Scotland by sea, and narrowly escaped shipwreck. He was soon afterwards tried for high treason, and condemned to death, 25 May, 1661. In two days subsequently, he wrote a long letter to the king, vindicating his memory, and imploring protection for his poor wife and family; dined at noon with his friends with great cheerfulness; and was accompanied by several of the nobility to the scaffold; where, after an interval of devotion, his head was struck off by the maiden at the market-cross of Edinburgh. He had m. Margaret, dau. of William, Earl of Morton, and was s. by the elder of two sons,

ARCHIBALD, 9th earl, who, in 1663, was restored to the estate and honours of his family, as Earl of Argyll. This nobleman, for refusing to subscribe to the Test Act, was found guilty of high treason, 19 Dec. 1681, and sentenced to death, but effected his escape from the Castle of Edinburgh under the disguise of a page, holding up the train of Lady Sophia Lindsay, his step-daughter, and departed the kingdom: he was subsequently taken, in an abortive attempt to invade Scotland in the beginning of the reign of JAMES II., and executed at the same place, and in the same manner, as his father, 30 June, 1685. His lordship

In 1735-6, his grace was constituted field-marshal of all his majesty's forces. Not less distinguished in the council than the field, the duke is thus immortalized by Pope:—

The patent of creation, dated at Prague, 14 Dec. 1595, confers the honour upon Sir Thomas, and his heirs male, and female, for ever. ASHBURNHAM.

ASHBURNHAM, EARL OF, (Bertram Ashburnham,) Viscount St. Asaph, and Baron Ashburnham; b. 23 Nov. 1797; s. to the honours as 4th earl, at the decease of his father, 27 Oct. 1830.

Lineage.

The Ashburnhams (so denominated from the town of that name in Sussex, formerly written Esseburnham.) are, according to Fuller, "a family of stupendous antiquity, wherein the eminence hath equalled the antiquity, having been barons temp. HENRY III.;" and Francis Thynn, Esq., in his catalogue of lord wardens of the Cinque Ports, and constables of Dover Castle, thus mentions one of the early progenitors: "Bertram Ashburnham, a baron of Kent, was constable of Dover Castle, A.D. 1066; which Bertram was beheaded by WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, because he did so valiantly defend the same against the Duke of Normandy."

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq., representative of the family at the commencement of the 16th century, m. Lora, dau. and co-heir of Thomas Berkeley, Esq. of Aram, co. Hants, and was s. by his son,

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq., M.P. for Sussex, 1st and 2nd of PHILIP and MARY; m. Isabel, dau. of John Sackville, Esq., ancestor of the Dukes of Dorset, and was s. by his son,

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq. of Ashburnham, who m. Mary, dau. of George Fane, Esq. of Badsel, co. Kent, grandfather of Francis, 1st Earl of Westmorland, and dying 1591, was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Knt., who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Beaumont, of Staughton, co. Leicester, by whom he had issue,

JOHN, his successor.

William, M.P. 1640, who, with other loyal members, was expelled the house for his fidelity to the crown. He subsequently took an active and distinguished part during the civil wars, was maj.-gen. in the royal army, and col.-gen. (1644) of the co. Dorset. After the Restoration, he was appointed cofferer to the king. He m. Jane, dau. of John, Lord Butler, and widow of James Lee, Earl of Marlborough, but d. s. p. 1679.

Elizabeth, m. to Sir Fred. Cornwallis, Knt., afterwards Lord Cornwallis.

Francis, m. to F. Turville, Esq.

Anne, m. to Sir E. Deering, Bart.

This Sir John Ashburnham, by the inscription on his monument in Ashburnham church, was necessitated, being deeply engaged for his friends, owing to his generous disposition, to sell his seat (in his family long before the Conquest) and all the estate he had elsewhere, and to leave his wife and children totally unprovided for. His widow m. Sir Thomas Richardson, lord-chief-justice of the Common Pleas, and was created BARONESS CRAMOND, in the peerage of Scotland, by CHARLES I. Sir John Ashburnham's eldest son,

JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq. was one of the grooms of the bed-chamber to CHARLES I., and M.P. for Hastings, 1640. He filled, after the restoration, the same post in the court of CHARLES II., sitting in parliament for the co. Sussex. In 1646, when the unhappy CHARLES deemed it advisable to leave Oxford, Mr. Ashburnham was the only servant that attended him; and, indeed, the only person, except a clergyman, Dr. Hudson, who served for a guide. He was afterwards instrumental in the flight of his royal master from Hampton Court, 11 Nov. 1647; but, upon the failure of the attempt, through Col. Hammond, governor of the Isle of Wight, who delivered the unfortunate monarch up to the army, his fidelity was questioned. But Lord Clarendon sufficiently clears Mr. Ashburnham from the imputation, observing, "that he preserved his reputation and credit with the most eminent of the king's party; and his remaining in England after the death of the king, which his enemies charged as an aggravation of suspicion against him, was upon the marriage of a lady, by whom he had a great fortune and many conveniences, which would have been seized by his leaving the kingdom; and he did send over to CHARLES II., and had leave to stay there, and sometimes supplied the king with considerable sums of money. Afterwards he was committed to the Tower by CROMWELL, where he remained till his (Cromwell's) death." Mr. Ashburnham m. 1st, Frances, dau. and heir of William Holland, Esq. of Westburton, and had issue,

WILLIAM, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John, Lord Poulett, of Hinton St. George, and, dying 1665, left a son,

JOHN, who s. his grandfather.

Frances, m. to Sir Denny Ashburnham, of Bromham, Bart.

Elizabeth, m. to Sir Hugh Smith, of Long Ashton.

He espoused, 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Christopher Kenn, Esq. of Kenn, co. Somerset, and widow of Lord Poulett. He d. in 1671, and was s. by his grandson,

I. JOHN ASHBURNHAM, Esq., who was elevated to the peerage, as Baron Ashburnham, of Ashburnham, co. Sussex, 20 May, 1689. His lordship m. 1677, Bridget, only dau. and heiress of Walter Vaughan, Esq. of Porthammel House, co. Brecknock, and, dying 22 Jan. 1709-10, left (with two daus., Jane, m. James Hayes, Esq.; Elizabeth, m. 1st,

II. Delaval-Loftus, b. 24 March, 1825.

Lineage.

Of the antiquity of the Astleys there is the most unquestionable testimony; and several curious and interesting proofs are to be found in "Dugdale's Warwickshire."

SIR THOMAS ASTLEY, Knt., who fell at the battle of Evesham, temp. HENRY III., with Montford, Earl of Leicester, and other insurrectionary barons, founded the family. (See BURKE's Extinct Peerage.) By his 1st wife, Joan, dau. of Ernald de Bois, he was father of ANDREW, from whom the Astleys of Pateshull, co. Stafford, derive. By his 2nd wife, Editha, dau. of Peter Constable, Esq. of Melton Constable, co. Norfolk, and sister and co-heir of Sir Robert Constable, Knt., he had three sons; from the 2nd of whom,

THOMAS ASTLEY, of Hill Morton, co. Warwick, descended (the 7th in direct succession),

JOHN ASTLEY, Esq. of Hill Morton and Melton Constable, who m. Frances, dau. and heiress of John Cheyney, Esq. of Sittingbourne, in Kent, and was s. at his decease by his only surviving son,

ISAAC ASTLEY. This gentleman m. Mary, daughter of Edward Waldegrave, Esq. of Borley, co. Essex, and had two sons, namely,

THOMAS, of whom presently.

Jacob, (Sir) who, having acquired considerable reputation under the royal standard during the civil wars, was advanced to the peerage as Baron Astley, of Reading. His lordship m. Agnes Imple, a German lady of family, and was s. in 1651 by his eldest son,

ISAAC, 2nd baron, who d. 1662, and was s. by his eldest son,

JACOB, 3rd baron, at whose decease, issueless, 1668, the barony expired.

Isaac Astley was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS ASTLEY, who m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of George Deane, Esq. of Tilney, co. Norfolk, and had issue,

FRANCIS, his successor.

ISAAC, successor to his brother.

Edward, (Sir) m. his cousin, the Hon. Elizabeth Astley, dau. of Jacob, Lord Astley, and dying 1653, left a son, Jacob, of whom presently, as representative of the family.

Thomas Astley was s. by his eldest son,

SIR FRANCIS ASTLEY, Knt., at whose decease, without issue, the estates devolved upon his brother,

SIR ISAAC ASTLEY, who was created a Bart. 21 Jan. 1641. Sir Isaac m. 1st, Rachel, dau. of Augustine Messenger, Esq. of Hackford, in Norfolk; and 2ndly, Bridget, dau. of John Coke, Esq. of Holkham, but had no issue. He d. Dec. 1659, when the baronetcy expired, while the estates of Hill Morton and Melton Constable passed to his nephew,

I. SIR JACOB ASTLEY, Knt., who was created a Bart. 25 June, 1660. Sir Jacob succeeded not only to the property of his uncle, but also to the entailed lands of his maternal grandfather, Lord Astley, these being so settled by act of parliament: he represented the co. Norfolk for forty years in parliament; and, dying in 1729, was s. by his eldest surviving son, (by Blanch, eldest dau. of Sir Philip Wodehouse, Bart. of Kimberley, co. Norfolk),

II. SIR PHILIP. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Thomas Bransby, Esq. of Castor, in Norfolk, and had, with three younger sons, who all died issueless, and two daus., Elizabeth, wife of Caleb Elwin, Esq. of Thirning, and Jemima, of Christopher Metcalf, Esq. of Hawsted, a son and successor at his decease, 7 July, 1739, Nathan Haines, D.D., but has no issue. His lordship s. to the honours as 9th baron at the decease of his father, 29 July, 1805.

Lineage.

Fuller, speaking of the Astons, says, "a more noble family, measuring on the level of flat and inadventaged antiquity, is not to be met with; they have ever borne a good respect to the church and learned men."

RANDAL, OR RANULPH, DE ASTONA, the first on record, who lived in the reign of EDWARD I., was father of

ROGER DE ASTON, who, in 1260, obtained from Roger de Moland, Bishop of Lichfield, the manors of Heywood and Longdon, and the keeping of the game in Caukwood, all in the co. Stafford. The fifth in descent from this Roger,

SIR ROGER DE ASTON, Knt., served the office of sheriff for Staffordshire in the reign of HENRY VI., and was one of the prime gentry returned by the commissioners for that county in 1433. Sir Roger m. Joyce, sister and co-heir of Sir Baldwin de Trevile, and with her acquired large estates in the co. of Warwick. The great-grandson of this marriage,

SIR JOHN DE ASTON, K.B., was a military character of great eminence in the reigns of the two first sovereigns of the house of Tudor. Sir John was with HENRY VIII. in the French war of 1513, and was made a banneret for his conduct at the battle of Spurs. He obtained renown likewise at the siege of Terouin and Tournay. He was sheriff of the counties of Leicester and Warwick, and thrice of Staffordshire. Sir John Aston m. Joan, only child of Sir William Littleton, of Frankley, co. Worcester, by whom he acquired the manors of Wanlip, in Leicestershire, and Tixall, co. Stafford. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WALTER ASTON, who, at the coronation of JAMES I., was honoured with the order of the Bath, and subsequently, in 1611, created a Baronet. In 1622 he was employed to negotiate a marriage between Charles, Prince of Wales, and the Infanta of Spain; and, in requital for his service upon that occasion, was elevated to the peerage, 28 Nov. 1627, as LORD ASTON, OF FORFAR. His lordship m. Gertrude, only dau. of Sir Thomas Sadleir, of Standon, (son of the celebrated Sir Ralph Sadleir—see BURKE's Commoners, vol. ii. p. 561,) and dying in 1689, was s. by his eldest son, WALTER, 2nd baron, who, at the decease of his uncle, Ralph Sadleir, Esq. of Standon, s. p. in 1660, inherited, under the will of that gentleman, the lordship of Standon, with other estates in Hertfordshire. ATHOLL, DUKE, MARQUESS, and EARL OF, (John Murray,) Marquess and Earl of Tullibardine, Earl of Strathtay and Strathardale, Viscount Glenalmond, Balquhidar, and Glenlyon, Baron Murray, of Tullibardine, Lord Balvenie and Gask, in the peerage of Scotland; Earl Strange, Baron Strange, and Baron Murray, of Stanley, co. Gloucester, in the peerage of England; hereditary sheriff of Perthshire; b. 26 June, 1778; s. to the honours as 5th duke, upon the demise of his father, 29 Sept. 1830.

Lineage.

This family, one of the most eminent in Scotland, was at one time invested with the absolute sovereignty of the Isle of Man. "Freskine," says Sir Robert Douglas, "a gentleman of Flemish origin, came into Scotland during the reign of DAVID I., and obtained from that munificent sovereign the lands of Strathbrock, in the co. Linlithgow. Soon after the insurrection of the Moraymen, in 1130, Freskine, who probably contributed, by his skill and bravery, to the subduement of these ancient people, acquired from the same prince some of the most fertile districts in the lowlands of Moray, and built a fortalice at Duffus, where he resided, the massy ruins whereof are still remarkable." The descendant of this distinguished person,

WALTER, inheriting his paternal lands at Moray, was distinguished by the surname of DE MORAVIA, or MORAY. From this Walter de Moravia descended the Morays, Lords Bothwell, the Morays of Abercairny,* and

SIR WILLIAM DE MORAVIA, who acquired the lands of Tullibardine with his wife, Adda, dau. of Malise, Senescal of Strathern, as appears by charters dated in the years 1282 and 1284. He was s. by his son,

ANDREW MURRAY, of Tullibardine. When Edward Baliol invaded Scotland, in 1332, this Andrew Murray, favouring his pretensions, contributed greatly to the decisive victory obtained by Baliol at Duplin, by fixing a stake in a ford in the river Earn, through which his army passed and attacked the Scots. This rendered Murray so obnoxious that, when he was made prisoner in a couple of months after, he was immediately put to death for his adhesion to Baliol. He left a son,

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, from whom lineally descended (the 5th in succession)

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, living in 1482 and 1511, who had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Andrew, (Sir) ancestor of the Viscounts Stormont.

Sir William was s. by his eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, whose grandson,

SIR WILLIAM MURRAY, of Tullibardine, m. 1547, Lady Agnes Graham, dau. of William, 2nd Earl of Montrose, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN MURRAY, 12th feudal Baron of Tullibardine, master of the household, and one of the privy council of

JAMES VI., who was created Lord Murray of Tullibardine, 25 April, 1604, and 10 July, 1606, Earl of Tullibardine. His lordship m. Catherine, dau. of David, Lord Drummond, and had, with other issue,

WILLIAM, his successor.

Patrick, of Castletown, afterwards Earl of Tullibardine.

Mungo, who became 2nd Viscount Stormont, but d. issueless.

The earl d. 1609, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 2nd earl, who, with his cousin, David, Viscount Stormont, when a very young man, had the good fortune to be instrumental in the rescue of the king, at Perth, from the attempt of the Earl Gowrie and his brother, in 1600. For this signal service, he obtained the hereditary sheriffship of Perthshire, which has since continued in the family. His lordship m. 1st, 1602, Cecilia, eldest dau. of Sir John Wemyss, of Wemyss, but had no issue; he espoused, 2ndly, Lady Dorothea Stewart, eldest dau. of John, 5th Earl of Atholl, (at whose decease, without male issue, the earldom of Atholl reverted to the crown,) by whom he had issue,

JOHN, who became Earl of Atholl.

Mary, m. to Sir John Moncrieffe, of Moncrieffe, Bart.

The earl, a short time before his decease, having petitioned CHARLES I., setting forth that his countess was the eldest dau. and heir of line of John, Earl of Atholl, and that the family of Stewart, of Innermeath, which had obtained the title at that nobleman's decease, had become extinct, the king graciously promised to revive the dignity in her posterity; when his lordship, wishing to prevent the junction of the earldoms of Atholl and Tullibardine, and for the purpose of forming two noble families, resigned the latter dignity to the crown, in favour of his brother PATRICK MURRAY, which disposition was confirmed by patent under the great seal, anno 1628. The earldom of Tullibardine came back, however, to the Atholl line, upon the demise of Earl Patrick's son, JAMES, 4th earl, who outlived his male issue. William, 2nd Earl of Tullibardine, d. 1626, and was s. by his son,

JOHN MURRAY, who, on 6 Aug. 1628, was served heir to John, Earl of Atholl, which service was confirmed by patent, 17 Feb. 1628-9, and he thus became 1st Earl of Atholl of the house of Murray. His lordship m. Jane, dau. of Sir Duncan Campbell, of Glenurchy, and, dying in 1642, was s. by his son,

JOHN, 2nd Earl of Atholl, K.T., to whom reverted the earldom of Tullibardine, in 1670, upon the demise of his cousin, James, mentioned above. His lordship was created Marquess of Atholl, 17 Feb. 1676; he m. Lady Amelia-Sophia Stanley, only dau. of James, 7th Earl of Derby, by whom he had, with other children,

JOHN, his successor.

Charles, created Earl of Dunmore. (See that dignity.)

His lordship d. 1703, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 6th Earl of Tullibardine, 3rd Earl of Atholl, and 2nd Marquess of Atholl, who was created, on 30 July, 1703, Marquess of Tullibardine and DUKE OF ATHOLL, with remainder, in default of male issue, to the sons of his deceased father. His grace m. 1st, Catherine, dau. of William and Anne, Duke and Duchess of Hamilton, by whom he had issue, six sons and a dau.; of which,

John, Marquess of Tullibardine, d. unm. 1709.

William, who s. his brother as Marquess of Tullibardine, was one of the first that joined the Earl of Mar, in 1715, and proclaimed the Chevalier, for which act of high treason he was attainted by parliament. Escaping abroad, the marquess returned to Scotland, 1719, with the Spanish forces, joined the insurgents at Kintail, and was at the battle of Glenshiel. After the defeat there, his lordship escaped a second time to the Continent, where he lived in exile twenty-six years. He accompanied CHARLES-EDWARD to Scotland, landed with him at Boradale 25 July, 1745, unfurled the prince's standard at Glenfinnan, 19 Aug., and, supported by a man on each side, held the staff while the manifesto and commission of regency were read. After the decisive battle of Culloden he fled to the westward,

Upon the march he never could be prevailed upon to ride, but kept at the head of his regiment on foot in the highland dress. After the surrender of Preston, his lordship, being amongst the prisoners, was tried by a court-martial as a deserter, and sentenced to be shot; but he was reprieved, and d. s. p. 1720.

George, who was with his brother, the Marquess of Tullibardine, at Kintail, and was wounded at the battle of Glenshiel. Making his escape abroad, he was several years an officer in the Sardinian service, but, obtaining a pardon, he returned home. Joining CHARLES-EDWARD, in 1745, he was appointed lieut.-gen. of the prince's forces, acted as such at the battles of Preston, Falkirk, and Culloden, marched into England with them, and brought up the rear in their retreat thence. He was attainted by parliament, but made his escape, and was most graciously received by the Chevalier at Rome. His lordship m. Amelia, only surviving child and heiress of James Murray, of Glencarse and Strowan, and d. 1766, leaving three sons and two daus., viz.,

* KING EDWARD THE CONFESSOR had a royal palace at Brill, in Bucks, to which he occasionally retired for the pleasure of hunting in the forest of Bernwood. This forest, it is said, was much infested by a wild boar, which was slain by one Nigel, a huntsman, who presented the boar's head to the king, and, in reward, obtained a tract of land called Derehyde, where he erected a mansion-house, and named it, in memory of the transaction, Borstal. At the period of the conquest, Borstal was conferred upon William de Lisures, but it came back to the Nigel family temp. Richard I. (1190), when William Fitznigel was appointed forester of Bernwood, and had a grant of Borstal. From the Nigels it passed, in 1300, with their heiress, Joan Nigel, to her husband, Sir John de Handlo. Lineage.

The family of Touchet came into England with the Conqueror, and was then of considerable note. It is to be found in the Battle Abbey Roll, and in the chronicles of Normandy.

WILLIAM TOUCHET distinguished himself in the wars of Gascony and Scotland, temp. EDWARD I., and had summons to parliament as a BARON, from 29 Dec. 1209, to 3 Nov. 1306; but of his lordship Dugdale gives no further account. Contemporary with this Lord Touchet was

SIR THOMAS TOUCHET, who d. in the 23rd of EDW. III. leaving a son,

Sir John was s. by his son,

JOHN TOUCHET, who was summoned to parliament as Lord Audley, 21 Dec. 1405. His lordship left, with a dau., Elizabeth, m. to Sir John Baskerville, Knt. of Combe, (see BURKE'S Commoners, vol. i. p. 90,) a son, JAMES TOUCHET, the eldest son, obtained a new patent, 3 June, 1634, creating him Lord Audley and EARL OF CASTLEHAVEN. His lordship, during the civil wars of Ireland, commanded under the Duke of Ormonde, and in 1649, being chosen general of the Irish forces, acted against Cromwell and the parliamentarians. Upon the subjugation of the kingdom by the usurper, his lordship withdrew into France, whence he returned to England at the Restoration, and obtained a special act of parliament in 1678, restoring to him the place and precedence, as Lord Audley, enjoyed by his ancestors, but forfeited by his father, with remainder, in default of issue of his own body, to the heirs of his brother, Mervin Touchet, 3rd son of the late lord, (passing over George, a benedictine monk, his next brother,) and in default of issue of the said Mervin, to the daus. AYLMER, LORD, (Matthew Whitworth-Aylmer, G.C.B.,) Baron of Balrath, co. Lineage.

This family, and that of Aylmer, of Donadea Castle, derive from a common progenitor; namely,

RICHARD AYLMER, Esq. of Lyons, co. Kildare, one of the keepers of the peace of the cos. Dublin and Kildare in 1421, and sovereign of the town of Tassegard in 1432; from this Richard lineally descended Sir Gerald Aylmer, Knt., who settled at Donadea in the beginning of the 17th century, and founded that family, and also sprang

THE RT. HON. SIR GERALD AYLMER, Knt., (2nd son of Bart. Aylmer, Esq. of Lyons, and Margaret, dau. of Sir Christopher Chevers, of Macetown,) chief-justice of the court of Common Pleas in Ireland in 1535, and, jointly with Sir Thomas Cusack, chief-governor of that kingdom in 1552. GERALD-GEORGE, b. 26 May, 1830.

Sir Gerald is vice-lieut. of the co. Kildare.

Lineage.

The Aylmers deduce their descent from Athelmare, or Ailmer, Earl of Cornwall, who lived in the reign of ETHELRED; and their settlement in Ireland is fixed at some time in the 12th century. In the 10th of HENRY VI., A.D. 1421, we find Richard Aylmer, Esq. of Lyons, co. Kildare, one of the keepers of the peace for that co., as well as for the adjoining co. of Dublin; and in eleven years afterwards (1432) he is a subscriber, as sovereign of the town of Tassagard, to an indenture made to one John Staunton, and his heirs, of a waste plot of ground there, for the yearly consideration of one penny at Easter. In the reign of HENRY VIII., a member of the family, Sir Gerald Aylmer, Knt. of Dullardstown, co. Meath, 2nd son of Bartholomew Aylmer, Esq. of Lyons, by his wife, Margaret Chivers, rose to considerable eminence in the legal profession, and was constituted, in 1532, one of the justices of the court of Common Pleas in Ireland; from which he was removed to the presidency of the court of Exchequer; and, in 1535, he returned, as chief justice, to the former court. The king being disposed to promote him to the same rank in the King's Bench, the Earl of Shrewsbury opposed the judge's preferment, representing him as an ignorant man, and unfit for such an office. Whereupon Henry reproved the Lord Cromwell for recommending so improper a person; when Lord Cromwell entreated of his highness to discourse with Sir Gerald, and that he would then find himself misinformed: the king did so, and asking him the true reason of the decay of Ireland, Sir Gerald answered, "That it was because the estates men (who used to reside and defend their lands and countenance their tenants) did now generally dwell in England, and left Ireland a prey to the natives; but that if his highness would oblige them to residence, or seize their estates to his own use if they did not, he would soon find a reformation." The king, with thanks for his advice, assured him care should be taken of it in the next parliament; and the act of absentees was accordingly passed, 1536, whereby, among others, the Earl of Shrewsbury forfeited his lands.

The baronetcy of Ireland was conferred 25 Jan. 1621, in little more than a year after the institution of the order, by JAMES I., upon

Sir Edmund s. as 9th Baronet of Redgrave, PREMIER BART. OF ENGLAND, and 10th Bart. of Mildenhall, upon the decease of his father, 5 Sept. 1820.

Lineage.

Various conjectures have been hazarded as to the origin of the surname of BACON, but to little purpose. It matters nought, however; the antiquity of the family is beyond dispute; and there are few houses in the kingdom more distinguished by the production of great and eminent men. Besides Friar Bacon, the marvel of his day, Sir Nicholas Bacon, and the great Lord Bacon, there were five other extraordinary personages of the same family.

SIR NICHOLAS BACON, Knt., b. at Chiselhurst, in Kent, 1510, becoming eminent at the bar, succeeded Nich. Heath, Archbishop of York, at the accession of ELIZABETH, in the custody of the great seal, and was sworn of her majesty's privy council. The chief business of the first session of ELIZABETH's reign was the settlement of religion, and the management of that important affair was committed almost wholly to the lord keeper, who pursued therein his wise maxim, "Let us stay a little, that we have done the sooner." As a statesman, he was remarkable for a clear head and profound understanding. His great skill lay in balancing parties, and it is thought that the queen was indebted to him for that great secret of governing. Towards the latter end of his life he became so remarkable for corpulency, that his royal mistress used familiarly to observe, "that the lord keeper's soul lodged well." To himself his great size was very cumbersome, insomuch, that after walking from Westminster Hall to the Star Chamber, which was but a very little way, he was usually so greatly out of breath that the lawyers forbore speaking at the bar until he recovered himself, and gave them notice by knocking with his staff. Sir Nicholas m. 1st, Jane, dau. of William Fernley, Esq. of West Creting, co. Suffolk, by whom he had issue,

I. NICHOLAS, (Sir) his successor.

II. Nathaniel, (Sir) of Stiffkey, co. Norfolk, K.B., who became eminent as a painter, and some of his works are preserved at Culford, where he lived. He m. 1st, Anne, natural dau. of Sir Thomas Gresham, Knt., the celebrated founder of the ROYAL EXCHANGE; and 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of Sir George Hopton, Knt. By the former he left three daus. at his decease, his co-heirs, viz.,

- 1 Anne, m. Sir Roger Townshend, of Rainham, co. Norfolk, ancestor of the Lords Townshend, to whom she brought the Stiffkey estate.
- 2 Elizabeth, m. Sir Thomas Knyvet, of Ashwelthorp, co. Norfolk.
- 3 Winifred, m. Sir Robert Gawdy, of Claxton, co. Norfolk.

III. Edward, who m. Helen, dau. and heiress of Thomas Littell, Esq. of Shrubland Hall, co. Suffolk, and acquiring that estate, was designated therefrom. He was ancestor of the Bacons of Shrubland Hall, of Ipswich, and Earlham.

IV. Anne, m. to Sir Henry Wodehouse, of Waxham, co. Norfolk.

V. Jane, m. 1st, Sir Francis Windham, one of the justices of the Common Pleas; and 2ndly, Sir Robert Mansfield.

VI. Elizabeth, m. 1st, Sir Robert D'Oyley; 2ndly, Sir Henry Nevil; and 3rdly, Sir William Periam, lord chief baron of the Exchequer.

Sir Nicholas m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir Anthony Cooke, of Giddy Hall, co. Essex, and had two other sons, viz.,

Anthony, a man of very distinguished parts, and esteemed for his political knowledge, d. s. p. unm.

FRANCIS, b. 22 Jan. 1560, brought up to the bar, was appointed queen's counsel, and soon after the accession of JAMES I. honoured with knighthood. In 1613 he was constituted attorney-general and sworn of the privy council. In 1617 Sir Francis was made LORD KEEPER OF THE GREAT SEAL, and the next year he was entitled LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND. Within a few months afterwards he was elevated to the peerage, 11 July, 1618, in the dignity of Baron Verulam; and he was created, 27 Jan. 1627, VISCOUNT ST. ALBANS. His lordship was subsequently convicted, upon his own confession, of corruption in the exercise of his judicial functions, and sentenced to pay a fine of £40,000, to be imprisoned during the king's pleasure, and to be ever afterwards incapacitated from holding office under the crown. Having, in pursuance of this judgment, suffered a brief incarceration, and the fine being eventually remitted, he withdrew into retirement, and devoted the remainder of his life to the most splendid literary labours. He m. Alice, dau. and co-heir of Benedict Barnham, Esq., an alderman of London, but d. 9 April, 1626, without issue, when his honours became EXTINCT. The learned Bayle calls Lord St. Albans one of the greatest geniuses of his age; Voltaire styles him the father of experimental philosophy; and Walpole terms him the prophet of arts, which Newton was sent afterwards to reveal. The latter author adds: "It would be impertinent to the reader to enter into any account of this amazing genius or his works; both will be universally admired as long as science exists. As long as ingratitude and adulation are despicable, so long shall we lament the depravity of this great man's heart! Alas! that he, who could command immortal fame, should have stooped to the little ambition of power."

The Lord Keeper Bacon d. 20 Feb. 1579, and was s. by his eldest son,

I. SIR NICHOLAS BACON, Knt., who, at the demise of his father, held several manors and advowsons in the cos. of Norfolk and Suffolk from the crown. He was knighted by ELIZABETH in 1578, and was the first person advanced to the dignity of Bart., 22 May, 1611, upon the institution of that order. Sir Nicholas had, by his wife, Anne, dau. and heiress of Edmund Butts, Esq., to whom (who d. 1616) he was married fifty-two years, twelve children; of whom were (with three daus., ANNE, wife of Sir Robert Drury, Knt.; DOROTHY, the wife, 1st, of Sir Bassingbourn Gawdy, Knt., and 2ndly, of Philip Colby, Esq.; and JEMIMA, who m. 1st, Sir William Waldegrave, Knt., and 2ndly, Henry Killigrew, Esq.),

I. EDMUND, his successor.

II. ROBERT, successor to his brother.

III. BUTTS, of Mildenhall, in Suffolk, who was created a Bart. 29 July, 1627, m. Dorothea, dau. of Sir Henry Warner, of Mildenhall, and widow of Robert Jermyn, Esq., and was s. in 1661 by his only surviving son,

SIR HENRY BACON. This gentleman removed to Herringfleet, in Suffolk, where his father had built a seat. He m. Barbara, dau. of William Gooch, Esq. of Mettingham, in that county, and was s. by his only son,

Lineage.

The ancestors of this noble family are recorded in Domesday-Book as holders of Bagot's Bromley, co. Stafford, under Robert de Stafford, founder of the old feudal house of Stafford, which terminated some time in the reign of RICHARD I. in an heir female, MILICENT DE STAFFORD, who conveyed the feudal barony to her husband, HERVEY DE BAGOT, (a younger branch of the family of which we are about to treat.) Their son HERVEY assumed the surname of Stafford, and was progenitor of the succeeding Barons and Earls of Stafford, and Dukes of Buckingham. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Of this Hervey the following account is given in "Memorials of the Bagot Family," compiled in 1823, by the present Lord Bagot.

"It has long appeared a matter of doubt who the Hervey Bagot was, that, in the reign of RICHARD I., m. Milicent de Stafford, sister and sole heir to Robert, the last Baron Stafford. Hervey Bagot is always styled a younger son of the house of Bagot, but whether of Bagot's Bromley, (the head branch of the family,) or of Hyde, (another branch,) has seemed doubtful to many antiquarians. Erdeswick thinks he was of Bagot's Bromley; Mr. Chetwynd endeavours to prove that he was of Hyde; and Sir William Dugdale only styles him 'a gentleman of ancient family in those parts.' After the most attentive and repeated examination of every document bearing upon the subject of this Hervey Bagot's descent, it is evident, almost to demonstration, that he must have been the brother of Simon Bagot, of Bromley; and consequently, like him, in the third generation from the Bagot who held that manor at the time of the Domesday survey."

The pedigree of the family, in the possession of the family, attested by Sir William Dugdale and Gregory King, of the College of Arms, "and supported by a most extraordinary mass of original deeds and other family muniments," according to the memorial already quoted, deduces the lineal descent from Bagot, Lord of Bromley, who held the lands from Robert de Stafford, as mentioned in Domesday-Book, to

SIR RALPH BAGOT, Knt., who, in the time of EDW. III., m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Richard de Blithfield, of a very ancient family seated on a manor of that name, within two miles of his residence at Bagot's Bromley. With this heiress, Sir Ralph became possessed of the estates at Blithfield and Littlehay, in Colton, which had been in the lady's family from the conquest; and he removed, most probably, from his own seat to that of Blithfield, where his descendants continue to reside. From this Sir Ralph the pedigree carries on the line to

HERVEY BAGOT, Esq., (eldest surviving son and heir of Walter Bagot, Esq. of Blithfield and Bagot's Bromley, co. Stafford, and Elizabeth, his wife, dau. of Roger Cave, Esq.,) b. 8 Feb. 1590, and created a Bart. 30 May, 1627, the year after that in which he had served the office of sheriff for the co. Stafford. This gentleman suffered much during the usurpation for his attachment to the royal cause. He m. twice, and was s. at his decease, Dec. 1660, by his eldest son, (by Katherine, dau. of Humphrey Adderley, Esq. of Weddington, co. Warwick,)

He d. 30 May, 1673, and was s. by the third and eldest surviving son,

SIR WALTER, who represented the co. Stafford in seven parliaments. He m. Jane, dau. and sole heir of Charles Salusbury, Esq. of Bachymbydd, co. Denbigh, and dying 15 Feb. 1704, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR EDWARD, b. 21 Jan. 1673, M.P. for the co. Stafford, who m. Frances, dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Wagstaffe, Knt. of Tachbrooke, co. Warwick, and, dying 1712, was s. by his only surviving son,

SIR WALTER-WAGSTAFFE, LL.D., b. 3 Aug. 1702; representative successively for the borough of Newcastle-under-Line, the co. Stafford, and the University of Oxford.

* For an account of the DENNISTOUNS, of Dennistoun, see BURKE's History of the Commoners.

Marquess of Ailsa, by whom he has issue, three sons and three daus.

Lineage.

The family of Baird is of remote antiquity in North Britain. There is a tradition relating to it which states, that WILLIAM THE LION, while hunting in one of the south-west counties, happening to straggle from his attendants, was alarmed by the approach of a wild boar, and calling out for assistance, a gentleman of the name of Baird, who had followed the king, came up, and had the good fortune to slay the object of the monarch's alarm; for this signal service, WILLIAM conferred upon his deliverer large grants of land, and assigned him for his coat of arms, a boar passant, and for his motto, "Dominus fecit;" which arms are to be seen upon an ancient monument of the Bairds of Auchmedden, in the church-yard of Banff.

The progenitor of the present, or Auchmedden, branch of the Bairds was

GEORGE BAIRD, of Auchmedden, co. Aberdeen, chief of the clan, who was living in 1568, and from whom lineally descended,

JAMES BAIRD, 2nd son of Auchmedden, who was a commissary of the Ecclesiastical court in the time of CHARLES I. He had two sons,

I. JOHN, (Sir) a lord of session, under the title of Lord Newbyth, father of

WILLIAM, created a Bart. of Nova Scotia in 1695, whose son and successor,

JOHN, (Sir) 2nd bart., d. s. p. 1746, when the title expired. He had entailed his estates upon his cousin, Wm. Baird.

II. Robert, (Sir) of Saughton Hall.

The younger son of James Baird,

SIR ROBERT BAIRD, of Soughton Hall, in Mid-Lothian, had, with other issue, JAMES, his successor, created a Bart. of Nova Scotia in 1695-6, and WILLIAM BAIRD, a merchant, and one of the baillies of Edinburgh, who was father of

The 2nd in the above list, but the 5th son,

I. DAVID BAIRD, Esq., having repeatedly distinguished himself in arms, but particularly at Seringapatam, where he headed the storming party, and led them to victory, was created a Bart., April, 1809, with remainder, in default of male issue, to his eldest brother, Robert Baird, Esq. of Newbyth, co. Haddington. Sir David Baird was commander-in-chief at the capture of the Cape of Good Hope;

and his achievements in Egypt procured him the order of the Bath from his own sovereign, and the insignia of the Crescent from the Ottoman emperor. At the bombardment of Copenhagen he was wounded in the shoulder; and in the battle of Corunna lost an arm, soon after the fall of the gallant and lamented Sir John Moore. Sir David attained the rank of gen. in the army, and was col. of the 24th foot. He m. 4 Aug. 1810, Miss Preston Campbell, of Fern Tower, and Locklane, co. - II. James, b. 25 Aug. 1815, a military officer.
- III. Charles-Hugh, b. 11 Nov. 1816, also in the army.
- IV. Colin, b. 6 Dec. 1819.

His lordship is the acknowledged chief of the ancient house of Lindsay.

Lineage.

Sir William Dugdale mentions several considerable families of Lindsay in England, in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, observing, that the surname was first assumed by the proprietors of the lands and manor of Lindsai, co. Essex. It is the opinion of Scotch antiquaries, that one of these Lindsays, coming with KING MALCOLM CANMORE into Scotland, and settling there, obtained the lands of Wachopdale, and other possessions, from the crown, and founded the family of Lindsay beyond the Tweed. It is certain that the Lindsays began to be of note in Scotland temp. ALEXANDER I. (the son of MALCOLM), who succeeded to the throne in 1107. From this era our limits compel us to pass to the close of the 14th century, when,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, 7th feudal Lord of Crawford and Glenesk, was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 21 April, 1398, as EARL OF CRAWFORD. "This Sir David Lindsay acted the principal part in the celebrated tournament at London Bridge, in May, 1390. John Lord Welles, ambassador from RICHARD II. to Scotland, at a solemn banquet, where the Scots and English were discoursing of deeds of arms, said, 'Let words have no place; if you know not the chivalry and valiant deeds of Englishmen, appoint me a day and place, where you list, and you shall have experience.' Whereupon, Sir David Lindsay assenting, Lord Welles selected London Bridge as the place for a trial of skill. Lindsay repaired to London with a gallant train of thirty persons; and, on the day appointed, appeared in the lists against Lord Welles. At the sound of trumpet they encountered each other, upon their barbed horses, with square grounden spears. In this adventure, Lindsay sat so strong that, notwithstanding Lord Welles' spear was broken upon his helmet and visage, he stirred not, insomuch that the spectators cried out that, contrary to the laws of arms, he was bound to his saddle. Whereupon he dismounted, got on his horse again without assistance, and, in the third course, threw Lord Welles out of his saddle to the ground. Then dismounting, he supported his adversary, and, with great humanity, visited him every day, till he recovered the effects of the fall." His lordship m. Catharine Stuart, 5th dau. of ROBERT II., and was s. at his decease, 1412, by his eldest son,

ALEXANDER, 2nd Earl of Crawford, who m. Mariota, dau. and heiress of David Dunbar, of Cockburn, and granddaughter of George, Earl of March, and had six sons, of whom, ALEXANDER, the 2nd, but eldest surviving, succeeded to the EARLDOM OF CRAWFORD, and the next,

WALTER LINDSAY, styled of Kinblethmont, had charters of the baronies of Arde and Bewfort in 1459, and of the barony of Panbride in 1463. He m. 1st, Sophia, dau. of Livingston, of Saltcoates, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Isabel, dau. of William, Lord Livingston, and had an only son, his successor,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, of Edzell and Bewfort, who was s. 1527, by his grandson,

SIR DAVID LINDSAY, of Edzell and Glenesk, (eldest son of Walter Lindsay, who fell at Flodden, 9 Sept. 1513.) To this gentleman,* David, 7th Earl of Crawford, made an assignment of his title and estates, with the concurrence of the crown; and, upon the decease of that nobleman, in 1542, Sir David became 8th Earl of Crawford. He retained the dignity, however, for life only; and it returned at his death to the grandson of his predecessor. His lordship m. 1st, Janet, dau. of Andrew, 3rd Lord Gray, and relict of Alexander Blair, of Balthyock, and of Thomas, 4th Lord Lovat, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir John Campbell, of Calder, and had,

DAVID, (SIR) his successor, whose great great-grandson, and lineal descendant,

JOHN LINDSAY, of Edzell, upon the extinction of the male line of David, 9th earl of Crawford, by the death of George, Lord Spynie,† in 1672, becoming chief of the Lindsays, and entitled by the terms upon which his ancestor, David, 8th Earl of Crawford, restored that dignity to David, grandson of the 7th earl, to the EARLDOM OF CRAWFORD, preferred his claim to parliament, but unsuccessfully. (The earldom of Crawford, and the estates of that branch of the Lindsays, was conferred, by act of parliament, in 1644, after the forfeiture of Ludovic, 14th earl, upon John, 10th Lord Lindsay, of Byers, afterwards Earl of Crawford and Lindsay, lord high treasurer of Scotland.) John Lindsay of Edzell's male line ceased with his grandson, David Lindsay, in 1744, and the representation of the Lindsays then devolved upon the descendant of John Lindsay, David, 8th Lord Crawford's 2nd son, of whom we are about more particularly to treat.

* Alexander, Master of Crawford, and his brother, John Lindsay, having seized, fettered, and imprisoned their father, DAVID, 7th Earl of Crawford, were disinherited in consequence by his lordship, who assigned by deed, dated 20 Dec. 1541, with the approbation of the crown, his honours and estates to his cousin, and next male heir after these sons, Sir David Lindsay, of Edzell (mentioned above); and the said David inherited at the earl's decease, in 1542, (the Master of Crawford and his brother having previously died, the latter issueless,) but being of a generous disposition, he re-conveyed the titles and estates to David Lindsay, son of the said Master of Crawford, but with the express provision, that, failing heirs male of this David's body, the estate and honours of Crawford should descend to the heirs male of Edzell. He likewise reserved to himself the title for life, with sufficient property to maintain his rank. Upon the demise, then, of Ludovic, 14th Earl of Crawford, the honours &c. should certainly have descended to the ancestor of Lord Balcarres.

† SIR ALEXANDER LINDSAY, 4th son of David, 9th Earl of Crawford, was created by JAMES VI. a peer of parliament, by the title of LORD SPYNIE. His lordship was s. by his son,

ALEXANDER, 2nd Lord Spynie, who d. 1645, and was s. by his only surviving son,

GEORGE, 3rd Lord Spynie. At the death of Ludovic, 14th Earl of Crawford, the representation of the family of Lindsay devolved upon this nobleman, and upon his decease, in 1672, John Lindsay, of Edzell, ancestor of the Lords Balcarres, became (as in the text) head of the ancient house of Lindsay. On the title of Spynie, the lords of session, in their return to the House of Peers, 1740, observed, that the patent of creation has not been found in the records, nor has any person sat in parliament under that title since 1689, neither has any person claimed a vote in virtue thereof at any election since the union.

BARNEWALL.

BARNEWALL, SIR REGINALD-AYLMER-JOHN-DE-BARNEVAL, of Crickstown Castle, co. Meath; b. in 1838; s. his father, as 8th baronet, at his birth.

Lineage.

This family, whose surname was anciently written "De Barneval," "Bernevale," and "Barnewall," deduces its lineage from remote antiquity, and claims, among its earliest progenitors, personages of the most eminent renown. It is the parent stock whence the noble houses of Kingsland and Trimlestown branched, and the name of its patriarch is to be found, with the other companions in arms of the Conqueror, in the Roll of Battle Abbey. In Ireland, the Barnewalls come under the denomination of "Strongbowians," having established themselves there in 1172, under the banner of Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke.

SIR MICHAEL DE BERNEVAL, Knt., the first settler, joined the English expedition, with three armed ships, and effected a descent upon Beerhaven, co. Cork, previously to the landing of his chief, Earl Strongbow, in Leinster. Sir Michael is mentioned in the records at the Tower of London as one of the leading captains in the enterprise; and in the reigns of HENRY II. and of RICHARD I. he was lord, by tenure, of Beerhaven and Bantry. From this gallant and successful soldier, we pass to,

SIR ULPHRAM DE BERNEVALE, Knt., the tenth in descent, first possessor of Crickstown Castle and estate, and the founder of what is to this day termed, the "Crickstown branch" of the family. The great grandson of this Sir Ulphram,

ULPHRAM DE BARNEVAL, (fourth of the same Christian name,) m. a dau. of the Lord Furnival, and left three sons,

Christopher, (Sir) father of the 1st Lord Trimlestown.

John, ancestor of the Viscounts Kingsland.

Barnaby, (Sir) an eminent lawyer, who became lord-chief-baron of the Exchequer.

The eldest son,

SIR CRISTOPHER BARNEWALL (as the name began then to be spelt,) succeeded to the patrimonial estate of Crickstown; and was, in 1445, and 1446, chief-justice of the court of King's Bench, and lord high-treasurer of Ireland. He m. Matilda, dau. of Sir — Drake, of Drakerath, and had two sons; the younger,

Robert, was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 4 March, 1461, as Baron Trimlestown.

While the elder,

SIR NICHOLAS BARNEWALL, s. his father, and, having been brought up to the profession of the law, was appointed, in consideration of his good and faithful services to the house of York, during the war of the Roses, chief-justice of the court of Common Pleas, in Ireland, for life, by patent, dated 1 Aug. 1461. He m. Ismay, dau. of Sir John Serjeant, of Castleknock, near Dublin, and was s. by his eldest son,

CHRISTOPHER BARNEWALL, of Crickstown; who m. Ellen, dau. of Peter, Lord Dunboyne, and from him we pass to his descendant,

I. SIR PATRICK BARNEWALL, Knt. of Crickstown Castle, (twelfth in lineal descent from the first possessor of that estate, and the twenty-first from his Anglo-Norman ancestor, who had settled in Ireland, temp. HENRY II.,) who was created a BARONET OF IRELAND, 22 Feb. 1622. He m. Cecilia le Fleming, dau. of William, Lord of Slane; and had, with other children,

RICHARD, his successor.

John, (Sir) a distinguished lawyer, and one of the barons of the Exchequer in 1688. Sir John m. Thomazine, dau. of Anthony Viscount Tarah, and left an only dau., Mary, m. to Lord Trimlestown.

Michael, ancestor of the present bart.

Sir Patrick d. 21 June, 1624, and was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR RICHARD, b. 21 Dec. 1602. This gentleman suffered severely during the Cromwellian usurpation and despotism; and of the extensive possessions wrested from him by the ruthless tyrant he obtained restitution, after the re-establishment of the monarchy, of his castle, and 2000 acres of land only adjoining thereto. Sir Richard m. Anne, dau. of Lawrence Dowdall, Esq. of Athlumney, co. Meath, and left,

PATRICK, his successor,

John, ancestor to the 5th bart.

He d. soon after the Restoration, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR PATRICK, M.P. for the co. Meath, in 1689 and 1690. This gentleman inherited, in virtue of the act of limitation, the mansion of Crickstown, and the 2000 acres of land appending thereto; he enjoyed also a pension from the crown of £150 per annum. Sir Patrick m. Frances, dau. of the Hon. Richard Butler, of Kilcash, co. Tipperary, and grand-dau. of Walter, 11th Earl of Ormonde, and was s. at his decease by his only son,

IV. SIR GEORGE, who d. without issue, 22 Oct. 1735, when his estates passed to his three sisters, as co-heiresses; and thus the male branch of the family was deprived of the castle and manor of Crickstown, of which it had been in possession uninterruptedly for fifteen generations. The baronetcy devolved upon the next male heir,

V. SIR GEORGE, (grandson of John Barnewall, 2nd son of Sir Richard, the 2nd bart.) This gentleman, upon the demise of his kinsman, returned to Ireland from Germany, where he had been residing, and, after establishing his right, retired again to the Continent, 1744, where he d. without issue.

From the period of the decease of Sir George, the baronetcy remained dormant, until revived, Nov. 1821, in favour of the late SIR ROBERT BARNEWALL, by a full recognition of his right by the College of Arms in Ireland.

The immediate line of this gentleman we shall now trace.

Lineage.

This family, formerly bearing the surname of SHUTE, is of Norman origin, and while the Duchy was an appendage of the crown of England, the ruins of Shute Castle, their Normanic possession, were still to be seen: there were several monuments besides, throughout the principality, commemorative of the family.

JOHN SHUTE, Esq., barrister-at-law, (only surviving son of Benjamin Shute, Esq.,) inherited, by will, although unallied, and but slightly known, to the testator, the estate of John Wildman, Esq. of Becket, co. Berks; Mr. Wildman declaring, that the only reason he had for making Mr. Shute his heir was, that he considered him the most worthy of all his acquaintance of adoption, after the manner of the Romans, a mode of settling property which he had always approved. In a few years afterwards, Mr. Shute obtained another property by settlement,—that of Francis Barrington, Esq. of Tofts, co. Essex, who had m. his cousin, Elizabeth, dau. of Samuel Shute, sheriff of London, and d. without issue. In pursuance of this settlement, Mr. Shute assumed, by act of parliament, the surname and arms of "Barrington." He was returned twice to parliament for Berwick-upon-Tweed; but, on the last return, 1722, the Commons, taking into consideration the Harbrough lottery, came to a resolution that the honourable member had promoted and carried on that fraudulent undertaking, and therefore expelled him the House, 15 Feb. 1722. He had previously been elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 1 July, 1720, by the titles of *Baron Barrington, of Newcastle, co. Dublin, and Viscount Barrington, of Ardglass, co. BASSET, BARONESS, (Frances Basset,) of Stratton, Cornwall, b. 1 May, 1781, inherited the peerage at the decease of her father, Francis, Lord De Dunstanville and Basset, 5 Feb. 1835.

Lineage.

Immediately after the Norman conquest, arose into power and importance, especially in the midland counties, the great baronial family of Basset, which gave a chief justice to England in the reign of HENRY I., in the person of Ralph Basset, from whom sprang the Lords Basset of Drayton, the Lords Basset of Haddington, &c. (See BURKE's Extinct and Dormant Peerage.) About the middle of the 12th century, the Bassets of Cornwall obtained the estate of Tehidy, by marriage with the heiress of the great house of De Dunstanville ; from that period they appear to have enjoyed considerable wealth and influence until the civil wars, when we find three brothers of the Bassets all eminently distinguished in the royal cause, namely,

Sir Francis Basset, sheriff of Cornwall.

Sir Thomas Basset, } major-generals in the royal army.
Sir Arthur Basset, }

Sir Francis Basset, the sheriff, was with the king at Leswithiel, when Essex's army surrendered ; and his majesty, Sir Francis relates, in a letter to his wife, then said to him, "I now leave, Mr. Sheriff, the county of Cornwall to your protection." Owing, however, to the large sums of money disbursed in this unhappy struggle, the family estate became considerably reduced ; but it was at length retrieved by the marriages of the great-grandfather and grandfather of the present peeress with heiresses. His grace s. to the honours, as 7th duke, at the decease of his father, 23 Nov. 1835.

Lineage.

This family deduces, illegitimately, from a branch of the house of Plantagenet, being thus lineally descended from JOHN OF GAUNT, Duke of Lancaster, (son of EDWARD III.,) who caused all his natural children, (afterwards legitimized to all intents but that of succession to the crown,*) by Catherine Swinford, dau. of Sir Payn Roet, alias Guyn, king of arms, and widow of Sir Otes Swinford, Knt., (to whom he was eventually married,) to be called Beaufort, from the castle of that name, in the co. Anjou, the place of their nativity; which castle came, in the year 1276, to the house of Lancaster, by the marriage of Blanche, dau. of Robert, the 1st Count of Artois, and widow of HENRY I., King of Navarre, with Edmund, surnamed Crouchback, Earl of Lancaster, second son of HENRY III. of England. Of the three sons of John of Gaunt, born before marriage, of Catherine Swinford,

HENRY, the 2nd son, was consecrated Bishop of Winchester in 1405. He was the celebrated CARDINAL BEAUFORT, LORD CHANCELLOR OF ENGLAND.

Thomas, the youngest son, was created Earl of Dorset and Duke of Exeter, but left no issue at his decease, in 1427.

The eldest son,

SIR JOHN BEAUFORT, was created Earl of Somerset in 1396, and in two years afterwards, Marquess of Dorset, which dignity he subsequently resigned, and was created Marquess of Somerset; but when constituted lord chamberlain, on the accession of HENRY IV., he is styled EARL OF SOMERSET only. He was a K.G., and captain of Calais. From this nobleman we pass to his descendant,

HENRY, Duke of Somerset, K.G., who fell into the hands of the Yorkists at the battle of Hexham, and was beheaded, 3 April, 1463, leaving an illegitimate son, by Joan Hill,

CHARLES SOMERSET, of whom presently.

He was s. in his honours by his brother,

EDMUND, Duke of Somerset, who shared a similar fate, 7 May, 1471; and dying issueless, as did his younger brother, John, the male line of JOHN OF GAUNT terminated, as well the descendants of Catherine Swinford, as of his first wife, Blanche, mother of HENRY IV.

CHARLES SOMERSET, mentioned above as the illegitimate son of Henry Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, being a person of extraordinary endowments, fulfilled several of the most important diplomatic missions; and was subsequently created a knight banneret, made a knight of the Garter, and appointed captain of the guards, A.D. 1496. Sir Charles obtained in marriage Elizabeth, only dau. and heiress of William Herbert, Earl of Huntingdon, Lord Herbert of Ragland, Chepstow, and Gower; in whose right he assumed the title of Lord Herbert, and was summoned to parliament as such, in the first year of HENRY VIII. His lordship was constituted lord chamberlain for life, as a reward for the distinguished part he had in the taking of Therrouenne and Tourney, and was created Earl of Worcester, 2 Feb. 1513-4. The earl had two wives, beside the heiress of Huntingdon; namely, Elizabeth, dau. of Thomas West, Lord de la Warr, by whom he had several children;

* It has recently been discovered, that in the original patent of legitimacy to the Beauforts (which being ratified by parliament, parliament alone could alter) the exclusion from the inheritance of the crown does not occur; the words "excepta dignitate regali" were inserted by HENRY IV., in his confirmation ten years afterwards.

and Eleanor, dau. of Sir Edward Sutton, Lord Dudley. His lordship d. 15 April, 1526, and was s. by the only son of his first marriage,

HENRY, 2nd Earl of Worcester, who had received the honour of knighthood, during the French campaign, from Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Anthony Browne, standard-bearer to HENRY VII.; and dying 26 Nov. 1549, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 3rd earl, K.G. This nobleman was sent into France, in 1573, with a font of pure gold, for the baptismal ceremony of a dau. of CHARLES IX. of that kingdom, at which he was to stand, in the Queen of England's stead, as one of the sponsors. His lordship m. Christian, dau. of Edward North, Lord North, of Cathlodge; and dying 21 Feb. 1589, was s. by his only son,

EDWARD, 4th earl, K.G. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Francis, Earl of Huntingdon, and had several children, of whom, Thomas, the third son, was made knt. of the Bath, 1604-5, and created, 8 Dec. 1626, Viscount Somerset, of Cashel, co. Tipperary. The earl d. 3 March, 1627-8, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

HENRY, 5th earl, who had been summoned, in the lifetime of his father, to the first parliament of JAMES I. This nobleman took a decided part in favour of CHARLES I., and maintained his castle of Ragland, with a garrison of 800 men, without levying any contributions upon the country, from 1642 to 1646, and only surrendered it, eventually, to Sir Thomas Fairfax, on most honourable conditions. This castle was amongst the last places in England from whose battlements the royal banner bade defiance to treason; but, after its capitulation, it was demolished, and the timber in the surrounding parks cut down and sold by the committee of sequestration, occasioning a loss to the noble proprietor, moderately estimated at £100,000. The earl was advanced to the dignity of MARQUESS OF WORCESTER, 2 Nov. 1642. He m. Anne, only child of John, Lord Russel; and dying in 1646, was s. by his eldest son,

EDWARD, 2nd marquess. This nobleman, like his father, attaching himself zealously to the royal cause, was appointed, by CHARLES I., lord-lieut. of North Wales, and addressed by his majesty as Earl of Glamorgan, until he succeeded to his heritable honours. KING CHARLES is charged with deputing this lord ("whose religion," says Lord Clarendon, "was of that sort of catholics the people rendered then odious, by accusing to be most Jesuited") to negotiate with the Irish rebel catholics, and to bring over a great body of them for the king's service. The parliament complained; the king disavowed the earl; but this mysterious affair has been treated at great length by Doctor Birch, and the doctor strenuously asserts that the king was privy to the negotiation. The Marquess of Worcester left behind him a literary work, entitled, "A century of the names and scantlings of such inventions as at present I can call to mind to have tried and perfected, which (my former notes being lost) I have, at the instance of a powerful friend, endeavoured now, in the year 1655, to set these down in such a way as may sufficiently instruct me to put any of them to practice." First printed in 1663. In this work, the power and application of the steam-engine is distinctly described. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir William Dormer, Knt., and had HENRY, Lord Herbert, and two daus., Anne, m. to Henry Howard, son of the Earl of Arundel, and Elizabeth, Marchioness of Powis. He espoused 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Henry O'Brien, Earl of Thomond, but by that lady had no surviving issue. He d. 3 April, 1667, and was s. by his son,

HENRY, 3rd marquess, who was created DUKE OF BEAUFORT, 2 Dec. 1682. His grace, refusing to subscribe to the oaths of allegiance to WILLIAM III. lived in retirement after the accession of that monarch. He m. Mary, dau. of Arthur, Lord Capel, and widow of Henry, Lord Beauchamp, by whom he had five sons and four daus.; of the former, the eldest,

CHARLES, Marquess of Worcester, m. Rebecca, dau. of Sir Josiah Child, of Wanstead, co. Essex, and sister of Richard, Earl Tilney, and had surviving issue,

2 Henrietta, m. 1713, to Charles, Duke of Grafton. His lordship d. in the life-time of his father, 13 July, 1698, from the effects of a fall in jumping from his carriage.

The duke d. 21 Jan. 1699, and was s. by his grandson,

HENRY, 2nd duke, K.G., b. 2 April, 1684. His grace m. 1st, 1702, Mary, only dau. of Charles Sackville, Earl of Dorset, but had no surviving issue. He espoused 2ndly, 1707, Rachel, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Baptist Noel, Earl of Gainsborough, by whom he had two sons, HENRY and CHARLES-NOEL. The duke m. 3rdly, Mary, youngest dau. of Peregrine Osborne, Duke of Leeds; without issue. His grace d. 24 May, 1714, and was s. by his elder son, BEAUMONT.

BEAUMONT, SIR GEORGE-HOWLAND - WILLOUGHBY, of Stoughton Grange, co. Leicester; b. 16 Dec. 1799; s. to the title, as 7th bart., upon the demise of his cousin, 7 Feb. 1827; m. 16 June, 1825, Mary-Anne, eldest dau. of the Most Rev. William Howley, D.D., Archbishop of Canterbury, and by

GEORGE-HOWLAND, b. 12 Sept. 1828.

William-Beresford, b. 31 March, 1831.

Constance-Mary.

Lineage.

The surname of this very ancient family is derived from the city of BEAUMONT, in France, which formerly gave title to a succession of viscounts, whose heiress, AGNES DE BEAUMONT, conveyed the seignieury to her husband LOUIS, 2nd son of CHARLES, King of Jerusalem and Sicily, and nephew of LOUIS IX. of France. The 4th son of this lady,

HENRY DE BEAUMONT, came into England, according to general supposition, at the instance of ELEANOR, wife of EDWARD I., and obtained high and confidential employment from the crown, with extensive territorial grants. This eminent person, who was brother of Isabel, wife of John, Lord Vesci, of Alnewicke, is styled in our records, "consanguinius regis;" and, amongst his other offices, he was made King of the Isle of Man for life, by the same tenure that its lords usually held it under the Kings of Scotland. He was likewise summoned to parliament as a baron, 4 March, 1309, and sworn of the privy council. His lordship m. Alice, dau. and at length heir of Alexander Comin, Earl of Bogan, in whose right he became constable of Scotland, and obtained the manor of Whitwicke, in Leicestershire, where he was licensed to convert the manor house into a castle. His lordship m. the Lady Alianore Plantagenet, dau. of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, and great-grandau. of HENRY III., by whom he had an only child, HENRY, born in Brabant, during her ladyship's attendance upon Philippa, queen consort of EDWARD III.; in consideration of which circumstance, Lord Beaumont procured the king's special letters patent, declaring "that notwithstanding the said HENRY was begotten and born in foreign parts, nevertheless, in regard it was by reason of his and his lady's attendance on the queen, he should be reputed a lawful heir, and inherit his lands in England, as if he had been born there." Lord Beaumont d. 1342, and was s. by the said

HENRY DE BEAUMONT, 3rd lord, who m. the Lady Margaret de Vere, dau. of John, Earl of Oxford, and dying in 1368, was s. by his only child,

Lineage.

Amongst the British noblesse there is not a more illustrious house than that of Russell; the name is interwoven with the brightest achievements in the records of England, and it has been borne, at different periods, by statesmen, warriors, and patriots, as sage, as gallant, and as disinterested, as ever guided her councils, unfurled her banners, or bled for her freedom.

SIR RALPH RUSSELL, Knt.,* son and heir of John Russell, constable of Corfe Castle, anno 1221; m. Isabel, one of the daus. and co-heirs of James Newmarsh, feudal Baron of Newmarsh and Derham, co. Dorset, and left, with other issue,

SIR WILLIAM RUSSELL, of Kingston-Russell, Dorsetshire, M.P., in the 1st of EDWARD II., for the co. of Southampton; who m. 1st, Eleanor, only dau. and heiress of Thomas de Aula, Lord of Yaverland; and 2ndly, Jane, dau. and co-heir of Robert Peverel. He d. in 1311, and was s. by his son, (by his 2nd wife,)

SIR THEOBALD RUSSELL, who m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. of Ralph de Gorges, Baron Gorges, and heir of her brother, Ralph Gorges, by whom he had a son, RALPH, who assumed his maternal surname and arms of GORGES, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Sir Theobald espoused, 2ndly, Eleanor, dau. of John de la Tour, of Berwick, co. Dorset, by whom he was father of

WILLIAM RUSSELL, whose great-grandson,

JOHN RUSSELL, of Kingston-Russell, m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heiress of John Hering, and was father of

SIR JOHN RUSSELL, Knt., speaker of the House of Commons, in the 2nd and 10th of HENRY VI. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of John Froxmere, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES RUSSELL, who m. Alice, dau. and heiress of John Wyse, Esq., and dying in the 1st year of HENRY VIII., left two sons, the elder of whom,

JOHN RUSSELL, said to be one of the most accomplished gentlemen of his time, resided at Berwick, about four miles from Bridport, co. Dorset, and obtained a favourable introduction to court through one of those unexpected incidents which may be attributed solely to good fortune. In the 21st of HENRY VII. (1506), the Archduke PHILIP OF AUSTRIA, only son of the Emperor MAXIMILIAN I., and husband of Johanna, dau. of FERDINAND and ISABEL, King and Queen of Castile and Aragon, having encountered a violent hurricane in his passage from Flanders to Spain, was driven into Weymouth, where he landed, and was hospitably received by Sir Thomas Trenchard, Knt., a gentleman of rank in the neighbourhood. Sir Thomas immediately apprized the court of the circumstance, and in the interim, while waiting for instructions what course to adopt, invited his first cousin,† Mr. Russell, then recently returned from his travels, to wait upon the prince. His imperial highness, fascinated by Mr. Russell's companionable qualities, desired that he should accompany him to Windsor, whither the king had invited his highness to repair; on the journey we are informed that the archduke became still more pleased with his attendant's "learned discourse and generous deportment," and recommended him strongly to the king. Mr. Russell was, in consequence, taken immediately into royal favour, and appointed one of the gentlemen of the privy chamber. Becoming subsequently a favourite of HENRY VIII., and a companion of that monarch in his French wars, Mr. Russell was appointed to several high and confidential offices, and finally elevated to the peerage, 9 March, 1538-9, in the dignity of Lord Russell Baron Russell, of Cheyneys, co. Buckingham. In the next year, 1540, when the great monasteries were dissolved, his lordship obtained a grant to himself, and his wife, and their heirs, of the site of the Abbey of Tavistock, and of extensive possessions belonging thereto. After the accession of EDWARD VI., Lord Russell had a grant of the monastery of Woburn, and was created EARL OF BEDFORD, 9 Jan. 1550. In MARY'S time, the same courtly sunshine continuing, his lordship obtained a new patent, dated 3 Nov. 1553, for the office of lord privy seal, and was appointed ambassador to Spain, to conduct her majesty's royal consort, PHILIP II., into England. The earl m. Anne, dau. and heiress of Guy

FRANCIS, 2nd earl, K.G.; b. 1528. This nobleman, in the 1st of ELIZABETH, was sworn of the privy council, and was subsequently a person of great eminence during her majesty's reign. His lordship m. 1st, Margaret, dau. of Sir John St. John, and sister of Oliver, Lord St. John of Bletshoe, and had,

In 1580, Mr. Russell first commanded 150 horse there, which the clergy of England had raised, for the reduction of the queen's rebellious subjects; and, for his gallantry, received the honour of knighthood. Soon after this, we find him in the Low Countries, under Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester. In 1594, Sir William was constituted lord deputy of Ireland, and for the two next years he was engaged against the rebel O'Maden. On the accession of JAMES I., he was elevated to the peerage, 21 July, 1603, as BARON RUSSELL of Thornhaugh, co. Northampton. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Long, Esq. of Shengay, co. EDWARD RUSSELL, "who," says Burnet, "had been bred at sea, and was bed-chamberman to the king, (JAMES II.) when Duke of York; but, upon Lord Russell's death, retired from court. He was a man of much honour, and great courage. He had good principles, and was firm to them." Strenuously supporting the Revolution, he obtained high naval commands from the new king, and distinguished himself as one of the most eminent naval heroes of the period. He was rewarded with a peerage, 7 May, 1697, as Baron Shingay, Viscount Barfleur, and Earl of Orford. His lordship m. Lady Margaret Russell, youngest dau. of his father's brother, William, 1st Duke of Bedford, but d. 1727, s. p. when the peerage became EXTINCT.

His grace m. Anne, dau. and sole heiress of Robert Carr, Earl of Somerset, by his too celebrated countess, Frances Howard, the divorced wife of Essex. "Francis, Earl of Bedford," says Pennant, "was so averse to the alliance, that he gave his son leave to choose a wife out of any family but that. Opposition usually stimulates desire: the young couple's affections were only increased. At length, the king interposed, and sending the Duke of Lennox to urge the earl to consent, the match was brought about. Somerset, now reduced to poverty, acted a generous part, selling his house at Chiswick, plate, jewels, and furniture, to raise a fortune for his dau. of £12,900, which the Earl of Bedford demanded; saying that, since her affections were settled, he chose rather to undo himself than make her unhappy." The lady proved worthy of the alliance. It is said, that she was ignorant of her mother's dishonour, till informed of it by a pamphlet, which she accidentally found; and it is added, that her grace was so struck with this detection of her parent's guilt, that she fell down in a fit, and was found senseless with the book open before her. The duke had issue by this admirable woman, seven sons and three daus.; of whom the eldest surviving son was the celebrated

WILLIAM, LORD RUSSELL. This distinguished patriot was first returned to parliament for the co. Bedford, in 1678-9. His lordship, who took an active part against the court, appeared publicly in the King's Bench, at Westminster Hall, 16 June, 1680, and presented the Duke of York as a recusant; he subsequently carried up the bill of exclusion of his royal highness, at the head of more than 200 members of the Commons, to the House of Lords. Thus incurring the hostility of the government, he soon fell a victim to his uncompromising patriotism. Charged as a participator in the Rye House conspiracy, his lordship was arraigned at the Old Bailey, 13 June, 1683, and convicted. He was executed by decapitation, at Lincoln's-inn Fields, 21 July following. Between his condemnation and death, Lord Cavendish offered to change clothes with him in the prison, and thus enable him to effect his escape; but Lord Russell had too much magnanimity to expose his friend to so much danger. The attainder of his lordship was annulled after the Revolution. He m. Lady Rachael Wriothesley, 2nd dau. and eventual heir of Thomas, Earl of Southampton, lord high treasurer, and widow of Francis, Lord Vaughan, by whom he left,

Rejecting the wild theories which, in his day, endangered the sacred cause of freedom, the Duke of Bedford stood forward the hereditary champion of the constitution, prepared with equal fearlessness to repel the assaults of anarchy or of despotism. In private life, his grace's deportment was so mild, benevolent, and courteous, that his friends, amongst the most devoted of whom was CHARLES-JAMES FOX, adhered to him with more than ordinary feelings of attachment—their affection amounted to enthusiasm. Lineage.

The BEDINGFELDS deduce from the conquest, through an uninterrupted line of distinguished ancestors; and they rank amongst the first names in England, still adhering to the Roman-catholic faith. The founder of the family, according to the pedigree in the history of Norfolk, was, OGENUS DE PUGES, a Norman knight, and fellow-soldier of Duke William, who obtained, after the conquest, the manor of Bedingfeld, co. Norfolk, from which he assumed his surname.

SIR EDMUND BEDINGFELD, Knt., m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Robert Tuddenham, Knt., and sister and co-heiress of Robert de Tuddenham, by whom, with other extensive estates, he acquired the lordship of OXBURGH, co. THOMAS BEDINGFELD, Esq., whose great-grandson,

SIR HENRY BEDINGFELD, Knt., was one of the first who declared for MARY, on the death of EDWARD VI., and came to her majesty's assistance with one hundred and forty men armed cap-à-pié, while at Framlingham Castle, in Suffolk. After the accession of the queen, Sir Edward was made knight marshal of her army, capt. of the guards, and governor of the Tower of London; he was also sworn of the privy council. He m. Catherine, dau. of Sir Roger Townshend, one of the judges of the court of Common Pleas; and dying in 1583, was s. by his eldest son,

Sir Henry espoused 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heiress of Peter Houghton, Esq. of Houghton Tower, co. Lancaster, an alderman of London. Sir Henry, who was an active and zealous royalist during the civil wars, was made prisoner, and committed to the Tower, and d. soon after his release, in 1656, when he was s. by his only surviving son,

I. HENRY BEDINGFELD, of Oxburgh Hall, co. Norfolk. This gentleman having laid before CHARLES II., after the Restoration, an estimate of the losses sustained by the family, amounting to £47,194. 18s. 8d., was replied to by the monarch, that it was too great a sum for him to recompense; to which Mr. Bedingfeld answered, that all he begged of his majesty was, that he might hope for the future to enjoy in tranquillity the small remnant of his fortune. To soften, however, the asperity of this unmerited refusal, the dignity of Bart. was conferred upon him, 2 Jan. 1600-1. Sir Henry m. Margaret, dau. and heiress of Edward Paston, Esq. of Appleton, co. Norfolk, and had issue,

BELHAVEN AND STENTON, BARON, (Robert-Montgomery Hamilton,) in the peerage of Scotland, and Baron Hamilton, of Wishaw, in that of the United Kingdom; b. 1793; s. to the Scottish dignity, as 8th baron, upon the demise of his father, 29 Oct. 1814; acquired the peerage of the United Kingdom, by letters patent, dated Sept. 1831. His lordship m. Dec. 1815, Hamilton, dau. of Walter Campbell, Esq. of Shawfield.

Lineage.

JOHN HAMILTON, of Broomhill, natural brother of James, 1st Earl of Arran, had a letter of legitimation under the great seal of Scotland, 20 Jan. 1513; and dying about 1550, was s. by his elder son,

JOHN HAMILTON, of Broomhill, whose grandson,

SIR JOHN HAMILTON, of Broomhill, afterwards of Beil, was created, 15 Dec. 1647, for his loyalty to Charles I., BARON BELHAVEN AND STENTON, co. Haddington. His lordship, having no male heirs, surrendered his barony to the crown, and obtained a new patent, 10 Feb. 1675, in favour, after his own decease, of the husband of one of his grandaus., John Hamilton, and the heirs male of that gentleman. Lord Belhaven m. Margaret, natural dau. of James, Marquess of Hamilton, and had issue,

I. Margaret, m. to Sir Samuel Baillie, of Lamington.

II. ANNE, m. Sir Robert Hamilton, Bart. of Silverton
Hill, and had, with two sons and three other daus.,

MARGARET, m. to Sir John Hamilton, of whom presently, as LORD BELHAVEN AND STENTON.

III. Elizabeth, m. Alexander, 1st Viscount Kingston.

Lord Belhaven and Stenton, d. 1670, when the barony devolved, according to the limitation, upon the eldest son of

of the College of Justice, (who was husband, as stated above, of the deceased lord's grandau., Margaret,)

SIR JOHN HAMILTON, of Beil, as 2nd baron. This nobleman was a lord of the Treasury, 1704, and was a zealous and eloquent opponent of the Union, 1706. He had two sons,

JOHN, his successor.

JAMES, a member of the faculty of advocates, and solicitor of the Boards of Customs and Excise in Scotland, d. s. p. 28 June, 1732.

His lordship was committed to the Tower of London, as an ally of the Chevalier St. George, in 1708, and died of an inflammation of the brain, almost immediately after his release, 21 June, in that year. He was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 3rd baron, one of the representative peers, who, having been appointed governor of Barbadoes, 1721, was drowned in his passage to that island. He m. Anne, dau. of Andrew Bruce, merchant in Edinburgh, and had issue,

JOHN, his successor.

Andrew, an officer in the army; d. unm.

JAMES, who s. as 5th lord.

Robert, a major in the army; d. unm.

Margaret, m. to Sir Alexander Baird.

His lordship was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 4th baron, who d. unm., 1764, and was s. by his brother,

JAMES, 5th baron, who also d. unm., 25 Jan. 1777, and the peerage remained some years subsequently dormant.

By virtue of an entail of the 2nd Lord Belhaven, 1701, confirmed by the last, 1765, the husbands of the heirs female being excluded from inheriting the property, and the whole male descendants of the 2nd lord's father, Lord Pressmenan, having entirely failed, the family estates, of great value, devolved upon Mrs. Mary-Hamilton Nisbet, of Pencaitland, and she was accordingly served heir to James, 5th Lord Belhaven, 3 Dec. 1783. The whole male descendants of James Hamilton, of Barncleuth, from which the 2nd lord sprang, having likewise failed, the barony of Belhaven and Stenton devolved on ROBERT HAMILTON, of Wishaw, he being the heir male whatever, that is, the nearest male heir existing in the collateral line of John, 2nd Lord Belhaven, according to the usual course of descent established by the law of Scotland. By this course of descent, it is settled, that in the case of three brothers, should the middle brother fail, the younger, and not the elder, is entitled to succeed as heir male. The founder of the family, John Hamilton, of Udson, had three sons, viz.,

JOHN HAMILTON, of Coltness.

JAMES HAMILTON, of Barncleuth, whose descendant inherited, as 2nd Lord Belhaven.

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw.*

* HAMILTON OF WISHAW.

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw, 3rd son of John Hamilton, of Udson, m. 1621, Beatrix, dau. of James Douglas, of Morton, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw; m. 1st, Anne, dau. of John Hamilton, of Udson, and had, with other children,

ROBERT, who m. Jean, eldest dau. and heiress of William Hamilton, of Brownmuir, in Ayrshire; and dying before his father, left,

WILLIAM, who inherited Wishaw.

Mr. Hamilton, m. 2ndly, 1676, Mary, eldest dau. of the Hon. Sir Charles Erskine, Bart., and grandau. of John, 7th Earl of Marr, by whom he had five sons and six daus. The third son,

WILLIAM, of the English bar, m. Helen, dau. of David Hay, of Woodcockdale, co. Linlithgow, and had an only son,

THE RIGHT HON. WILLIAM-GERARD HAMILTON, secretary of state for Ireland, and afterwards chancellor of the Exchequer in that kingdom. This gentleman, so well known as "SINGLE-SPEECH HAMILTON," is one of the reputed authors of Junius. He d. unm. 1796.

William Hamilton, of Wishaw, d. 1724, and was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM HAMILTON, of Wishaw, m. Bertha, dau. of his uncle, Charles Hamilton, of Wetherley; and being killed by a fall from his horse, 16 April, 1756, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

ROBERT HAMILTON, of Wishaw, who, upon the demise

The title of Lord Belhaven was assumed by William Hamilton, capt. of the 44th regt. of foot, lineal descendant and heir male of John Hamilton, of Coltness, the elder of the three brothers; and he voted at the general election in 1790 as Lord Belhaven. An objection was taken however to his right; and evidence was given that there were male descendants of the body of William Hamilton, of Wishaw, the youngest of the three brothers; consequently, the character of heir male whatever of John, 2nd Lord Belhaven, the patentee of 1765, could not belong to the gentleman who had assumed the dignity. This argument was supported by the attorney-general attending on behalf of the crown; and the Lords' committee of privileges unanimously decided, 5 Jan. 1793, that the votes given at the election, by the assumed Lord Belhaven, were not good, and that resolution was confirmed by the House of Peers. Soon after the settlement of this point, William Hamilton, of Wishaw, eldest son and heir of Robert Hamilton, presented to the king a petition, claiming the dignity and title of Lord Belhaven and Stenton; and this petition being, as usual, referred to the House of Peers, the claim was determined in his favour, 25 April, 1799, and he became,

WILLIAM, 7th Baron of Belhaven and Stenton, (his father, Robert Hamilton, being counted the 6th lord, although he had never assumed the dignity). His lordship was b. 13 Jan. 1765; and he m. 3 March, 1789, Penelope, youngest dau. of Ronald Macdonald, of Clanronald, by whom (who d. 1816) he had issue,

BELLINGHAM.

BELLINGHAM, SIR ALAN-EDWARD, of Castle Bellingham, county Louth; b. 8 Oct. 1800; s. his father, 27 August, 1827.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the town of Bellingham, in Northumberland, and it deduces its pedigree in a direct line from

ALAN DE BELLINGHAM, living in the time of the CONQUEROR, whose descendant,

ALAN BELLINGHAM, purchased Levens, near Kendal, in HENRY VII.'s reign, and erected a mansion there, which subsequently became the chief residence of his successors. The great-grandson of this Alan,

SIR JAMES BELLINGHAM, Knt., m. Agnes, dau. of Sir Henry Curwen, Knt. of Workington, in Cumberland, and had, with other issue,

Thomas,

HENRY, of Helsington, co. Westmorland, who was created a Bart. 1620; and the title became extinct, 1650. (See BURKE'S Extinct Baronetage.)

Alan.

Sir James d. 1641, and the male line of the family was eventually carried on by his 3rd son,

ALAN BELLINGHAM, Esq. of Levens, b. 1596, who m. Susan, dau. of Marmaduke Constable, Esq. of Masham, co. York, and had a large family, of which the 2nd son, BERKELEY.

BERKELEY, EARL OF, (Berkeley), Viscount Dursley, and Baron Berkeley, of Berkeley Castle, co. Gloucester, one of the heirs to the baronies of Mowbray, Segrave, and Braose of Gower.

Lineage.

ROBERT FITZHARDINGE (whose father was one of the companions of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR) obtained for his fidelity to the EMPRESS MAUD, and her son, HENRY II., the lordship of Berkeley and Berkeley-Hernessee, of which Roger de Berkeley,* owner of Dursley, was then divested, for taking part with STEPHEN. This Robert Fitzhardinge entertained at Bristol, in 1168, Dermot Mac Murrough, King of Leinster, with sixty of his retinue, at the time the Irish prince came into England to solicit succours from HENRY II. He d. 1170-71, and was s. by his eldest surviving son,

MAURICE DE BERKELEY, who m. Alice, dau. of Roger de Berkeley, the former and ousted possessor of Berkeley and Dursley, and had six sons. He d. 1190, and was s. by the eldest,

ROBERT DE BERKELEY, who espoused the baronial cause, and thus incurred the displeasure of JOHN, but was restored to royal favour; falling again from his allegiance, the castle and lands of Berkeley were seized by the crown, and their profits assigned for the maintenance of the castle of Bristol. He was subsequently, however, put into possession of all his lands except Berkeley Castle, and dying 13 May, 1219, without issue, was s. by his brother,

THOMAS DE BERKELEY, to whom Berkeley Castle was granted 1223. This feudal lord m. Joan, dau. of Ralph de Somery, Lord of Campden, co. Gloucester, and dying 1243, was s. by his eldest son,

MAURICE DE BERKELEY. This eminent person had military summonses to march against the Welsh, in the 42nd, 43rd, and 44th HENRY III., and the next year he had command to attend the king in London, well appointed with horse and arms, to take part against the barons, then in open hostility; but he appears to have adopted an opposite course, and to have joined the insurrectionary lords, for which his lands were seized by the crown. This Maurice m. Isabel, dau. of Maurice de Creoun, a great baron in Lincolnshire, by Isabel, his wife, sister to William de Valence, Earl of Pembroke, (uterine sister and brother of HEN. III.,) and, dying 4 April, 1281, was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS DE BERKELEY, who was with the king at the siege of Kenilworth Castle, Oct. 1266, and afterwards in the Welsh wars; for which eminent services he had a special grant, temp. EDWARD I., of liberty to hunt the fox, hare, badger, and wild cat, with his own dogs, within the king's forests of Mendip and chase of Kingswood; after this we find him engaged in Scotland, and participating in the victory of Falkirk, gained 22 July, 1298. He was subsequently at the celebrated siege of Kaerlaverock, and was summoned to parliament as a BARON from 23 June, 1295, to 15 May, 1321. His lordship m. Jane, dau. of William de Ferrers, Earl of Derby, and was s. 1321, by his eldest son,

* For the first BERKELEYS, see BURKE's Extinct Peerage.

MAURICE DE BERKELEY, 2nd lord, who had summons to parliament, as Lord Berkeley, of Berkeley Castle, from 6 Aug. 1308, to 15 May, 1321. In 1312, his lordship was nominated governor of Gloucester; and in 1314, governor of the town and castle of Berwick-upon-Tweed. In 1315, he was constituted justice of South Wales, and had the custody of all the castles there. In 1319, by the title of the king's beloved kinsman, he was made steward of the duchy of Aquitaine; but, in 1321, joining Thomas Plantagenet, Earl of Lancaster, he was committed prisoner to Wallingford Castle, where he d. 31 May, 1326, leaving, with other issue, by his wife, Eva, dau. of Eudo la Zouche,

THOMAS, his successor.

Maurice, (Sir) from whom descended the Lord Botetourt, the Lords Berkeley of Stratton, and the Berkeleys of Pytle, now represented by LORD PORTMAN.

His lordship's eldest son,

THOMAS, succeeded as 3rd lord, and was summoned to parliament from 14 June, 1329, to 20 Nov. 1360. To this nobleman the custody of the unhappy EDWARD II. was committed at Berkeley Castle; but, owing to the humanity with which his lordship treated the captive monarch, he was soon after obliged to deliver the castle and his prisoner to Lord Maltravers and Sir Thomas Gournay. After the murder of the unfortunate prince, Lord Berkeley was arraigned as a participator in the foul deed, but honourably acquitted. His lordship d. 27 Oct. 1361, and was s. by his eldest son by his first wife, Margaret, dau. of Roger de Mortimer, Earl of March, and widow of Robert Vere, Earl of Oxford,

MAURICE, 4th lord, summoned to parliament, 25 Feb. 1342. This nobleman attended the BLACK PRINCE into Gascony, and was wounded in the celebrated battle of POICTIERS. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Hugh le Despencer, and had, with other issue,

THOMAS, his successor.

James, (Sir) who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir John Bluet, Knt., with whom he had the manor of Ragland, and a fair estate in Gloucestershire. He d. 1404, leaving a son,

JAMES, who s. his uncle as 6th lord.

His lordship was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 5th lord, who m. Margaret, dau. and heir of Gerard Warren, Lord L'Isle, and left an only child,

Elizabeth, m. to Richard Beauchamp, 12th Earl of Warwick. "Upon this lady," says Nicholas, "according to the usual descents of baronies in fee, the barony of the Berkeleys, created by the writ of summons of 1295, should have devolved; but whether this anomaly arose from an idea, then prevailing, that the tenure of the castle of Berkeley conferred the barony, or that the heir male had the greatest political influence, cannot now perhaps be ascertained; the inference which may be drawn from the relative situations of the husband of the said Elizabeth, who was one of the most powerful noblemen of the time, and that of James Berkeley, who succeeded to the barony, is, that the tenure of Berkeley Castle was then considered to confer the dignity of baron upon its possessor, and, consequently, that the said James was allowed that dignity as his right, rather than by the favour of the court."

Thomas, 5th Lord Berkeley, thus dying without male issue, was s. by his nephew,

JAMES BERKELEY, 6th lord. This nobleman m. 1st, a dau. of Humphrey Stafford, of Hooke, co. Dorset, but by her had no issue. He espoused, 2ndly, Isabel, widow of Henry, son and heir of William, Lord Ferrers, of Groby, and 2nd dau. of Thomas Mowbray, 1st Duke of Norfolk,* and earl marshal of England, and had four sons† and three daus. His lordship d. 1463, and was s. by his eldest son,

* He was created Duke of Norfolk, 29 Sept. 1396, his grandmother, Margaret, Duchess of Norfolk, being still alive.

† From Thomas, the fourth son, who was seated at Dursley, descend the BERKELEYS of Cotheridge, in Worcestershire, now represented by the Rev. RICHARD BERKELEY; and the BERKELEYS of Spetchley, in the same county, now represented by ROBERT BERKELEY, Esq. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. i. p. 469.)

WILLIAM, 7th lord, who was created, 21 April, 1481, Viscount Berkeley; advanced to the dignity of Earl of Nottingham, 1483; and created MARQUESS OF BERKELEY, 28 Jan. 1489-90. This great nobleman had a dispute with Thomas Talbot, Viscount L'Isle, concerning some lands claimed by the latter in right of his grandmother, Margaret, Countess of Shrewsbury; and the quarrel rose to such a height, that the disputants encountered each other with their respective followers, at Wotton-under-Edge, 1469, when the Viscount L'Isle was mortally wounded by an arrow shot through his mouth. The marquess d. 14 Feb. 1491-2, and, leaving no issue, his own honours ceased, but the barony of Berkeley should have passed to his brother Maurice, had not the marquess, in anger with his kinsman, settled the castle of Berkeley, and those lands and lordships which composed the ancient barony, upon HENRY VII. and his majesty's heirs male, in failure of which to descend to his own right heirs: in consequence of this conveyance,

MAURICE (8th baron by right) enjoyed none of the estates, and was entirely deprived of the peerage. His brother's displeasure was attributed to his having married a person of mean blood, namely, Isabel, dau. of Philip Meade, Esq., an alderman of Bristol. This Maurice obtained, however, his share of an estate which devolved upon him in right of his mother, Isabel. He d. 1506, and was s. by his son,

MAURICE, (by right, 9th lord, who was made a knight of the Bath, at the coronation of HENRY VIII. He m. Catherine, dau. of Sir William Berkeley, Knt., of Stoke Clifford, co. Gloucester, but, having no issue, was s. at his decease, 1526, by his brother,

THOMAS (10th lord,) who had a command in the celebrated battle of Flodden, fought 9 Sept. 1513, and for his signal services there received the honour of knighthood from Thomas Howard, Earl of Surrey. He m. Eleanor, dau. of Sir Marmaduke Constable, of Flamburgh, co. York, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS, (by right, 11th baron,) who m. 1st, Mary, dau. of George Hastings, 1st Earl of Huntingdon, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Anne, dau. of Sir John Savage, of Frodsham, co. Chester, and dying 19 Sept. 1534, was s. by a posthumous son,

HENRY, 12th lord, who, on the death of EDWARD VI., the last male heir of HENRY VII., s. as heir to James, Marquess of Berkeley, to BERKELEY CASTLE AND LANDS, and thus recovered the ancient honour and precedence of the family. His lordship m. Catherine, 3rd dau. of Henry Howard, Earl of Surrey, and dying 26 Nov. 1613, was s. by his grandson,

GEORGE, 13th baron, K.B. His lordship m. Elizabeth, 2nd dau. and co-heir of Sir Michael Stanhope, of Sudbury, co. Suffolk, and dying 10 Aug. 1658, was s. by his only surviving son,

GEORGE, 14th lord, who was created, 11 Sept. 1679, Baron Mowbray, Seagrave, and Breaus, Viscount Dursley, and EARL OF BERKELEY. His lordship m. Elizabeth, one of the co-heirs of John Massingberd, Esq., treasurer of the East-India Company, and dying 14 Oct. 1698, was s. by his elder son,

CHARLES, 2nd earl, K.B., who had been previously summoned to parliament (11 July, 1689) as Baron Berkeley, of Berkeley. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. of Baptist Noel, Viscount Campden, and had four sons and three daus.* He d. 24 Sept. 1710, and was s. by his 2nd, but eldest surviving son,

JAMES, 3rd earl, a distinguished naval officer, who had summons to parliament, 7 March, 1764, as Lord Dursley. His lordship m. Lady Louisa Lennox, eldest dau. of Charles, 1st Duke of Richmond, and was s. at his decease, in 1736, by his only son,

* The 2nd dau., Lady Elizabeth Berkeley, m. Sir John Germaine, Bart. of Drayton, in Northamptonshire, who d. issueless in 1718, leaving his estate to his widow. Her ladyship d. 16 Dec. 1769, and bequeathed the greater part of her property to Lord George Sackville, 2nd son of the 1st Duke of Dorset, who assumed in consequence the surname of Germaine, and was created Viscount Sackville.

Lineage.

The Saxon words—"Bidde," or "Bida," prayer, entreaty, &c., and "Ulph," assistance, protection, &c.—of which the surname Biddulph is said to be composed, would indicate that he who first adopted it had been employed in some embassy, or mission, to seek aid, and thence acquired the designation. The family is certainly of remote antiquity; and Erdeswick, in his survey of Staffordshire, says, "the Biddulphs derive themselves from one Ormus Le Guidon, Lord of Darlaveston, Buckingham, Biddulph, &c., in Staffordshire, who lived in the time of Doomsday." (For a more detailed account of the Biddulph family, in all its branches, the Biddulphs of Burton, Chirk Castle, Led-1818; s. to the dignity, as 12th baron, on the demise of his father, 22 Sept. 1830.

BLA

Lineage.

This family deduces its descent from a common ancestor, with the Earls of Galloway,

SIR WILLIAM STEWART, of Dalswinton and Garlies, who obtained possession of the estate of Minto, 1443, after great opposition from the Turnbells, its former proprietors. He died some time subsequently to the year 1479, leaving three surviving sons,

ALEXANDER, (Sir) from whom the Earls of Galloway derive.

Thomas, (Sir) of Minto, of whom presently.

Walter, of Tonderghie.

The 2nd son,

SIR THOMAS STEWART, got from his father the lands of Minto, Sinlaws, and Merbotell, in the co. of Roxburgh, of which he had two charters under the great seal, 2 Nov. 1476. He d. 1500, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN STEWART, of Minto, who was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT STEWART, of Minto, whose eldest son's successor,

SIR JOHN STEWART, of Minto, m. and left, by his first wife, a son,

MATTHEW, (Sir) of Minto, whose male line became extinct in the person of

SIR JOHN STEWART, who d. in the expedition to Darien, 1697.

Sir John Stewart left, by his 2nd wife, Margaret, dau. of James Stewart, of Cardonald, an only son,

WALTER STEWART, who, having been brought up with JAMES VI. under George Buchanan, had the priory of Blantyre conferred on him by that monarch, and is designated Commendator of Blantyre, in 1580, when he was appointed one of the gentlemen of the bedchamber. He was sworn of the privy council, and constituted keeper of the privy seal, 14 Nov. 1582; appointed one of the extraordinary lords of session, 1593; made LORD HIGH TREASURER OF SCOTLAND, 1596; and elevated to the peerage of that kingdom, 10 July, 1606, as BARON OF BLANTYRE. His lordship m. Nicholas, dau. of Sir James Somerville, of Cambusnethan, and had, with other issue,

This nobleman, being one of those who protested against the legality of the convention of 1702, on taking the oaths and his seat in parliament, the following year, presented a petition, entreating the commissioner and the estates to accept of his submission, and most humble acknowledgment of the indecent and undutiful expressions uttered by him in presence of her majesty's advocate, against the high commissioner. On reading the petition, his lordship was ordered to be brought in custody to the bar, to the end that he might there, kneeling, beg pardon of the commissioner and the estates for his said offence, pay a fine of £5000, and continue in custody until the fine should be paid. Lord Blantyre having made his appearance accordingly, the lord chancellor declared that the commissioner was pleased to dispense with the petitioner's making his acknowledgment upon his knees, to which the estates agreed; his lordship gave obedience to the rest of the sentence, and was thereupon dismissed, and allowed to take his place. BLOUNT, SIR EDWARD, Bart. of Sodington, county Worcester; LL.D.; b. 3 March, 1795; s. as 8th baronet, at the decease of his father, 31 Oct. 1803; m. 14 Sept. 1830, Mary-Frances, eldest daughter of Edward Blount, Esq., and has a son,

WALTER-DE-SODINGTON, b. 19 Dec. 1833.

Lineage.

This very ancient family has given birth to three distinct races of peers, viz., the Lords of Guisnes, in France; the Barons of Ixworth, in Suffolk, (which barony ceased with Sir William Blount, Baron of Ixworth, who was slain fighting under the banner of Mountford, Earl of Leicester, at the battle of Lewes, and subsequently attainted, by parliament, in the reign of HENRY III.;) and the Barons of Montjoy, of Thurverston, co. Derby, which barony expired in 1681. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Its settlement in England is traced to the Conquest, and its genealogy deduced from the Biondi, or Blondi, of Italy.

RODOLPH, 3rd Count of Guisnes, had three sons by his wife, Rosetta, dau. of the Count of St. Pol, all of whom accompanied the NORMAN, in his expedition against England, in 1066; and, contributing to the triumph of their chief, shared amply in the spoils of conquest. One of the brothers returned to his native country; the other two adopted that which they had so gallantly helped to win, and abided there: of these,

SIR ROBERT LE BLOUNT was the 1st feudal Baron of Ixworth, but of him presently.

SIR WILLIAM LE BLOUNT was a general of foot at Hastings, and had grants of seven lordships in Lincolnshire. His son was seated at Saxlingham, in Norfolk, and the great-grandau. of that gentleman,*

MARIA LE BLOUNT, sole heiress of her line, marrying, in the next century, SIR STEPHEN LE BLOUNT, united the families of the two brothers.

The elder son,

SIR ROBERT LE BLOUNT, had the command of the CONQUEROR'S ships of war, and is styled, "DUX NAVIUM MILITARIVM." His portion of the Spolia Opima embraced thirteen manors in Suffolk, in which county he was the first feudal Baron of Ixworth (the place of his residence) and Lord of Orford Castle; he m. Gundreda, youngest dau. of Henry, Earl Ferrers, and had a son and heir,

GILBERT LE BLOUNT, 2nd Baron of Ixworth, from whom we pass to

WILLIAM LE BLOUNT, 6th Baron of Ixworth, who was standard-bearer to Simon de Montford, and fell at the battle of Lewes, 14 May 1264. He was attainted and the Barony of Ixworth forfeited. He left no issue, so that the representation of the family devolved upon his uncle,

SIR STEPHEN LE BLOUNT, who m. as stated, MARIA LE BLOUNT, heiress of Saxlingham, and had two sons,

SIR ROBERT, his heir.

SIR JOHN, who m. Constance, one of the sisters and heirs of Sir Richard de Wrotham, justice of the Common Pleas.

The elder son,

SIR ROBERT BLOUNT, m. Isabel, dau. and co-heir of the feudal Lord of Odinsels, by whom he acquired the Manor of Belton, in Rutlandshire, and had two sons, SIR RALPH, from whom the extinct Lords Blount of Belton; and Nicholas le Blount, who took the name of Croke, ancestor of the Crokes of Studley Priory, and

- VI. Emily.

His lordship s. to the honours, at the decease of his father, 11 Dec. 1824, as 4th Viscount Bolingbroke, and 5th Viscount St. John.

Lineage.

This family, springing in the male line from the Ports, Lords of Basing, co. Southampton, at the Conquest, derives through the female line, from

WILLIAM DE ST. JOHN,* who came into England with the CONQUEROR, as grand master of the artillery, and supervisor of the wagons and carriages, whence the horses' hemes, or collar, was borne for his cognizance. He m. Oliva, dau. of Ralph de Filgiers, of Normandy, and had by her, Thomas, who d. without issue, and

JOHN DE ST. JOHN, who inherited, on the demise of his brother, all the lands in England, and principally the lordship of STANTON, co. Oxon, (for distinction from the other towns of the same name, called STANTON ST. JOHN.) This John was a person of great eminence in the reign of WILLIAM RUFUS, being one of the twelve knights that accompanied Robert Fitz-Hamon, Earl of Gloucester, in a warlike expedition against the Welch, and received, "in reward for his great services and helps in many victories," the castle of Faumont, co. Glamorgan. He had issue, a dau., Avoris, m. to Sir Bernard de St. Valery, and two sons,

- I. ROGER, of whom presently.
- II. Thomas, Lord of Stanton St. John, living 13 HEN. II., whose son,

ROGER, was assessed £133. 6s. 8d. for trespassing in the king's forests, 22 HENRY II. The grandson of this Roger,

JOHN ST. JOHN, was killed at the battle of Evesham, 43 EDWARD III. He was in the holy wars with RICHARD I., who, at the siege of Acon, in Palestine, adopted the device of tying a leathern thong, or garter, round the left leg of a certain number of knights, (one of whom was this John St. John,) that they might be impelled to higher deeds of valour. This is supposed by some to have given the idea of the Order of the Garter.

The elder son,

ROGER DE ST. JOHN, m. Cicely, dau. and heiress of Robert de Haya, lord of the manor of Halnac, co. Suffolk, a kinsman of HENRY I., and had, with two sons, a dau., MURIAL, who m. Reginald de Aurea Valle, or Orvyle, and had a dau.,

MABIL ORVYLE, who m. ADAM DE PORT, a powerful feudal baron, (having the head of his barony at Basing, co. Southampton,) and had a son and heir, who, assuming the surname of his maternal ancestors, became

WILLIAM DE ST. JOHN, Lord of Basing; in which lordship and his other territorial possessions he was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE ST. JOHN, Lord of Basing, who, in the 42nd of HENRY III., had summons to be at Chester upon Monday next after the feast of St. John the Baptist, well accoutred with horse and arms, to oppose the incursions of the Welch. From the eldest son of this feudal lord, by Agnes, dau. of William de Cantelupe, JOHN, descended the Lords of St. John of Basing, represented by the Marquess of Winchester.

And from the second,

WILLIAM DE ST. JOHN, of the Castle of Faumont, co. Glamorgan, sprang

SIR OLIVER ST. JOHN, who acquired the lordship of Bletshoe, in the reign of HENRY VI., with his wife, Margaret, dau. of Sir John Beauchamp, and sister and sole heiress of John, Lord Beauchamp, of Bletshoe, co. Northampton; by which marriage, Lydiard Tregoze came also into the family of St. John. Sir Oliver St. John d. 1437, and his widow m. 2ndly, John Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, K.G., by whom she had a dau., Margaret, who m. Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, and by him was mother of HENRY VII. From the elder son of Sir Oliver, Sir John St. John, Knt., descended the Lords St. John of Bletshoe. The 2nd son,

OLIVER ST. JOHN, had the lordship of Lydiard Tregoze, and was, as Leland writes in his Itinerary, a stout black man, and died at Fonterabia, in Spain. He m. Elizabeth, dau. of Lord Scroope, and left, with three daus., an only son and heir,

SIR JOHN ST. JOHN, chamberlain to Margaret, Countess of Richmond,* grandmother of HENRY VII., and one of the executors of her will. Sir John d. 1512, and was s. by his son,

JOHN ST. JOHN, whose son and heir,

NICHOLAS ST. JOHN, Esq. of Lydiard Tregoze, m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Richard Blount, of Maple Durham, co. Oxford, and had issue,

JOHN, (Sir) who inherited Lydiard.

OLIVER, of whom presently.

Richard.

The second son,

OLIVER ST. JOHN, having the misfortune to kill, in a duel, one Best, captain of the guard to QUEEN ELIZABETH, was obliged to relinquish the study of the law, and fly the kingdom. Adopting a military life, he attained considerable renown in the wars of Elizabeth and James in Ireland, and was eventually advanced to the peerage of that kingdom, as Viscount Grandison, with limitation to the issue of his nephew, Sir Edward Villers, (which viscounty now merges in the earldom of Jersey,) and to the peerage of England, by the title of Baron Tregoze.

* The name was taken from the territory of St. John, near Rouen.

* This lady founded Christ's and St. John's Colleges at Cambridge.

In the next year, his lordship obtained a grant of the manors of Battersea and Wandsworth; but dying without issue, 30 Dec. 1630, the English barony expired. The manors of Battersea and Wandsworth he bequeathed to John, the only surviving son of his brother; and upon that brother himself,

SIR JOHN ST. JOHN, had devolved, as stated above, the estate at Lydiard. Sir John had m. Lucy, dau. and heiress of Sir Walter Hungerford, of Farley, co. Wilts, and had surviving issue,

JOHN.

Barbara, m. to Sir Edward Villers, Knt., by whom she had issue,

1 WILLIAM, 2nd Viscount Grandison, whose only dau. and heir,

BARBARA, m. Roger Palmer, Earl of Castlemain, in Ireland. She was afterwards created Duchess of Cleveland, by CHARLES II., and was mistress of that monarch.

2 JOHN, who s. as 3rd Viscount Grandison.

3 GEORGE, 4th Viscount Grandison.

4 EDWARD, (Sir) ancestor of the Earls of Jersey.

Sir John was s. at his decease by his only surviving son,

SIR JOHN ST. JOHN, Knt., of Battersea and Wandsworth, (by the bequest of his deceased uncle, Lord Grandison,) who was created a Bart. 22 May, 1611. This gentleman was zealously attached to the royal cause, and had three sons slain fighting under the royal standard. He was succeeded, at his decease, by (the son of his eldest son, Oliver, by Catherine, dau. and co-heir of Horatio, Lord Vere, Baron of Tilbury, which lady espoused, after his decease, John, Lord Poulet,) his grandson,

SIR JOHN, at whose decease, unm., the title reverted to his uncle,

SIR WALTER, M.P. for the co. Wilts. This gentleman, who resided principally at Battersea, m. Johanna, dau. of the Lord Chief Justice St. John; and dying 3 July 1708, was s. by his only son,

SIR HENRY, who was elevated to the peerage, as Baron St. John of Battersea, and VISCOUNT ST. JOHN, 2 July, 1716, with remainder to his 3rd and 4th sons, John and Holles; his eldest son, Henry, the celebrated secretary of state to QUEEN ANNE, having been previously created, 7 July, 1712, Baron St. John of Lydiard Tregoze, and VISCOUNT BOLINGBROKE, co. Lincoln, with remainder to the issue of his father. This latter nobleman was attainted in 1714, but restored in 1725 to his estates, without his honours. He m. twice, (his second wife was the Marchioness de Vilette, niece to the celebrated Madame de Maintenon,) but d. childless in 1751. Viscount St. John was s. by his eldest son, (by his 2nd wife, Angelica-Magdalene, dau. of George Pillesary, treasurer-general of the marines, in France, under LOUIS XIV.,)

JOHN, 2nd Viscount St. John, who m. 1st, Anne, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Furnese, Bart., and had three sons, and three daughters. He m. 2ndly, Hester, eldest dau. of John Clarke, Esq., but by her had no issue. His lordship d. in Feb. 1749, and was s. by his eldest son,

FREDERICK, 3rd Viscount St. John, who also succeeded to the honours of his uncle, Henry, who had been attainted as stated above, and became VISCOUNT BOLINGBROKE, (the limitation in the patent of that creation, barring the attainders, affecting the interest of the successor.) His lordship, m. 1757, Lady Diana Spencer, eldest dau. of Charles, 2nd Duke of Marlborough, by whom he had two surviving sons,

I. GEORGE-RICHARD, his successor.

II. Frederick, a gen. officer in the army; m. 1st, Mary, 3rd dau. of William, 5th Marquess of Lothian; and has a son, Robert-William, b. 1791; consul-general at Algiers; who m. Elizabeth-Maria, dau. of John Barker, Esq., and has issue.

receiver-gen. of customs at the port of London, and paymaster to the corps of gentlemen-at-arms.

Lineage.

The Boothbys claim Saxon origin, and the assumption is sustained by Dugdale and Camden. The former elaborate antiquary fixes the division of counties (Origines Juridicales, c. ix.) in the year 800 by EGBERT; and the latter, speaking of Lincolnshire, says, "The hundred or wapentake of Boothby, Boothby-Paynell, a market-town, and a gentleman's old seat called Boothby, were denominated from one Boothby, who there inhabited."

THEOBALDUS DE BOOTHBY was governor of Pontefract Castle, which he defended with great gallantry for the Lancastrians, during the war of the Roses. From this Theobald we pass to

THOMAS DE BOOTHBY, living in the reign of EDW. VI., whose great-grandson,

WILLIAM DE BOOTHBY, m. Judith, dau. of Thomas Osten, Esq. of Oxley, co. Stafford, and by her (who m. 2ndly, William Basset, Esq. of Blore, Staffordshire, and 3rdly, Sir Robert Corbet, Bart.) he had, with other issue,

All the real estates enjoyed by Sir Henry, he derived from the good management of his mother, his father having devised him money only. This lady, through her own exertions, was enabled to leave her son an estate in London; another called Kingsland, in Middlesex; Claterclote, Claden, and the manor of Cropperdy, in Oxfordshire; Bradlow-Ash, Cold Eaton, King's Mills, and the lands thereto belonging, near Ashbourne, Derbyshire; one-half of the manor or park of Cheadle, with Longnor, and other possessions, in Staffordshire. BOSWELL.

BOSWELL, SIR JAMES, Bart. of Auchinleck, co. Ayr; b. in Dec. 1806; s. as 2nd bart., at the decease of his father, 26 March, 1822; m. 1830, Jessie-Jane, dau. of Sir James-Montgomery, Cunningham, Bart.

Lineage.

The family of BOSWELL is supposed to have been established in Scotland in the reign of DAVID I., and it obtained the Barony of BALMUTO in the beginning of the 15th century, by the marriage of

SIR JOHN BOSWELL with Mariota, dau. and co-heir of Sir John Glen. The grandson of this marriage,

DAVID BOSWELL, of Balmuto, m. 1st, — and had ALEXANDER, (Sir) who s. at Balmuto, and carried on that line. He m. 2ndly, in 1480, Lady Margaret Sinclair, dau. of William, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, and left at his decease, in 1493,

THOMAS BOSWELL, who obtained from JAMES IV., with whom he was in high estimation, the lands and barony of Auchinleck. He fell at Flodden, and was s. by his only son,

DAVID BOSWELL, of Auchinleck, who m. Lady Janet Hamilton, dau. of James, 1st Earl of Arran, and was s. by his son,

James, m. Miss Cunningham, and had a son,

DAVID, who s. his uncle.

James Boswell was s. by his elder son,

DAVID BOSWELL, of Auchinleck, who, dying without male issue, was s. by his nephew,

DAVID BOSWELL, of Auchinleck, who was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES BOSWELL, of Auchinleck, a lawyer of great eminence, who m. 1704, Lady Elizabeth Bruce, dau. of Alexander, 2nd Earl of Kincardine, and had issue,

ALEXANDER, one of the senators of the college of justice, and a lord of session, under the title of LORD AUCHINLECK.

John, M.D., censor of the college of physicians in Edinburgh; m. Anne, dau. of Robert Cramond, Esq.

Veronica, m. to David Montgomery, Esq. of Linshaw.

He d. 1748, and was s. by his elder son,

ALEXANDER BOSWELL, Lord Auchinleck. His lordship m. Euphame, dau. of Colonel John Erskine, of Alva, son of Sir Charles Erskine, and had, with other issue,

JAMES, his successor.

Upon the authority of Sir Walter Scott, Mr. Croker gives the following characteristic anecdote of this eminent lawyer, who appears to have looked upon Dr. Johnson, and some of the other companions of his son, with unmeasured contempt:—"Old LORD AUCHINLECK was an able lawyer and good scholar, after the manner of Scotland, and highly valued on his own advantages, as a man of good estate and ancient family; and, moreover, as he was a strict presbyterian, and a whig of the old Scottish cast. This did not prevent his being a terribly proud aristocrat; and great was the contempt he entertained and expressed for his son James, for the nature of his friendships, and the character of the personages of whom he was engoué one after another. 'There's nae hope for Jamie, man,' he said to a friend; 'Jamie is gaen clean gyte. What do you think, man, he's done wi' Paoli? He's off wi' the land louping scoundrel of a Corsican; and whose tail do you think he has pinned himself to now, man?' Here the old judge summed up, with a sneer of most sovereign contempt; 'a dominie, man—an auld dominie; he kepted a schule, and called it an academy.'" Lord Auchinleck d. 1782, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES BOSWELL, the friend and well known biographer of Johnson. This remarkable person was born at Edinburgh, 29 Oct. 1740. He studied civil law in the universities of Edinburgh and Glasgow, and was called to the Scottish bar. Mr. Boswell cultivated the friendship of literary men, and was introduced to Dr. Johnson, in May, 1763. In 1790, he published his Life of the Great Moralist, which obtained an extraordinary degree of popularity. He was author, besides, of a work upon the Great Douglas Peerage cause. He m. 1769, Miss Margaret Montgomery, and had issue, ALEXANDER, his successor, and James, barrister-at-law, with three daus. He d. at his house in Portland-street, 19 June, 1795, and was s. by his elder son,

I. ALEXANDER BOSWELL, of Auchinleck, who was created a Bart. 16 Aug. 1821. Sir Alexander fell the following year (26 March, 1822) in a duel, arising from a political dispute, leaving JAMES, present bart., and a dau., who m. 1826, Sir William Francis Elliott, Bart. of Stobs.

Sir William inherits two baronetcies; of one, he is the 10th in succession; of the other, the 2nd.

Lineage.

The family of Rouse boasts of very high antiquity in the several cos. of Sussex, Worcester, Warwick, Gloucester, and Hereford. Dr. Nash, in his History of Worcester, mentions that its patriarch in that shire accompanied the NORMAN into England; and the statement is confirmed by the Battle Abbey roll. On 23 July, 1641, the dignity of Bart. was conferred upon

THOMAS ROUSE, Esq. of Rouse Lench, co. Worcester, eldest son of Sir John Rouse, Knt., which honour expired with

SIR THOMAS ROUSE, the 4th bart., 1721, when the issue male failed, and the estates of Sir Thomas passed to his then only surviving sister,

ELIZABETH ROUSE, at whose decease unm., 1729, her sister Mary's grandson, the next male relation of the family, inherited, viz.,

THOMAS PHILLIPS, Esq., who assumed the surname and arms of ROUSE, and took up his residence at Rouse Lench. This gentleman served the office of high sheriff of Worcester, as Thomas Rouse, Esq., 1733. He continued to enjoy the estates until the year 1768, when he d. a bachelor, and bequeathed them to

CHARLES-WILLIAM BOUGHTON, Esq., (2nd son of Shuckburgh Boughton, Esq. of Poston Court, co. Hereford, and grandson of Sir William Boughton, 4th BART. of Lawford, co. Warwick,) who assumed the surname of Rouse, and represented the boroughs of Evesham and Bamber, as Charles-William Boughton-Rouse, Esq. Mr. Boughton-Rouse was chief secretary, 1784, to the board of control, and, upon retirement from office, was created a Bart., 28 June, 1791; but very soon afterwards he inherited the baronetage of his own family, the Boughtons, to which we must now revert.*

* The BOUGHTONS acquired the lands of Lawford about the year 1440, with Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Geoffrey de Allesley.

BOU

I. WILLIAM BOUGHTON, Esq. of Lawford, was created a Bart. 4 Aug. 1641. He m. Abigail, eldest dau. and co-heir of Henry Baker, Esq., and was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

II. SIR EDWARD, who m. twice, (his wives were, Mary, dau. of Thomas Pope, Earl of Down; and Anne, dau. of Sir John Heydon, Knt., governor of the Bermudas,) but having no issue, was s. at his decease, 1680, by his brother,

III. SIR WILLIAM. This gentleman m. Mary, dau. of Hastings Ingram, Esq. of Little Woolford, co. Warwick, and dying 12 Aug. 1683, was s. by his only son,

IV. SIR WILLIAM, M.P. for the co. Warwick, in the reign of ANNE. This gentleman m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Mr. Alderman Ramsey, of the city of London, and had EDWARD, his successor, and two daus., Mary, the wife of Sir Henry Houghton, Bart., and Anne. He m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Sir Charles Shuckburgh, Bart., and had, with other surviving issue,

V. SIR EDWARD, who m. Grace, eldest dau. of Sir John Shuckburgh, Bart., and was s., Feb. 1721-2, by his only child,

VI. SIR EDWARD. This gentleman, by his 2nd wife, Anna-Maria Beauchamp, an heiress, left a dau., who m. John Donellan, Esq., and an only son, his successor, in 1772,

SIR THEODOSIUS - EDWARD - ALLESLEY. The sudden death of this gentleman, during his minority, caused an extraordinary sensation at the period it occurred. Sir Theodosius was confined to his bed by severe indisposition, at the family mansion of Lawford Hall, wherein his mother, and Captain and Mrs. Donellan, (his sister and brother-in-law,) were at the time residing. Having taken a draught from the hands of Lady Boughton, the unfortunate gentleman almost immediately expired, 21 Aug. 1780. Suspicion of poison subsequently arising, the body, after being deposited in the family vault, was disinterred, when a coroner's inquest returned a verdict of murder against Capt. Donellan, who was tried, condemned, and executed for the crime, at the spring assizes for the co. Warwick, 1781. It must be remarked, however, in justice to the memory of Mr. Donellan, that the evidence against him was solely circumstantial, and not of the strongest nature; and that he died solemnly protesting his innocence. The widow of Capt. Donellan m. Sir Egerton Leigh, Bart.; and, after his decease, Barry E. O'Meara, Esq., the medical attendant at St. Helena of the ex-Emperor Napoleon, and d. 30 Jan. 1830. Upon the melancholy death of Sir Theodosius, the title devolved on his cousin,

VIII. SIR EDWARD, grandson to the 4th bart., as particularized above. This gentleman, who pulled down the mansion of Lawford Hall, and sold the estates in the cos. Warwick and Leicester, dying unm., 1794, the title devolved upon his only brother, the before-mentioned (as legatee of Thomas (Phillips) Rouse, Esq. of Rouse Lench,)

IX. and I. SIR CHARLES-WILLIAM-BOUGHTON-ROUSE, Bart. of Rouse Lench, co. Worcester, and of Downton Hall, co. Salop, (so created 28th July, 1791,) who, upon inheriting his own family honours, resumed his paternal surname of BOUGHTON. SIR HENRY NEVILLE, of Billingbere, a distinguished person in the reigns of ELIZABETH and JAMES I., of whom Lodge gives the following account:—"He owed his introduction to court to a family connexion with Secretary Cecil, and his promotion there, perhaps, yet more to his own merit, for he was a person of great wisdom, and integrity. He was appointed ambassador to France, in April, 1599; and, in the summer of the following year, acted as first commissioner at the treaty of Boulogne. Unfortunately for him, the negotiation was concluded a few months before the discovery of Essex's conspiracy; and at his return he unwarily listened to some hints of that wild design, which his excessive attachment to the earl induced him to conceal. Essex, on his arraignment, named him as a party; he was committed to the Tower for a misprision of treason, in the midst of his preparations for returning to his charge in France, and sentenced to pay a heavy fine, which was mitigated to £5000. The alteration caused in his pecuniary circumstances, by the rigid exaction of this penalty, compelled him, in the next reign, to accept of offices beneath his deserts; and contrary to his spirited disposition, we find him projecting and executing various little schemes for the relief of JAMES's necessities; and in spite of the efforts made by his friends to get him appointed secretary, in 1612, he was never advanced to any higher employment, owing, as it is said, to the king's having conceived a personal dislike to him." SIR HENRY NEVILLE, of Billingbere, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Smith, Knt. of Ostenhanger, Kent, and was s. at his decease, in 1629, by his eldest son,

Lineage.

The surname of Hervey, or Harvey, written with Fitz, (i. e. son of Harvey,) is derived from Robert Fitz Harvey, (a younger son of Harvey, Duke of Orleans,) one of the commanders in the invading army of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR : from that Robert descended

JOHN HERVEY, who, marrying Joan, dau. and heiress of John Harman of Thurley, co. Bedford, acquired that lordship. He d. 21st EDWARD I. ; and from him we pass to his lineal descendant,

JOHN HERVEY, Esq. of Thurley, who m. Alice, dau. of

Nicholas Morley, of Glind, co. Sussex, and had (with one daughter) two sons, viz.,

- I. GEORGE, (Sir) a distinguished captain in the reign of HENRY VIII. who, dying without issue, bequeathed his estates to Margaret Smart for her life, remainder to her son,

GERARD, which Gerard assumed the name of Hervey, and from him descended the Herveys of Thurley, where they continued till the death of John Hervey, in 1715.

- II. Thomas.

The younger son,

THOMAS HERVEY, Esq., m. Jane, dau. and heir of Henry Drury, Esq. of Ickworth,* Hawsted, &c.; and with her acquired those estates. He was s. at his decease by his son,

WILLIAM HERVEY, Esq. of Ickworth, who m. Joan, dau. of John Cocket, Esq. of Ampton, co. Suffolk, and, dying in 1538, left, with other issue,

- I. JOHN, his successor, of whom presently.

- II. NICHOLAS. This eminent person was of the privy chamber of HENRY VIII., and so much in that monarch's favour that, in 1520, he was one of the gentlemen appointed to furnish the days of justs, when the celebrated feats of arms were performed at a camp between Guisnes and Ardres. He was afterwards knighted, and was ambassador from England to the emperor's court at Ghent. Sir Nicholas m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Fitzwilliams, Knt., and widow of Sir Thomas Maleverer, by whom he had a son, SIR THOMAS, knight-marshal to QUEEN MARY. He espoused 2ndly, Bridget, dau. and heiress of Sir John Wiltshire, of Stone Castle, in Kent, and relict of Sir Richard Wingfield, K.G., by whom he had GEORGE, (Sir) of Markshall, in Essex, lieut. of the Tower, from whom the Herveys of Essex descend, and an elder son,

HENRY, who m. Jane, dau. of James Thomas, Esq., and left a son,

WILLIAM, who distinguished himself, in 1558, in the memorable conflict with the Spanish armada, boarding one of the galleons and killing the capt., Hugh Mongada, with his own hand. He was afterwards knighted; and, being engaged with great success in Ireland, was created a Bart. 31 May, 1619, and advanced to the peerage of that kingdom in the following year, in the dignity of Baron Hervey, of Ross, co. Wexford. His lordship, pursuing his eminent public course, was created a peer of England, 7 Feb. 1627-8, as Lord Hervey, of Kidbrooke, co. Kent. He m. twice, and had several children by his 2nd wife, Cordelia, dau. and heiress of Brian Anslow, Esq. of Lewisham; but he outlived them all, except one, ELIZABETH, who m. John Hervey, Esq. of Ickworth, and succeeded, at the decease of his lordship, in June, 1642, to his estates, when his honours became extinct.

Mr. Hervey of Ickworth, was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

JOHN HERVEY, Esq. of Ickworth, who d. 11 June, 1556, and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN HERVEY, Esq. of Ickworth, who m. Frances, dau. and co-heir of Edmund Bocking, Esq. of Bocking, in Essex; and dying in 1630, was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM HERVEY, Knt., who m. 1608, Susan, dau. of Sir Robert Jermyn, Knt. of Rushbrook, co. Suffolk; and dying in 1660, was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN HERVEY, Esq. of Ickworth. This gentleman enjoyed the friendship of Robert Sidney, 2nd Earl of Leicester, and sojourned with that accomplished nobleman during his embassy at the French court. Concurring heartily in the restoration of CHARLES II., he was appointed treasurer of the household to the Queen-Consort KATHARINE. In parliament he was one of the leading members; and Burnet, speaking of him, says, "He was one whom the king loved personally, and yet, upon a great occasion, he voted against that which the king desired; so the king chid him severely for it. Next day, another important question falling in, he voted as the king would have him. So the king took notice of it at night, and said, 'You were not against me to-day.' He answered, 'No, sir, I was against my conscience to-day.'" Mr. Hervey was a great encourager of literature, and the patron of men of letters. He m. the Hon. Elizabeth Hervey, only surviving child and sole heiress of William Lord Hervey, of Kidbrook, (see above,) but dying without issue, 18 Jan. 1679, his estates devolved upon his only surviving brother,

SIR THOMAS HERVEY, Knt., M.P.; who m. Isabella, dau. of Sir Humphrey May, vice-chamberlain of the household to CHARLES I.; and dying in 1694, was s. by his eldest surviving son,

JOHN HERVEY, Esq., a distinguished member of the House of Commons, who was elevated to the peerage, 23 March, 1703, as Baron Hervey of Ickworth, co. Suffolk, and created, 19 Oct. 1714, EARL OF BRISTOL. His lordship m. 1st, 1686, Isabella, dau. and sole heiress of the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Carr, Bart. of Sleaford, co. Lancaster, and grandaun., maternally, of James Howard, 3rd Earl of Suffolk, by whom he had a son, CARR, Lord Hervey, (who pre-deceased him,) and two daus. The earl m. 2ndly, 1695, Elizabeth, only dau. and heiress of Sir Thomas Felton, Bart. of Playford, co. Suffolk, by whom he had eleven sons and six daus. Of whom,

JOHN, Lord Hervey, (the eldest son,) b. 15 Oct. 1696, was called up to the House of Lords, in his father's barony, in 1733. His lordship was appointed keeper of the privy seal in 1740, and in the same year constituted one of the lords justices, during his majesty's absence from the kingdom. This nobleman fell under the lash of Pope, who, in some extraordinarily severe lines, thus speaks of him:

"Eternal smiles his emptiness betray,
As shallow streams run dimpling all the way;
Whether in florid impotence he speaks,
And, as the Prompter breathes, the puppet squeaks.
Eve's tempter, thus the Rabbins have exprest,
A cherub's face, a reptile all the rest.
Beauty that shocks you, parts that none can trust,
Wit that can creep, and pride that licks the dust."

By Middleton, in his dedication of the history of the Life of Tully, his lordship is, however, very differently depicted; in that he is praised for his good sense, politeness, patriotism, temperance, and information. Lord Hervey, having felt some attacks of epilepsy, entered upon, and persevered in, a very strict regimen; and thus stopped the progress of that dreadful disease. His daily food was a small quantity of asses' milk, and a flour biscuit; once a week he indulged himself in eating an apple; he used emetics daily. His lordship was distinguished as a political writer, and a list of his works is given in Horace Walpole's Catalogue of Royal and Noble Authors. He m. 1720, Mary, dau. of Brigadier-General Nicholas Lepell, and left four sons (three of whom became successively Earls of Bristol,) and four daus,* who, after his decease, were granted the precedence of those of an earl. Lord Hervey d. 5 Aug. 1743.

Henry (4th son) m. Catherine, eldest sister and heir of Sir Thomas Aston, Bart., and assumed the surname of ASTON. He subsequently took holy orders, and was a doctor in divinity. His grandson, Col. Henry Hervey-Aston, m. Harriet, 4th dau. and co-heir of Charles, 9th and last Viscount Irvine, of Scotland; and dying in 1798, left a son, Henry-Charles Hervey-Aston, Esq. of Aston Hall, Cheshire.

Felton, (the youngest son.) The descendants of this gentleman were raised to the baronetage. (See Sir Frederick-Bathurst Hervey.)

BROOKE AND WARWICK.

BROOKE, EARL, (Henry-Richard Greville,) of Warwick Castle, co. Warwick; Earl of Warwick, and Baron Brooke, of Beauchamp's Court, in the same co.; lord-lieutenant and custos rotulorum of the co. Warwick; b. 1779; s. to the honours, as 3rd earl, on the demise of his father, 2 May, 1816; m. 21 Oct. following, Sarah, relict of John-George,

5th Lord Monson, and only dau. of John, 2nd Earl of Mexborough, by whom he has issue,

GEORGE-GUY, Lord Brooke, b. 28 March, 1818.

Lineage.

This surname was anciently written Graville, or Greville, and sometimes Grevil; and the present noble house of Warwick deduces from

WILLIAM GREVILLE, a citizen of London, "the flower of woolstaplers," (as his epitaph records,) who lies interred at Campden, where he had been recently seated. This William was living in the 21st of RICHARD II., as that monarch acknowledges receiving a loan from him and his father of the enormous sum, in those days, 300 marks, 10 Aug. 1397. He purchased, in the following year, the manor of Milcote, co. Warwick, from Sir Walter Beauchamp, Knt., and entailed it upon his heir male. He d. in the 3rd of HENRY IV., and was s. by his son,

JOHN GREVILLE, of Campden, who served the office of sheriff of Glamorganshire, in the 6th of HENRY IV. He m. 1st, Sibil, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Corbet; and 2ndly, Joyce, dau. of Sir Walter Cocksey, Knt., sister and heiress of Hugh Cocksey, and widow of — Beauchamp. The grandson of this John,

SIR THOMAS GREVILLE, of Milcote, assumed the name of COCKSEY, upon inheriting the estates of his grandmother's family. He d. in the 14th of HENRY VII., without issue, when the lands of the Cockseys passed to the heirs of that family; and Milcote, with the other estates of the Grevilles, devolved, according to the entail of William Greville, upon

JOHN GREVILLE, of Drayton, (great-grandson of Lewis, or Lodowick, Grevill, and his wife, Margaret,* sole dau. and heir of Sir Giles Ardene, of Drayton, co. Oxford.) This John Greville was one of the justices for the gaol delivery of Warwick, in the 15th of HENRY VII. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir Humphrey Forster, of Harpeden, co. Oxford, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE, of Milcote, a distinguished military character in the reign of HENRY VIII., particularly at the battle of Spurs. In the 13th of the same king, Sir Edward Greville obtained the wardship of Elizabeth, one of the daus., and at length sole heiress, of Edward Willoughby, only son of Robert, Lord Brooke, and his wife, Elizabeth, one of the daus. and co-heirs of the Lord Beauchamp, of Powyk,† which wardship tended, in a great degree, to the subsequent elevation of the family. Sir Edward m. Anne, dau. of John Denton, Esq. of Amersden, co. Bucks, and had issue, (he d. 20th HENRY VII.,)

JOHN, (Sir) of Milcote and Drayton, M.P.‡ for the co. Warwick, whose great-grandson,

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE, of Milcote and Drayton,

* Leland says, "The first notable increase of the landes of Graville, of Draiton, cam by one Lewis Groville, who married Margaret, the daughter and heir of a noble, caulled Syr Giles Ardene."

† Lord Beauchamp, of Powyk, was descended from Walter de Beauchamp, of Alcester, brother of William, 1st EARL OF WARWICK, of the Beauchamp family; the male line of which family expired with HENRY DE BEAUCHAMP, EARL AND DUKE OF WARWICK, in 1445, when the dukedom became extinct, and the earldom devolved upon his grace's only dau. and heiress, Anne de Beauchamp, as COUNTESS OF WARWICK; but her ladyship d. unm., in four years afterwards, when her aunt, Anne Beauchamp, wife of Richard Neville, son of the Earl of Salisbury, became heiress of the family.

‡ Sir John Greville, of Milcote, m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Spencer, Esq. of Hodnot, and had an only son,

Sir Edward Greville, of Milcote and Drayton; who m. one of the daus. and co-heirs of William Willington, Esq. of Burcheston, in Warwickshire, and had an only son,

SIR EDWARD GREVILLE.

m. Joan, dau. of Sir Thomas Bromley, lord chancellor of England, and left several daus. Sir Edward, being in debt, sold his whole estate to Lionel Cranfield, Earl of Middlesex; and thus the elder branch of the Grevilles became EXTINCT.

FULKE.
Thomas.
Edward.

The second son,

SIR FULKE GREVILLE, Knt., m. Elizabeth Willoughby, the ward of his father, and the greatest heiress then in England. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) The account of this marriage is in a manuscript, entitled "The Genealogie, Life, and Death of Robert, Lord Brooke," written in 1644, and in possession of Earl Brooke. "In the days of HENRY VIII., (says the author of the manuscript,) I read of Sir Edward Grevil, of Milcote, who had the wardship of Elizabeth, one of the daus. of the Lord Brooke's son. The knt. made a motion to his ward, to be married to John, his eldest son; but she refused, saying, that she did like better of Fulke, his second son. He told her that he had no estate of land to maintain her: and that he was in the king's service of warre beyond the seas, and therefore his return was very doubtful. Shee replied and said, that shee had an estate sufficient both for him and for herself; and that shee would pray for his safeties and wait for his coming. Upon his returne home, for the worthy services he had performed, he was, by KING HENRY, honoured with knighthood; and then married Elizabeth, the dau. of the Lord Brooke's son." By this marriage the manor of Alcester, and many other fair lordships and lands, came to Sir Fulke in right of his wife; who seating himself at Beauchamp's Court, and augmenting his large estate by the purchase of sundry lands in the neighbourhood, raised his family to high distinction in the co. Warwick. Of this marriage there were, with other issue,

- II. Robert, of Thorpe-Latymor, co. Lincoln, whose eldest son,

FULKE GREVILLE, left issue,

Sir Fulke was s. by his eldest son,

In the 2nd of KING JAMES's reign he obtained a grant of WARWICK CASTLE, with the gardens and other dependencies about it, and was elevated to the peerage, 18 Jan. 1620-1, by the title of Lord Brooke, Baron Brooke, of Beauchamp's Court, co. Warwick; with limitation, in default of heirs male of his own body, to his kinsman, Robert Greville, son to Fulke Greville, Esq. of Thorpe Latimer, co. Lincoln. His lordship d. 30 Sept. 1628, and was buried in his own vault, in the great church of Warwick, under a monument, which he had erected himself, with this remarkable inscription:

Lineage.

PHILIP DE-CAPELL, from whom Sir Arthur de-Capell-Brooke lineally descends, accompanied Fitz-Stephen into Ireland, and had large grants of lands for his services there: those lands, comprising the estate of Ahadoe, in the co. Cork, with the mansion-house, the remains of an ancient castle, have remained ever since (a period of nearly 700 years) in his descendants, and are still held by the original tenure of knight's service, viz., the annual presentation of a pair of spurs at Easter.

The family of BROOKE issued originally from the house of Latham, or Leighton, in Cheshire, from which, in the time of STEPHEN, three eminent branches sprang, viz., the Brookes of Cheshire; the Brookes, Lords Cobham; and the Brookes of Oakley.

WILLIAM BROOKE, of Astwell, in the co. Northampton, exchanged, sometime in the 14th century, the manor of Astwell and other lands, with Thomas Lovett, for the manors of GREAT OAKLEY and Rushton. He m. the niece of Sir Thomas Billinge, lord chief justice of EDWARD IV., and had a son and heir,

* The bear and ragged staff belonged to the Saxon Earls of Warwick, derived from the chivalrous Guy. It was adopted by the Newburghs, the first Earls of Warwick after the Conquest.

I. RICHARD-BROOKE SUPPLE, Esq., F.R.S., who assumed, by sign manual, 1797, upon succeeding to the estate of GREAT OAKLEY, the surname of BROOKE, in obedience to the testamentary injunction of his great uncle; and he adopted, at the same time, the original surname of his family DE-CAPELL,* instead of Supple, also by royal licence. * FAMILY OF DE-CAPELL.

The surname of DE-CAPELL is supposed to have been corrupted to SUPPLE. BROUGHAM AND VAUX, BARON, (Henry Brougham,) of Brougham, co. Westmorland, b. 19 Sept. 1778; m. 1819, Mary-Anne, eldest dau. of Thomas, 4th son of Sir John Eden, Bart. of Windleston, co. Durham, niece of the Lords Auckland and Henley, and widow of John Spalding, Esq., by whom he has one surviving dau.,

ELEANOR-LOUISA.

This eminent person, after a long series of great and gratuitous public services, was constituted lord chancellor, and created a peer of the realm, on the accession of the Grey administration, in 1830. He retired with his party, in 1834.

Lord Brougham is heir-general and representative of a branch of the ancient and princely house of VAUX.

Lineage.

The family of BROUGHAM claims Saxon descent, and derives its surname from Burgham, afterwards called Brougham, a parish in the co. Westmorland, the ancient Brovacum, or Brovoniacum, of the Romans. The learned Camden says: "Eden runs along not far from Howgill, a castle of the Sandfords; but the Roman military way passes directly through Whinfield, a large park thick set with trees, to Brovoniacum, twenty Italian miles, but seventeen English, from Verteræ, as Antoninus has fixed it; he calls it also Brocovum, as the Notitia Broconiacum, from which we understand the company of Defensores had their abode here. Though age has consumed both its buildings and splendour, the name is preserved almost entire in the present one of BROUGHAM; the antiquity whereof has been further confirmed of late years, by the discovery of Roman coins, altars, and other testimonies." The ancient line of the BROUGHAMS is likewise alluded to by Hutchinson, in his History of Cumberland. "This family," he observes, "may be said to stand unusually eminent in point of antiquity; from having originally assumed the name of the Roman station—an area to the south of Brougham Castle, the vallum and outward ditch of which are yet very distinguishable."

WALTER DE BURGHAM was lord of the manor and estate of Burgham, in the time of EDWARD the Confessor, and he retained possession after the Conquest, as tenant in capite, by the tenure of Drengage.*

From him descended

SIR ODARD DE BURGHAM, Knt., Lord of Burgham, in the time of HENRY II., and third in command of the king's forces in the north. In the 22nd of the same reign, Sir Odard paid a fine of 20 marks into the Exchequer for delivering up Appleby Castle to the King of Scots. He was s. by his son,

GILBERT DE BURGHAM, who, in the reign of JOHN, alienated a moiety of the village of Burgham, a large portion of the estates, and the advowson of the rectory of Burgham, to Robert de Veteripont, upon condition that the remainder might be held by him and his heirs, free from the service of Drengage. This Gilbert was s. by

HENRY DE BURGHAM, lord of the manor of Burgham, in the reign of EDWARD I. In 1303, his dau., Dorothy, m. John de Carlton, ancestor of the Barons Dorchester. In the time of EDWARD III.,

JOHN DE BURGHAM possessed the manor, and was sheriff of Westmorland, in 1351, under Lord Clifford. He was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE BURGHAM, Knt., who having some dispute with Lord Clifford, respecting the extent of the manor, a solemn deed was entered into between them, for the purpose of defining and fixing for ever the boundaries of the manor of Burgham. This instrument bears date the 2nd of RICHARD II., and is enrolled amongst the records preserved in the Rolls Chapel. In 1383, Sir John de Burgham was knight of the shire for the co. Cumberland, with John de Kirkby, and was s. at his decease by

JOHN DE BURGHAM, Lord of Burgham, who represented

* DRENGAGE. The Drengage, according to Spelman, was a military tenure, and those who retained their estates after the Conquest by such service were of knightly degree. They were permitted by the CONQUEROR to hold their estates upon shewing their original right to the lands; and that they were nec in auxilio, nec in concilio, against the new monarch.

The same authority, after giving examples of the tenure from ancient grants and documents, in which it appears that the Drenches were lords of manors and had rights of heirship and wardship, proceeds—"Sunt igitur Drenches vassali quidam militares, vel ut nostri forenses loquuntur, TENENTES PER SERVICIUM MILITARE."

the city of Carlisle in parliament, in 1394 and 1396, and was s. by

JOHN DE BURGHAM, Lord of Burgham, and, in 1436, knight of the shire, with William Stapilton, for the co. Cumberland. This John appears subsequently to have dropped the DE before his name. He was s. by

JOHN BURGHAM, who was Lord of Burgham, in the reign of EDWARD IV.; and by an inquisition, post mortem, taken at Burgham, 1494, it was found that the said John died seised of the manor, and that he was s. by his son and heir,

JOHN BURGHAM, who, in 1504, paid eleven shillings cornage for certain lands in Burgham, to Henry, Lord Clifford. He was s. by

GILBERT BURGHAM, Lord of Burgham, temp. HEN. VIII., who was s. by

THOMAS BURGHAM, Lord of Burgham, 1553. This gentleman m. Jane,* dau. and heiress of John Vaux, of Catterlen and Tryermayne, by whom he had two sons, viz.,

I. HENRY BROUGHAM, who inherited Brougham, 1567. This gentleman had a chancery suit with one Thomas Bird, and conveyed to him certain lands by deed, dated in that year. He was s. by his son,

THOMAS, who was in the commission of the peace for the co. Cumberland. This Thomas sold a portion of the lands of Brougham to Thomas Anson, and the remainder, in the following year, to James Bird. He d. s. p. 1607, and was buried in the chancel of the church of Brougham.

II. Peter Brougham.

The younger son,

PETER BROUGHAM, of Blackhall, in the co. Cumberland, m. the heiress of John Southaike, of Scales, in the same shire, and thus acquired that estate. He d. 1570, and was s. by his son,

HENRY BROUGHAM, of Scales and Blackhall. This gentleman served the office of sheriff for the co. Cumberland. He m. 1st, Jane, dau. of John Wharton, of Kirby-Thore, by whom he had an only dau.,

Jane, m. to Edward Aglionby.

Mr. Brougham m. 2ndly, Catherine, dau. of Thomas Fallowfield, of Melkinthorpe Hall, co. Westmorland; and dying 1622, was s. by his son,

THOMAS BROUGHAM, Esq. of Scales, who served the office of sheriff for Cumberland. He m. Mary, dau. of Daniel Fleming, Esq. of Skirwith, (ancestor of the Flemings of Rydal, created a Bart. 1705,) and had, with other issue,

HENRY, his successor.

Agnes, m. to Anthony Wybergh, Esq., youngest son of Thomas Wybergh, Esq. of Clifton Hall, Westmorland.

Mr. Brougham d. 1648, and was s. by his son,

HENRY BROUGHAM, Esq. of Scales, who enlarged his possessions there, and erected Scales Hall. Bishop Nicholson, in his "MSS. of a Cursory Relation of all the Antiquities of Families of Cumberland," written about 1675, speaks thus of this Henry and his predecessors:—"Next adjoining Squire Browham, ancient heir male of all the Squire Browhams, of Browham Hall, in Westmorland, built him a very fine house at Scales, and lives there. His grandfather, Henry Browham, married Jane Wharton, daughter of Squire Wharton, of Kirby-Thore. His father, Thomas, married Mary, daughter of Squire Daniel Fleming, of Skirwith, and cousin of Squire Fleming, Lord of Ridall; and this Squire Browham married fair Miss Slee, dau. of Mr. Slee, of Carlisle, a jovial gentleman of £300 a-year." By this lady he had four children, of whom none succeeded him. He m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of John Lamplugh, Esq. of Lamplugh, in Cumberland, (see BURKE's Commoners, vol. iii. p. 162,) and had seven sons and two daus. Of these,

I. JOHN, succeeded to the estate of Scales.

II. Peter, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Christopher Richmond, Esq. of Highhead Castle, co. Cumberland, (who was grandson and heir of John Vaux, of Catterlen, through his mother, Mabel Vaux, that gentleman's dau. and sole heir,) and left issue,

JOHN BROUGHAM, Esq., commonly called Commissioner Brougham, who purchased back, in 1726, from the grandchildren of James Bird, the ancient seat of the family, Brougham Hall, and entailed it upon his four nephews, in succession, and their heirs male; by the eldest surviving of whom (the elder son of his younger brother Samuel) he was succeeded, namely,

JOHN BROUGHAM, Esq., the bencher of Gray's-Inn. This gentleman d. s. p. in 1756, and was s. by his brother,

He devised Scales Hall to his younger children, by whom it was sold to Peter Lamplugh Brougham, Esq. of Dovenby, (which Peter assumed the name of Lamplugh, by sign manual, in 1783, in consequence of a proviso in the will of Elizabeth Irton, only dau. and heir of Thomas Lamplugh.) He m. 2ndly, in 1835, a dau. of the late R. Watson, Esq. Sir James s. as 6th bart., (after the title had remained for several years dormant,) as heir male of his cousin, Sir Alexander Broun, who d. 1775.

Lineage.

According to family tradition, the house of Colstoun was founded soon after the Norman Conquest by a French warrior, who bore the arms of, and claimed alliance to, the royal family of France.

WALTERUS LE BRUN flourished at an early period of the 12th century, and was one of the barons who witnessed an instrument of inquisition respecting the possessions of the church of Glasgow, made by Prince David, (in 1116,) during the reign of his brother, ALEXANDER I.

SIR DAVID LE BRUN, by a judicial transumpt, devised, to the Abbey of Holyrood House, "lands and acres in territories de Colstoun," for prayers to be said for "the soul of ALEXANDER and the health of his son." Sir David was one of the witnesses, along with KING DAVID I., in laying the foundation of the abbey of Holyrood House, 13 May, 1125.

RALPH LE BRUN, one of the Scottish barons who swore fealty at Berwick, 28 Aug. 1296.

RICHARD LE BRUN, Keeper of the king's peace in Westmorland and Cumberland, and one of the principal noblemen who headed the conspiracy occasioned by the demand of the charters in the year 1323.

WILLIAM BROUN, of Colstoun, in the reign of JAMES I.

m. Margaret de Annand, co-heiress of the Barony of Sauchy, descended of the ancient Lords of Annandale, a family which gave kings and queens to Britain, Robert de Bruce, having m. Agnes de Annand, heiress of that county, whence the present royal line.

SIR WILLIAM BROUN, of Colstoun, Warden of the West Border, commanded the Scots in a battle fought against the English, in the parish of Dornock Annandale, in which the latter were defeated, and their commanders, Sir Marmaduke Langdale and Lord Crosbie, slain. So sanguinary was the conflict, that tradition says, a spring-well upon the spot ran blood for three days.

WILLIAM BROUN, of Colstoun, who flourished in 1480, and downwards, was lord director of the court of Chancery.

GEORGE BROUN, of Colstoun, fl. cir. 1611, and m. Jean Hay, dau. of Lord Yester, ancestor of the Marquess of Tweeddale. The dowry of this lady consisted of the famous "Colstoun pear," which Hugh de Gifford, of Yester, who d. in 1267, her remote ancestor, famed for his necromantic powers, was supposed to have invested with the extraordinary virtue of securing, for the family who might possess it, unfailing prosperity. This PALLADIUM is preserved at Colstoun with the care due to so singular an heir-loom, which, regardless of the superstition, must be esteemed a very wonderful vegetable curiosity, having existed more than five centuries. (See Chambers' Picture of Scotland.)

Various other notices occur of chiefs of the family in the parliamentary record and meetings of Estates, together with names long associated with the history of those times, down to George Broun, of Colstoun, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir D. Murray, of Stanhope, Bart., by his wife, the Lady Lelias Fleming, dau. of John Earl of Wigtoun, by a dau. of John, Earl of Montrose, and had a younger son, George, who m. a dau. of Spottiswoode, of Spottiswoode; to whom he granted, by charter, the Barony of Thornydyke, and

II. SIR GEORGE BROUN, who m. the Lady Elizabeth M'Kenzie, dau. of George, 1st Earl of Cromarty; and d. 1718, without male issue. It is reported of Lady Elizabeth, the first night after her marriage that she slept at Colstoun House, that she dreamed she had eaten the pear, which her father-in-law looked on as a bad omen, and expressed great fears that she would be an instrument in the destruction of the house of Colstoun. Whether owing to the lady's fault does not appear, but, shortly after, the family split betwixt the heirs-male and the heirs-of-line; the title devolving upon the Thornydyke branch, and the estates upon an heiress, who married George Brown, of Eastfield, and from whom are descended the latter family, represented by George Brown, Lord Coalston, of Session, (who m. a dau. of D. Dalrymple, Lord Westhall;) the late Charles Brown of Colstoun, who m. a dau. of M'Dowall, of Logan; and the Countess of Dalhousie.

III. SIR GEORGE BROUN, son of Alexander Broun, of Thornydyke Castle and Bassendean, by Catherine, dau. of Sir Alexander Swinton, of Swinton, s. his cousin, and died without male issue, and was s. by his brother, BRYDGES, SIR JOHN-WILLIAM-EGERTON, of Denton Court, co. Kent; b. in Nov. 1791; s. his father, 8 Sept. 1837. He was formerly in the 14th light dragoons.

Lineage.

The very ancient family of Brydges* deduces its descent from

SIR SIMON DE BRUGGE, of Herefordshire, who flourished in the reign of HENRY III., and who seems to have been a branch of the old Counts de Rethel, in the province of Champagne, in France, princes of the first distinction in that kingdom, sprung by various alliances from the house of Charlemagne, and afterwards memorable in the Crusades. In the time of HENRY IV.,

THOMAS BRUGES m. Alice, dau. and co-heir of Sir Thomas Berkeley, Knt. of Coberley, by Margaret, sister and heiress of Sir John Chandos, (a family of nobles who had held baronial rank from the Conquest;) and from this Thomas descended

JOHN BRUGES, who was elevated to the peerage by PHILIP and MARY, at their coronation, 8 April, 1554, by the title of Baron Chandos, of Sudley Castle, co. Gloucester. His lordship d. 1757, and was s. by his eldest son,

EDMUND, 2nd lord; from whom descended, in succession, five more Lords Chandos; and at the demise of

WILLIAM, 7th lord, without issue, in 1676, the barony passed to his cousin,

SIR JAMES BRYDGES, Bart. of Wilton, as heir male of Charles, 2nd son of the 1st baron. His lordship d. 1714, and was s. by his eldest son,

JAMES, who was created Viscount Wilton, and Earl of Carnarvon, in 1714; and Marquess of Carnarvon, and Duke of Chandos, in 1729, which honours expired with

JAMES, the 3rd duke, in 1789; but the ancient barony of Chandos was claimed by

* At a very early period the family was divided into three branches, seated at Standon, at Cobberley, and at the Lee. The first-named terminated with an heiress, Joanna, who m. Sir John Baskerville, of Erdingley; the second was elevated to the peerage, and the third was still living at the Lee in 1684.

The REV. EDWARD-TYMEWELL BRYDGES, as heir male of Anthony, 3rd son of John, 1st Baron Chandos, (the male line of the two elder sons having ceased with the 7th baron and 2nd duke.) The claim was contested before the House of Lords, from 1790 to 1803; the opposition was strenuous; and the lords* came to a resolution, by which the right, so far as a committee could go, was suspended. His brother and heir,

SIR SAMUEL-EGERTON BRYDGES, b. 30 Nov. 1762, persevered, however, in his claim, and asserted himself to be legally entitled. He was the second son of the late Edward Brydges, Esq. of Wootton Court, co. Kent, by Jemima, daughter and co-heir of William Egerton, LL.D., grandson of John, 2nd Earl of Bridgewater, by Elizabeth, daughter of William Cavendish, Duke of Newcastle. Sir Samuel-Egerton Brydges had one surviving brother, SIR JOHN-WILLIAM-HEAD BRYDGES, M.P. for Coleraine, who m. 1812, Lady Isabella-Anne Beresford, eldest dau. of George, 1st Marquess of Waterford, and has a son, John, b. 1814, and two daus. Sir Egerton had also five sisters—of whom Anne m. the Rev. George Lefroy, and d. Dec. 1804; Deborah m. Henry Maxwell, Esq. of Ewshot House, Hants, and d. 1789; and Charlotte was 1st, the wife of Champion Branfill, Esq. of Upminster Hall, in Essex, and 2ndly, of John Harrison, Esq. of Denn Hill, near Canterbury. Sir Samuel, who was bred to the bar, distinguished himself in the literary world, particularly as a genealogist, having edited, with great ability, the last impression of Collins' Peerage: he also obtained celebrity as a biographer and poet. He was elected a knight grand commander of the equestrian secular and chapteral order of St. Joachim in 1807, chosen M.P. for Maidstone at the general election in 1812, and created a Bart. 27 Dec. 1814. He m. 1st, in Jan. 1786, Elizabeth, dau. and sole heir of the late Rev. William Dejovas Byrche, by Elizabeth, his wife, only sister of the late Thomas Barrett, Esq. of Lee Priory, near Canterbury, by whom (who d. in July, 1796) he had issue,

- I. THOMAS, b. 20 June, 1789, who assumed the additional surname of Barrett, on inheriting the estates of his uncle. He was capt. and lieutenant-col. gren. guards. Col. Barrett, d. unm. 1 June, 1834.

- III. Charlotte-Katherine, m. in Nov. 1820, to Frederic-Dashwood Swanne, Esq.

Sir Egerton m. 2ndly, Mary, dau. of the Rev. William Robinson, rector of Burfield, Berks, and niece of Matthew, 2nd Lord Rokeby, by whom he had,

- I. Egerton-Anthony, b. 16 Jan. 1802; in holy orders, rector of Denton, Kent, M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge.

- V. Jane-Grey, d. 5 July, 1835.

Sir Egerton d. 8 Sept. 1837, at Campagne Gros Jean, near Geneva.

* That the decision of a lords' committee is not conclusive, we are borne out by the report of the Attorney-Gen. Gibbs in 1808, upon the Banbury peerage. That learned person therein states, that he considers himself bound, by the high authority of Lord Holt, in 1693, to declare, "that a resolution of a lords' committee is not conclusive." Should a claimant, therefore, insist upon a legal trial, he is certainly entitled to it, and ought not to be deprived of his inheritance but by a legal judgment. The opinion of a lords' committee cannot, with any accuracy, be called the judgment of the highest tribunal in the kingdom; for a lords' committee must not be confounded with the high court of parliament, which is a court of appeal. Some remarks made upon our original observations required this explanation. For a full account of the celebrated Chandos case, see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.

Lineage.

SIR RICHARD LE SCOT, the undoubted ancestor of this family, was a person of great distinction in the reign of ALEXANDER III., of Scotland. He m. the dau. and heiress of Murthockstone, of that ilk, by whom he obtained a considerable estate in Lanarkshire, and, as a feudal lord thereof, swore fealty to EDWARD I., of England, anno 1296. Upon his marriage, Sir Richard assumed the cognizance of Murthockstone, which was a bend azure, into his armorial bearings, disposing thereon the crescents and star, the arms of Scot, as since borne by the Dukes of Buccleuch. He d. 1320; and from him lineally descended

SIR DAVID SCOT, of Branxholm, who sat in the parliament held by JAMES III. at Edinburgh, anno 1487, under the designation of "Dominus de Buccleuch," being the first of the family so designated. The grandson of this Sir David,

SIR WALTER SCOT, of Branxholm and Buccleuch, s. in 1492. This laird, a brave and powerful baron, and Warden of the west marches of Scotland, is celebrated by historians for deeds of valour and magnanimity, during the minority of JAMES V., and for an abortive attempt to rescue that monarch from the control of the Earl of Angus; on which Sir Walter Scott has founded 'THE LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL.* Soon after the king had assumed the management of his own affairs, he privately solicited the aid of Buccleuch, who, being apprised that JAMES, accompanied by Angus and a considerable retinue, was coming to Melross, raised about 1000 horse of his friends and followers, to relieve the king. The adherents of Buccleuch and Angus came in sight near Melross, 18 July, 1526, and a sanguinary conflict ensued; but the earl was successful, after the fall of a number of men of rank on both sides, Sir Walter Scott himself being wounded and barely escaping from the field. He was afterwards distinguished at the battle of Pinkie, anno 1547; and eventually lost his life in a rencounter with Sir Walter Kerr, of Cessford, in the streets of Edinburgh, 1552. Sir Walter m. 1st, Elizabeth Carmichael, of the Hyndford family, by whom he had two sons. He m. 2ndly, Janet, dau. of John Bethune, of Creich, "of Bethune's line of Picardie," and had two sons and three daus. The last lady of Sir Walter was a woman of masculine spirit, as appeared from her riding at the head of her clan after her husband's murder. Sir Walter Scott was s. by his grandson,

SIR WALTER SCOTT, of Buccleuch. This was a person of rare qualities, wise, true, stout, and modest. He signed the association in support of JAMES VI. in 1567, but subsequently turned to the party of the queen, to whom he remained faithful notwithstanding her extorted resignation of the crown, and her captivity in England. He m. Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest dau. of David, 7th Earl of Angus, and dying 17 April, 1574, was s. by his only son,

SIR WALTER SCOTT, of Buccleuch. This powerful chieftain, no way inferior to the bravest of his ancestors in courage and intrepidity, received the honour of knighthood from JAMES VI., by whom he was appointed warden of the west marches in 1590. Having subsequently carried on a predatory warfare against the English, and boldly rescued one of his attendants, KINMONT WELL, from the castle of Carlisle, he was delivered up as a hostage upon an adjustment of the feuds between the English and Scots. During his sojourn in England, family tradition states that he was brought into the presence of QUEEN ELIZABETH, who demanded, in her usual arbitrary manner, how he dared to engage in deeds so desperate and presumptuous? "What is it," answered the undaunted chieftain, "what is it that a man dares not do?" ELIZABETH, struck with this reply, said to a lord in waiting, "With ten thousand such men, our brother of Scotland might shake the firmest throne in Europe." Sir Walter was elevated to the peerage, 16 March, 1606, as Lord Scott, of Buccleuch. His lordship afterwards, as a military commander, attained considerable renown in the Netherlands, under Maurice, Prince of Orange. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir William Ker, of Cessford, and sister of Robert, 1st Earl of Roxburgh, and dying in 1611, was s. by his only son,

WALTER, 2nd baron, who was created, 16 March, 1619, Lord Whitchester and Eskdale, and Earl of Buccleuch, with remainder to his heirs whatsoever. This nobleman was also a military character, and had the command of a regiment under the States of Holland, against the Spaniards. His lordship m. Lady Mary Hay, dau. of Francis, Earl of Errol, and dying in 1633, was s. by his only son,

FRANCIS, 2nd earl, who m. Lady Margaret Lesly, only dau. of John, Earl of Rothes, and widow of Lord Bal-

* "I am not the first," says Sir Walter Scott, in a note to the 'LAY OF THE LAST MINSTREL,' "who has attempted to celebrate in verse the renown of this ancient baron, and his hazardous attempt to procure his sovereign's freedom." "In consequence of the battle of Melrose," continues Sir Walter, "there ensued a deadly feud betwixt the names of Scott and Kerr, which, in spite of all means to bring about an agreement, raged for many years upon the borders. Buccleuch was imprisoned, and his estates forfeited, in the year 1535, for levying war against the Kerrs, and restored by act of parliament, dated 15 March, 1542, during the REGENCY of MARY of Lorraine. But the most signal act of violence to which the quarrel gave rise was the murder of Sir Walter himself, who was slain in the streets of Edinburgh by the Kerrs, in 1552."

gonie; by whom he left, at his decease in 1651, two daus., and was s. by the elder,

MARY, Countess of Buccleugh. Her ladyship m. Walter Scott, of Highchester, afterwards created Earl of Tarras for life; at the time of her marriage the countess was but eleven years of age, and Mr. Scott fourteen. The affair made a considerable noise, and became matter of discussion before the provincial Synod of Fife, in 1659, upon an accusation against the presbytery for granting a warrant for the marriage without proclamation. The presbytery was, however, absolved, because the order was grounded upon an act of the general assembly, allowing such marriages in case of necessity, or fear of rape; and the lady's friends were apprehensive of her being carried off. The countess died in two years afterwards without issue, and was s. by her sister,

ANNE, 2nd countess, b. 1651. This lady, who was esteemed the greatest heiress and finest woman of her time, m. 1663, James, Duke of Monmouth, K.G., illegitimate son of CHARLES II. by Mrs. Lucy Walters, dau. of Richard Walters, Esq. of Haverford West, co. Pembroke. His grace, upon his marriage, assumed the name of SCOTT, and himself and his duchess were created, 20 April, 1673, DUKE and DUCHESS of BUCCLEUCH, Earl and Countess of Dalkeith, Baron and Baroness of Whitchester and Eskdale, in Scotland, with remainder to their heirs male, in default of which to the heirs whatever descending from the duke's body, succeeding in the estate and Earldom of Buccleuch. His grace's honours, however, (Scottish and English,) were forfeited, upon the execution of the duke, 15 July, 1685; while those enjoyed by the duchess in her own right, (Dukedom of Buccleuch by creation, and Earldom of Buccleuch by inheritance,) remained unaffected by the attainder. The surviving issue of this union were JAMES, Earl of Dalkeith, and HENRY, created Earl of Deloraine, Viscount Hermitage and Baron Scott, in 1706, which honours became extinct, with the 4th earl, in 1807. The duchess m. 2ndly, Charles, 3rd Lord Cornwallis, and, at her demise, 6 Feb. 1732, was s. by her grandson,

FRANCIS, as 2nd duke (son of the Earl of Dalkeith, by Henrietta, 2nd dau. of Laurence Hyde, Earl of Rochester.) His grace obtained a restoration of the Earldom of Doncaster, and Barony of Scott, of Tynedale, the English honours of his grandfather, the Duke of Monmouth, by act of parliament, in 1743. He m. 5 April, 1720, Lady Jane Douglas, eldest dau. of James, 2nd Duke of Queensbury, by whom he had issue, Francis, Earl of Dalkeith, who, pre-deceasing him, left, by his Countess Caroline,* eldest dau. and co-heir of John, 2nd Duke of Argyll and Greenwich, a son HENRY, and a posthumous dau., Frances, m. to Archibald Lord Douglas. Lineage.

THE EARLDOM OF BUCHAN, a dignity of great antiquity in Scotland, can be traced to the time of WILLIAM THE LION, when,

FERGUS, Earl of Buchan, made a grant of a mark of silver annually to the Abbey of Aberbrothwick. The only dau. and heiress of this feudal chieftain,

MARJORY, Countess of Buchan, espoused, in the beginning of the twelfth century,

WILLIAM CUMYN, who then became, in right of that lady, Earl of Buchan, and the earldom remained in his family until forfeited by,

JOHN CUMYN, 3rd Earl of Buchan, in 1308. This nobleman m. Isabel, dau. of Duncan, Earl of Fife, a lady celebrated for her patriotism and high spirit, in placing the crown on the head of Robert Bruce, at his coronation at Scone, 29 March, 1306, her brother, Duncan, Earl of Fife, to whom, as the successor of Macduff, that privilege belonged, being then in the English interest. On this account she is denominated by the English writers the most impious of all traitresses. Falling the same year into the hands of EDWARD I., that monarch avenged himself in a manner which sufficiently indicated the importance of the service her ladyship had rendered to Bruce. He issued immediate orders that the Chamberlain of Scotland do, in one of the turrets of the castle of Berwick-upon-Tweed, cause to be constructed a cage, strongly latticed with wood, cross-barred, and secured with iron, in which he shall put the Countess of Buchan, and that he do cause her to be so strictly guarded that she may not speak with any one of the Scottish nation, nor with any one else, saving with the woman who shall be appointed to attend her, or with the guard who shall have the custody of her person; and that the cage be constructed so that the countess may have therein the convenience of a decent chamber, &c. In this terrible state of incarceration, her ladyship remained until released by EDWARD II., in 1313.

THE EARLDOM OF BUCHAN was next granted (having reverted to the crown by the forfeiture of the CUMYNS,) by ROBERT II. to his third son, by his wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Adam Mure, of Rowallan, to

SIR ALEXANDER STEWART, who had also a proportion of the lands of the Cumyns. On the demise of this nobleman without legitimate issue, in 1394, the Earldom of Buchan passed to (the eldest son of his brother, Robert, Duke of Albany, by his second wife, Muriella, dau. of Sir William de Keith, grand marischal of Scotland,) his nephew,

JOHN STEWART. This nobleman, a great military character, attained high reputation, by the defeat of the English, under the Duke of Clarence, at Beauge,* in Anjou, 22 March, 1421. In this engagement the Duke of Clarence was slain, having been stunned and unhorsed by Buchan himself, with a blow of his mace. For this exploit CHARLES VII. conferred upon him the sword of constable of France. The earl fell at the battle of Verneuil, 17 Aug. 1424; leaving, by his wife, Lady Elizabeth Douglas, an only dau., Margaret, who m. George, 2nd Lord Seton. At his lordship's decease the Earldom of Buchan devolved, according to the limitation, upon Mordac, Duke of Albany, and reverted to the crown, by the forfeiture of that nobleman the next year. The dignity was next conferred upon,

JAMES STEWART, called Hearty James, 2nd son of Sir James Stewart, the Black Knight of Lorn, by JANE, Queen of Scotland, mother (by JAMES I.) of JAMES II.; and by his male descendants the Earldom of Buchan was enjoyed until the decease of,

JOHN, 3rd earl, who was s. by (the dau. of his eldest son, John, master of Buchan, killed at the battle of Pinkie, 10 Sept. 1547,) his grandau.,

CHRISTIAN STEWART, Countess of Buchan, who espousing Robert Douglas, 2nd son of Sir Robert Douglas of Lochleven, that gentleman became, in her right,

ROBERT DOUGLAS, Earl of Buchan. His lordship was s. by his son,

JAMES DOUGLAS, who was served heir to his father, in 1583, under the designation of "James Douglas," and to his mother in 1588, as James, now "Earl of Buchan." His lordship d. 1601, and left an only dau.

MARY DOUGLAS, Countess of Buchan. This heiress m. James Erskine, eldest son by his 2nd wife, of John, Earl of Marr, lord high treasurer of Scotland, who thereupon assumed the Earldom of Buchan. On the resignation of the countess, with Mr. Erskine's consent, a royal charter of the earldom was granted, 22 May, 1617, to her ladyship and her husband, the said James Erskine, and the longest liver of them, and the heirs male of their marriage; whom failing, to the nearest lawful heirs male and assigns whatever of the said

And, by a subsequent charter, 10 June, 1610, his lordship acquired the right of assigning the said barony to whomsoever he thought proper. The earl m. 1st, Anne, 2nd dau. of David, 2nd Lord Drummond; and had an only son, JAMES, who inherited the Earldom of Marr. At the Revolution, the Earl of Buchan adhered to JAMES, and took up arms in his cause, for which he was committed prisoner to the Castle of Stirling, where he died unmarried, in 1695. The succession to the earldom of Buchan, which devolved, under the charter of 1625, to Lord Cardross, appears to have been disputed by Fraser, of Innerlachie, the heir-of-line. The parliament of Scotland, however, passed an act in 1698, allowing the son and successor of the said Henry, 3rd Lord Cardross,

DAVID ERSKINE, 4th Lord Cardross, to be called in the rolls of parliament, as (4th) EARL OF BUCHAN. This nobleman was constituted lord-lieut. of the cos. He was appointed king's advocate in 1783, but resigned the office in the same year, on the change of administration. He was elected dean of the faculty of advocates in 1786, and appointed by the Whigs, in 1806, king's advocate, an office which he again relinquished on the retirement of his party from power. Mr. Erskine was distinguished by the amiability of his private character, the profundity of his legal knowledge, and the brilliancy of his wit. He m. 1st, 30 March, 1772, Christian, only child and heiress of George Fullerton, Esq. of Broughton Hall, by whom (who d. 1804) he had issue,

The Earl of Marr, exercising the power with which he was invested, made an assignment to his 2nd son, the above-mentioned HENRY ERSKINE, dated 30 Jan. 1617-18, which was ratified by charter, 13 March, in the same year, of the BARONY OF CARDROSS; but that gentleman dying before the earl, the said barony, at his lordship's decease, in 1634, devolved upon his grandson,

DAVID ERSKINE, 2nd Lord Cardross. This nobleman m. 1st, 1645, Anne, 5th dau. of Sir Thomas Hope, Bart. of Craighall, by whom he had a son, HENRY, his successor, and a dau., Margaret, m. to William Cunningham, of Boquhan. Sir Rowland Lytton, of Knebworth, was lord-lieut. of the counties of Essex and Herts, commander of the forces of those counties at Tilbury Fort, captain of the band of gentlemen-pensioners, &c., and Sir William Lytton, M.P. for Herts in the reign of CHARLES I., took an active part with Hampden in the earlier disturbances. He was chosen by the parliament a commissioner to treat with the king at Oxford, but afterwards resisting CROMWELL'S attempt at supreme power, suffered a temporary confinement. He died without male issue, and was s. by his grandson, LYTTON STRODE LYTTON, who dying s. p., bequeathed the estate to his cousin, William Robinson Lytton, Esq. of Guersfelt, whose grandmother was a Lytton. Lineage.

The surname originally of this family, as proved by existing records, was ST. PIERRE, and its founder in England, a Norman, attaching himself to the fortunes of HUGH LUPUS, Earl of Chester, the CONQUEROR'S nephew, obtained from his patron a portion of the barony of Malpas, with other lands in the Palatine, of which the manor of Bunbury made a part. The name of St. Pierre became, however, extinct in the beginning of the 15th century, and the designation of Bunbury, having been previously adopted by the descendant of the 1st St. Pierre, has since been retained. The immediate progenitor of the present family,

ALEXANDER DE BUNBURY, feudal Lord of Bunbury, was living in the reign of HENRY III., and from him descended,

DAVID DE BUNBURY, Lord of Bunbury, living temp. EDWARD II., who m. the only child and heiress of David de Stannish, or Stanny, and thus acquired the lordship of Stanny, near the city of Chester, which has remained ever since in the family. From this union lineally sprang,

Sir Francis s. as 5th bart., on the demise of his grandfather, 22 Feb. 1797.

Lineage.

HUGH DE BURDETT, one of the Norman soldiers of the Conquest, was father of

WILLIAM BURDETT, who became Lord of Louseby, co. Leicester, and founded the priory at Ancote, near Sockington, co. Warwick, temp. HENRY II. His lineal descendant,

SIR ROBERT BURDETT, Knt., m. Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of Sir Gerard de Camville, with whom he obtained the manor of Arrow, in Warwickshire, where he settled. This gentleman represented the co. Warwick in parliament, in the 14th of EDWARD II., and in three years afterwards was one of the commissioners for the gaol delivery at Warwick. He subsequently represented Leicestershire, and afterwards the co. Warwick again. He d. 1333, and we pass to his great-great-grandson,

SIR NICHOLAS BURDETT, Knt., who fell at the battle of Pontoise, in 1440. This gentleman was chief butler of Normandy, and governor of Eureux: by his wife, Joan, cousin and heiress of Henry Bruin, he obtained the manor of Bramcote, in Warwickshire, and left a son and heir,

THOMAS BURDETT, Esq. of Arrow, a person of great note and figure in the co. Warwick, who fell a victim to his attachment to the Duke of Clarence, temp. EDWARD IV. Having intemperately wished the horns of a white buck, which he had heard that the king had killed in his park of Arrow, in the belly of the monarch's adviser, the opportunity was seized to arraign, convict, and execute him for high treason; and for uttering these unguarded words he was beheaded in 1477. After his death, a great contest for his manor of Arrow and other estates arose between Richard Burdett, his son, by Agnes, dau. of John Waldeif; a former wife, that had been, from nearness of kindred, divorced from him in 1464; and John Burdett, his son, by Margaret, dau. of John Rodney; for the said Thomas (by licence from the crown) had alienated his lands to his younger son; of the injustice of which he became afterwards so sensible that, as he was drawn from the Tower-to the place of execution, espying the elder son at Westcheap, over against Sir Thomas Becket's Hospital, he caused himself to be stayed, and there asked his said son's forgiveness, and acknowledging the wrong he had done him, concluded that to be the cause of God's vengeance then against himself. But in the subsequent lawsuit, John, the younger son, succeeded, for Margaret, his mother, held her estate therein for life, and became the wife of Thomas Woodhill; notwithstanding which, Richard Burdett prevailed with the said John, and also with the said Margaret and her husband, to levy a fine of the manor of Arrow and other lands, and to give him possession thereof. The matter finally terminated by certain of the estates, including Arrow, passing to the dau. and heiress of Richard Burdett; and the remainder to the son and heir of John, (himself, who had attained the honour of knighthood, dying before the decision,) namely,

THOMAS BURDETT, Esq. of Bramcote, who d. about the 31st of Henry VIII., and was s. by his eldest son, (by Mary, dau. of Sir Robert Throckmorton, Knt.,)

ROBERT BURDETT, Esq., M.P. for the co. Warwick, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Cockaine, Knt. of Ashburne, co. Derby, and d. 1548. The grandson of this marriage,

He was s. by his eldest son,

Lineage.

From an ancient pedigree in the possession of the present bart., it would appear that this family is descended from Hugo de Burdett, who came into England with WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR; but, at this distance of time, the connecting link cannot be distinctly traced. The Herald's College deduces its origin from Almaricus de Burdett, who held lands at Skelmanthorpe, co. York, temp. HENRY III. His son, Robert, married Idonea, dau. and heir of Sir Robert de Baliol,* by Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir Robert de Denby, who married Margaret, dau. and heir of Sir Robert de Holland,† the son of Sir Adam de Holland, by Maud, dau. of Gilbert de Notton.

By this marriage with the heiress of the three houses of Baliol, Denby, and Holland, Robert Burdett acquired the lordships of Denby and High Holland, co. York. His son and heir,

AYMER BURDETT, m. Isabel, dau. of John Langton, Lord of Newton and Watton, co. Lancaster, and was s. by his 2nd son,

RICHARD BURDETT, who m. Joan, dau. of — Storpe, or Stopes, of Worcestershire, and was father of

ROBERT BURDETT, who m. the dau. of Humfry Bradburne, of Bradburne, co. Derby, and was s. by his son,

AYMER BURDETT, who m. Anne, dau. of Robert Neville, Knt. of Swanage, and left a son and successor,

NICHOLAS BURDETT, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Richard Wentworth, Esq. of West Bretton, and had a son,

RICHARD BURDETT, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of John Rochley, of Rochley. Their 2nd son,

THOMAS BURDETT, to whom his father gave the manor of Braithwaite and High Hayland, m. Isabel, dau. of Thomas Wentworth, of West Bretton, and was s. by his son,

FRANCIS BURDETT, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Robert Rochley, of Rochley, and was father of

FRANCIS BURDETT, who m. 1st, Katherine, dau. of Edward Boughton, of Boughton, co. Warwick, by whom he had three daus.; and 2ndly, Jane, dau. of Randall Barton, of Smithells, in Lancashire, by whom he had two sons and one dau., Frances, m. to Lieut.-Col. Thomas Metcalfe. The eldest son and heir,

FRANCIS BURDETT, Esq., m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Ferdinando Leigh, Knt. of Middleton, (now one of the seats of the Brandlings, of Gosforth,) and was s. by his only son,

I. FRANCIS BURDETT, Esq., who was created a Bart. 25 July, 1665. Sir Francis m. Frances, dau. of — Ste-

* This Sir Robert de Baliol is supposed to be of the same family as the John de Baliol who was a competitor with Bruce for the crown of Scotland.

BURGOYNE.

Lineage.

According to ancient records, the Burgoynes were settled in Cambridgeshire and Bedfordshire, at a very early period. There is an old tradition, that they held Sutton and Potton, under a rhyming grant from John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster:

"I, Iohn of Gaunt,
Do give and do graunt
To Johny Burgoyne,
And the heirs of his loyn,
Sutton and Potton,
Until the world's rotten."

The rhyme is of great antiquity, and the site of the former manor-house in Sutton Park is still called "John of Gaunt's Mount;" but it has been stated that the tradition as to the grant is without foundation; and it appears that the Duke of Lancaster's right to the manors in Potton and Sutton was contested by the Nevilles and the Latimers; it is, however, certain that all those manors eventually became vested in the Burgoynes.

ROBERT BURGOYNE, Esq., younger son of John Burgoyne, of Sutton, was one of the auditors of the Exchequer in the reign of HENRY VIII., and one of the commissioners appointed to take the surrenders of the monasteries, and had, in 1545, grants of the rectory, tithes, and all the lands of Wroxall, with other estates in the co. of Warwick. BURNETT.

BURNETT, SIR THOMAS, of Leys, co. Aberdeen; b. 22 Aug. 1788; inherited as 8th baronet, at the decease of his father, 2 Jan. 1837.

Lineage.

This family, originally of Saxon descent, has flourished for more than five centuries in the north of Scotland: there is another of the same name in the south,—Burnett of Barns, in the shire of Peebles,—which has long disputed the chiefship with its northern kin; and we believe the question is yet undecided.

According to Sir George Mackenzie, the Burnetts, of Leys, carry the hunting horn, in base, with a highlander in a hunting garb, and a greyhound, for supporters, to shew that they are the king's foresters in the north.

ALEXANDER BURNARD (as the name was originally written) obtained a charter, now in the possession of the family, from ROBERT BRUCE, of the lands of Killenach, Clerach, and the six merk land of the two Cardneys, in the shire of Aberdeen, dated 1524, the 18th of that king's reign. The grandson of this Alexander,

JOHN DE BURNARD, held the office of king's macer, for which he had a salary of ten marks sterling per annum, a very considerable sum at that period. His eldest son,

ROBERT BURNETT, is the first who bore the designation "of Leys;" from whom lineally descended

ALEXANDER BURNETT, of Leys, who m. Catherine, dau. of Alexander Gordon, Esq. of Lismore, and had six sons and seven daus. The 4th son, Robert Burnett, of Crimond, was constituted, by CHARLES II., one of the senators of the College of Justice, and assumed the title of Lord Crimond. His lordship m. Rachael, dau. of — Johnstone, Esq., a cadet of the noble family of Annandale, by whom he had two sons; the elder of whom was Dr. Gilbert Burnett, Bishop of Salisbury, the celebrated historian of "His Own Times." Alexander Burnett, of Leys, was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

I. SIR THOMAS BURNETT, Knt. of Leys, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever, 21 April, 1626. This gentleman was, subsequently, a strenuous opponent of the measures of the court, and, in conjunction with the great Marquess of Montrose, an active covenanter. He retired eventually, however, into private life, and seems to have remained unmolested by both parties. Sir Thomas was s. at his decease by his grandson,

II. SIR ALEXANDER, who was s. by his only son,

III. SIR THOMAS. This gentleman was member of the Scottish parliament for the co. Kincardine, from 1703 until the final dissolution of that assembly, and distinguished himself by his zealous hostility to the measure of union. He m. Margaret, dau. of Robert, 2nd Viscount Arbuthnot, and had two sons and three daus.,

He m. Jean, dau. of Sir John Semple, of Eliotstoun. The great-grandson of this marriage,

NINIAN STUART, having succeeded his father in the sheriffship of Bute, obtained, 1498, a new grant of the hereditary custody of the castle of Rothsay, with a salary of eighty marks yearly out of the lordship of Bute. He d. 1509, and was s. by his son,

JAMES STUART, who was infeft in his estate and heritable constabulary of Rothsay Castle, 20 May, 1509. The grandson of this James,

SIR JAMES STUART, Knt. of Bute, m. Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Robert Hepburn, of Foord, by whom he acquired the estate of Foord, with several other lands in the co. Haddington, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN STUART, of Bute, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 1627; and adhering to the royal cause during the civil wars, suffered considerably both by fines and sequestration. Sir James m. Isabel, dau. of Sir Dougal Campbell, of Auchinbreck, and had, with other issue,

DUGALD, his successor.

Robert, of Tillicoultry, co. Clackmannan, one of the lords of session, who was created a Bart. 29 April, 1707. Sir Robert represented the co. Bute in parliament, and was one of the commissioners for the treaty of union, which he steadily supported. He resigned his gown in favour of his nephew, Dugald Stuart, of Blair Hall, 1709.

Sir James d. 1662, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR DUGALD, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Ruthven, of Dunglass, and grandau., maternally, of Alexander, 1st Earl of Leven, by whom he had (besides daus.) two sons, viz.,

JAMES, his successor.

Dugald, of Blairhall, who, having applied himself to the study of the law, became soon so celebrated that he was appointed successor to his uncle, Lord Tillicoultry, as a lord of session and justiciary, 1709. Dugald Stuart d. 1712, leaving a high character for honour, integrity, and ability. He m. Mary, dau. and heiress of John Bruce, of Blairhall, co. Perth, and had a numerous family.

Sir Dugald d. 1672, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR JAMES, who, being of the privy council to ANNE, and one of the commissioners appointed to treat of a union with England, in 1702, which did not then take effect, was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 14 April, in the following year, by the titles of Earl of Bute, Viscount Kingarth, and Lord Mountstuart, Cumra, and Inchmarnock, to himself and his heirs male whatever. In 1706, his lordship opposed the union with all his might; and when he discovered that a majority of parliament was in favour of the measure, withdrew from the house, and retired to his country seat. Leaving no male issue, the succession to the extensive estates of the right hon. gentleman in Scotland fell to be regulated by an entail executed by Sir George Mackenzie, 1689. Notwithstanding that he was the first lawyer of the age, Sir George's settlements were so ambiguously worded, that his estates were claimed by the Hon. James-Archibald-Stuart Wortley, next brother of the Marquess of Bute, and Lord Herbert-Windsor Stuart, second son of the marquess. The judgment of the court of session in Scotland in favour of Mr. Wortley was appealed to, and affirmed by, the House of Lords, 4 March, 1803.

Georgiana.

His lordship, who is a capt. R.N., inherited the honours of his family, as 7th baron, at the decease of his cousin, 19 April, 1824. He is a lord-in-waiting to the Queen.

Lineage.

The BYRONS deduce from the Conquest, when they appear to have been extensive proprietors in the co. York.

RALPH DE BURON, at the time of the survey, held divers manors in Nottinghamshire and Derbyshire. Amongst those in the latter co. was HORSELEY, in the park of which stood a castle, called HORESTAN CASTLE, which became the chief seat of the early Byrons. The grandson of Ralph,

HUGO DE BURON, feudal BARON of HORESTAN, retiring, temp. HENRY III., from secular affairs, professed himself a monk, and held the hermitage of Kersale, belonging to the priory of Lenton. He left a son,

SIR ROGER DE BURON, from whom we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR RICHARD BYRON, Knt., who m. Joan, 2nd dau. of William de Colewick, of Colewick, co. Nottingham, by which alliance considerable estates came into the family. The grandson of this marriage,

SIR NICHOLAS BYRON, Knt. of Clayton, co. Lancaster, was s. by his elder son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, who received the honour of knight-hood from HENRY VII., for the good services he had rendered that prince at Bosworth Field. This gentleman dying without issue 3 May, 1488, was s. by his brother,

SIR NICHOLAS BYRON, who was made one of the knights of the Bath at the marriage of Prince Arthur, eldest son of HENRY VII., 11 Nov. 1501. He d. 1503-4, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, Knt. This gentleman had a grant, 28 May, 1540, of the PRIORY OF NEWLTEDE, with the manor of Papilwick, and rectory of the same, with all the closes about the priory, &c. His son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, K.B., was father of

SIR JOHN BYRON, K.B., who m. Anne, eldest dau. of Sir Richard Molineux, Bart., and had,

JOHN, his successor.

Richard, of whom hereafter.

Robert, (Sir) col. of foot, on the royal side during the civil wars.

Philip, (Sir) who, after many signal services in Yorkshire, was killed at the head of his regiment, in the general storm of York, by the parliamentary army, in 1644.

Thomas, (Sir) who commanded the Prince of Wales's regiment, under the Earl of Northampton, at the battle of Hopton Heath, 19 March, 1642-3, and received a wound in the thigh, by which he was put hors de combat. He d. at Oxford, 9 Dec. 1643.

There were five other sons, and a dau., Mary, m. to Sir Thomas Lucas. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN BYRON, K.B., M.P. for the town of Nottingham in the reign of JAMES I., and for the co. Nottingham in that of CHARLES I., a faithful adherent of, and gallant officer under, the latter unfortunate prince. Sir John commanded the corps of reserve at the battle of Edge Hill; and the victory of Roundaway Down, 5 July, 1643, wherein Sir William Waller was routed, was chiefly owing to his skill and valour, having, at the head of his regiment, charged Sir Arthur Hasilrigg's cuirassiers, and after a sharp conflict, in which Sir Arthur received many wounds, compelled that impenetrable regiment (as Lord Clarendon writes) to fly. Sir John Byron, having given such proofs of his courage, and his six valiant brothers at that time following his loyal example, he was, in consideration thereof, advanced, 24 Oct. 1643, to the dignity of a Baron of the realm, by the title of LORD BYRON, of Rochdale, in the co. palatine of Lancaster, with limitation, in default of his own male issue, to each of his brothers. His lordship m. twice; but dying 1652, issueless, the barony devolved upon his brother,

RICHARD, 2nd baron. This nobleman received the honour of knighthood from CHARLES I. He was one of the valiant colonels at the battle of Edge Hill, and subsequently governor of Appulby Castle, co. Westmorland. Lloyd, who wrote the lives of the loyalists, says, he deserves to be chronicled for his government of Newark and many surprises of the enemy. His lordship m. I. WILLIAM, his successor.

II. John, Admiral, R.N. This gentleman, when a midshipman on board the Wager, one of Lord Anson's circumnavigating squadron, was cast away upon a desolate island in the South Seas, and after enduring five years of great hardships there, returned at length to England, and attained the highest rank in his gallant profession. He m. Sophia, dau. of John Trevannion, Esq. of Carhays, co. Cornwall; and dying in 1786, left, (with three daus.,)

His lordship d. 19 May, 1798, and was s. by his great-nephew, (refer to descendants of Admiral the Hon. John Byron, 2nd son of the 4th lord,)

GEORGE-GORDON, 6th baron; b. 22 Jan. 1788; who, through his mother, claimed descent from the royal house of Stuart. Illustrious, however, as the ancestry of this distinguished nobleman were, his own transcendent genius flung his hereditary honours into immeasurable shade. The greatest poet his country had ever produced, a disinterested patriot, an ardent lover of freedom, his lordship, it might be presumed, had a long and splendid course before him; but the mind of man penetrates not the vista of futurity, and this nobleman is a remarkable instance of the insufficiency of wealth, honours, genius, to secure human happiness. Untoward circumstances entirely marred the tranquillity of his private life, while his public actions were canvassed with a malignancy which nothing he had ever done, said, or written, could have warranted; eventually he fell a victim in the public cause. Having enthusiastically embarked in the affairs of Greece, and engaged personally in the struggle, his lordship died from mental and bodily exertion, at Missolonghi, 19 April, 1824, in the 37th year of his age. Lord Byron m. 2 Jan. 1815, Anne-Isabella, only child of Sir Ralph-Milbank Noel, Bart., and co-heir of the BARONY OF WENTWORTH, (through her late mother, the Hon. Judith Noel, eldest dau. of Edward, 1st Viscount Wentworth, and co-heir of her brother, Thomas, 2nd Viscount and 9th Baron Wentworth, a barony created by writ in 1529,) by whom he had one dau., ADA-AUGUSTA, b. 10 Dec. 1815; m. 1835, to William, Earl of Lovelace. A separation from this lady took place soon after the birth of his child, and Lord Byron almost immediately afterwards departed from his native country, to which he never returned. His lordship assumed, on his marriage, the additional surname of NOEL, before that of Byron. At his decease, the barony devolved upon his first cousin, GEORGE-ANSON, present baron. (Revert to Admiral Byron, 2nd son of the 4th lord.)

Lineage.

The name of SINCLAIR, the Saint Clare of France, has for several centuries been distinguished in Scotland.

WILLIAM DE SANCTO CLARO acquired the manor of Roslin, in the reign of DAVID I., and had a confirmation thereof from that monarch. His great-great-grandson,

SIR WILLIAM SINCLAIR, of Roslin, was appointed sheriff of the co. of Edinburgh for life, in 1271, and had a confirmation from ALEXANDER III. of the lands and Barony of Roslin, &c., for half a knight's service. He sat in the parliament at Scone, 5 Feb. 1283-4, when the succession to the crown of Scotland was settled in the event of the demise of ALEXANDER III. Sir William was one of the nominees on the part of Baliol, in the competition for the crown of Scotland, 1292. He swore fealty to EDWARD I. in the same year, and was present when Baliol did homage to the English monarch, a few months after. He d. about the year 1300, leaving three sons,

HENRY, his successor.

William, Bishop of Dunkeld. The English landing at Fife, in 1317, the Earl of Fife retreated, when the bishop, who was residing at his seat of Auchtertool, flew to the spot, and, throwing aside his ecclesiastical vestments, seized a spear, and led the Scots to charge the enemy, who was driven back to his ships, with considerable loss.

Gregory, ancestor of the Sinclairs of Longformacus, Barts.

The eldest son,

SIR HENRY SINCLAIR, of Roslin, swore fealty to EDWARD I. in 1292. His grandson,

SIR WILLIAM SINCLAIR, of Roslin, m. Isabel, one of the daus. and co-heirs of Malise, Earl of Strathern, Caithness, and Orkney, by Matilda, only dau. and heiress of Magnus, Earl of Orkney and Zetland, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HENRY SINCLAIR, of Roslin, who had his claim to the EARLDOM OF ORKNEY admitted by HAKON, the 6th King of Norway, in 1379, but burdened with severe conditions—that of serving the king in all emergencies with a hundred men, &c. &c., of paying the king 1000 gold nobles, &c. He m. Jane, dau. of Sir John Haleburton, of Dirletoun; and dying in 1400, was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 2nd Earl of Orkney, admiral of Scotland. His lordship, who was appointed chief attendant on Prince James, in his voyage to France, in 1405, was captured with the prince in their passage by the English, and sent to the Tower of London. He m. Lady Egidia Douglas, dau. and sole heiress of William, Lord of Niddesdale, by Lady Egidia Stuart, dau. of ROBERT II.; and dying before 1418, was s. by his only son,

WILLIAM, 3rd Earl of Orkney. This nobleman, who was lord-high-chancellor of Scotland, obtained a grant from JAMES II., dated 28 Aug. 1455, of the Earldom of CAITHNESS, which title he assumed, in addition to that of Orkney, and was styled Earl of Orkney and Caithness, until the year 1471, when JAMES III., having acquired the islands of Orkney in marriage with Margaret of Denmark, 1469, his lordship surrendered to that monarch the Earldom of Orkney, and it was annexed to the crown by act of parliament. In part recompence for which the king granted to him the castle of Ravenscraig, in Fife. His lordship m. 1st, Lady Margaret Douglas, eldest dau. of Archibald, 4th Earl of Douglas, by whom he had a son,

CALDWELL.

CALDWELL, SIR JOHN, of Castle Caldwell, co. Fermanagh, and a Count of Milan, in the Holy Roman Empire; s. as 5th baronet, 1830.

Lineage.

The founder of this family in Ireland,

JOHN CALDWELL, a merchant at Enniskillen, was b. at Preston, in Ayrshire, and d. 1639. He was s. by his eldest son,

I. JAMES CALDWELL, Esq., who settled at Rossbeg, afterwards called Castle Caldwell, co. Fermanagh, and was created a BART. OF IRELAND, 23 June, 1683. Sir James m. a dau. of Sir John Hume, Bart. of Castle Hume, co. Fermanagh; and dying 1717, was s. by his grandson,

II. SIR JOHN. This gentleman m. 1719, Anne, dau. of the Very Rev. John French, dean of Raphoe, by whom he had five sons and two daus. The 3rd son, Hume, was a very distinguished officer in the Austrian service, and attained the rank of colonel. He was killed in a sally from the fortress of Schweidnitz, in 1762.

The following anecdote of this gentleman is worthy of attention, as elucidating the state of barbarous vassalage under which the Roman-catholic population of Ireland groaned in the beginning of the last century:—"During Lieut. Caldwell's residence with the company to which he belonged, at Prague, an unlucky circumstance occurred, which placed him in much pecuniary embarrassment. By the accidental falling of a taper from his hand, the furniture of his lodgings was entirely consumed, and to make good the damage, his landlord applied to have his pay sequestered. His distress, in consequence, was very great; but the affair reaching the Irish Franciscan convent of that city, the holy brothers contrived to have the debt discharged, and the sequestration removed, without the knowledge of Mr. Caldwell: they were induced to do so by one of the brethren who had known Sir John Caldwell in Ireland, and who thus reported his character: 'Sir John,' said he, 'although a stanch Protestant, always treated the Roman Catholics with humanity and tenderness; in particular one stormy day, when it rained very hard, he discovered a priest with his congregation at mass under a hedge; and instead of taking that opportunity of blaming them for thus meeting so near his house, and having the priest hung, as he might have done, he ordered his cows to be driven out of a neighbouring cow-house, and signified to the priest and people that they might there take shelter from the weather, and there finish their devotion in peace.'"

Sir John Caldwell d. in 1744, and was s. by his eldest son,

III. SIR JAMES, who being in the service of the EMPRESS MARIA-THERESA, was created by that princess Count of Milan, in the holy Roman empire. In 1766, Sir James, in passing through Vienna, having had an audience of leave of the empress-queen, her imperial majesty, in a very gracious manner, charged him with a magnificent enamelled gold box, to present to Lady-Dowager Caldwell, mother of Col. Caldwell, as a testimony of her majesty's gratitude for the signal services performed by that gallant officer. Sir James Caldwell raised, 1759, at his own expense, a body of light horse, comprising 250 men, which he commanded for some years. He m. 1753, Elizabeth, dau. of the Most Rev. Lineage.

The Pratts have been of consideration in different parts of England, as well as in Ireland, from a very remote period, some of them of knightly degree; and those of Berkshire were baronets. The family of which we are now treating was settled at Careswell Priory, co. Devon, about the middle of ELIZABETH's reign, but the estate was lost by

RICHARD PRATT, during the civil wars, who was compelled, by the difficulties in which those disastrous times had involved him, to dispose of his paternal inheritance. This Richard Pratt was grandfather of

LORD-CHIEF-JUSTICE SIR JOHN PRATT, Knt., who represented the borough of Midhurst in parliament, from 1700 until his elevation to the chiefship of the court of King's Bench, 26 Oct. 1714. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of the Rev. Henry Gregory, rector of Middleton Stoney, co. Stafford, by whom he had two surviving sons and four daus. JOHN PRATT, Esq. of the Wilderness, co. Kent, M.P.; who m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Geoffrey Jeffreys, Knt. of Brecknock Priory, co. Brecknock, by whom he had, with a dau., (who d. 1807,) a son,

JOHN, of Bayham Abbey, co. Sussex; who d. s. p. 1797, bequeathing his estates to the present Marquess Camden.

Mr. Pratt m. 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of the Hon. Robert Tracy, of Coscomb, co. Gloucester, one of the judges of the court of Common Pleas, and left a son, ROBERT, M.P., of Coscomb, a master in Chancery, who d. s. p. in 1775.

The 3rd son, by his 2nd marriage, of the Lord-Chief-Justice Pratt,

CHARLES PRATT, Esq., an eminent lawyer, was chosen in 1759 recorder of Bath, and, the same year, appointed attorney-general. In Dec. 1761, he was constituted chief-justice of the court of Common Pleas; and 16 July, 1765, raised to the peerage, by the title of Lord Camden, of Camden Place, co. Kent; his lordship was, subsequently, upon the resignation of the Earl of Northington, in 1766, appointed LORD-HIGH-CHANCELLOR of Great Britain; in 1784, he was constituted lord-president of the council; and 13 May, 1786, advanced to a viscounty and earldom, by the titles of Viscount Bayham and EARL CAMDEN. Lord Camden, while presiding in the court of Common Pleas, acquired high reputation for independence, legal knowledge, and impartiality, particularly in the memorable conflict between the celebrated John Wilkes and the government of that period. Mr. Wilkes having been committed to the Tower upon a general warrant from the secretary of state, his lordship had the prisoner immediately brought up by habeas corpus to the court of Common Pleas, and after laying down the law in a luminous speech, released him from confinement, 6 May, 1763. The chief-justice's conduct upon this occasion, and during the subsequent proceedings in the same cause, procured him the freedom of the city of London, accompanied by a request that he would allow his picture to be painted for the Guildhall, where it was afterwards hung up. His lordship was presented also with the freedom of Dublin, and of almost every other corporation in the kingdom. He m. Elizabeth, dau. and sole heiress of Nicholas Jeffreys, Esq. of the Priory, co. Brecknock, by whom (who d. 10 Dec. 1779) he had issue,

His lordship has assumed the additional surname of HALDANE, that of his maternal grandmother.

Lineage.

The family of DUNCAN of Lundie is of remote antiquity: it was originally designated of Seaside, and there is an authenticated heraldic tradition which accounts for the crest, a dismantled ship, now borne over the arms of Camperdown. A member of the family, who lived some two hundred years ago, having been supercargo on board a vessel bound from Norway to his native place, Dundee, was overtaken by a tremendous storm, in which the ship became almost a complete wreck, and the crew were reduced to the utmost distress. Contrary, however, to all expectations, they were enabled to navigate their crazy, crippled bark into port, and the parents of the thus fortunately rescued son immediately adopted the crest alluded to, in commemoration of the dangers their heir had so providentially escaped from.

Catherine, m. to James Haldane, Esq. of Airthrey, co. Stirling.

Margaret, m. to William Tait, Esq.; and d. 27 Dec. 1818.

The younger son,

ADAM DUNCAN, having adopted the naval profession, entered into that service about the year 1746, under Robert Haldane, then capt. of the Shoreham frigate: in three years afterwards, we find young Duncan a midshipman, on board the Centurion, of 50 guns, a ship ordered to be equipped to receive the broad pendant of Commodore Keppel, who was appointed commander-in-chief on the Mediterranean station. In 1755, Mr. Duncan obtained his lieutenancy, and was appointed to the Norwich, a fourth-rate, commanded by Capt. Barrington. On 21 Sept. 1759, he was advanced to the rank of commander, and in the year 1761 made post-captain, and appointed to the Valiant, of 74 guns, in which ship, under the broad pendant of Admiral Keppel, he acquired considerable reputation at the capture of the Havannah. In 1789, Capt. Duncan was promoted to be rear admiral of the blue, and, passing through the intermediate grades, was appointed, 14 Feb. 1799, admiral of the white. During the greater part of this interval, however, (up to the year 1795,) singular as it may appear to posterity, the great merits of Admiral Duncan continued either unknown, or at least unregarded. Frequently did he solicit a command, and as frequently did he experience disappointment. It has even been reported that this brave man had it once in contemplation to retire altogether from the service, on a very honourable civil employment, connected with the navy; at length, however, the cloud burst, and Admiral Duncan was constituted, in 1795, commander-in-chief in the North Seas. He accordingly hoisted his flag on board the Prince George, of 98 guns, but afterwards removed to the Venerable, of 74. In this command he had the honour of achieving a splendid victory off Camperdown, 11 Oct. 1797, over the Dutch fleet, under Admiral de Winter; and was elevated to the peerage, 30 Oct. 1797, in the dignities of Baron Duncan, of Lundie, and Viscount Duncan, of Camperdown. Lineage.

This family is of remote antiquity and English descent, having removed from the co. Lincoln into Ireland about the middle of the 17th century. The name is local, being derived from the township of Cawarden, Carwarden, or Carden, which lies about eleven miles S.S.E. from Chester, which manor was the original inheritance of the family; but the elder branch terminating in co-heiresses, the manor of Over-Carden was carried by marriage into the family of Felton, about the close of the 16th century. A branch of the family had been settled in Kent, where it appears that it was for several generations possessed of the manor of Hodiford; but that estate was alienated temp. ELIZABETH, by John Carden, to the family of Cobbes, when there is reason to believe that the Cardens of Kent removed into Lincolnshire; and that from them diverged the Irish branch, springing from CAREW, SIR WALTER-PALK, of Haccombe, co. Devon; b. 2 July, 1807; s. as 8th bart., at the decease of his father, 1830; m. 24 Jan. 1837, Anne-Frances, dau. of Colonel Taylor, of Ogwell, in Devon.

Lineage.

The Carews are one of the few families now remaining who can trace their descent, without intermission, from the Anglo-Saxon period of English history.

OTHO, a powerful English baron in the time of EDWARD THE CONFESSOR, was s. by his son,

WALTER FITZ-OTHO, castellan of Windsor, who had two sons, William, from whom the Lords Windsor descended, and

GERALD, from whom sprang the Carews and Fitzgeralds; he was castellan of Pembroke Castle, and in great favour with HENRY I., from whom he received the lordship of Mulsford, in Berks. By Nesta, his wife, dau. of Rhys ap Tewdwr, Prince of South Wales, whose dower was the Castle of Carew, he had three sons, WILLIAM, Maurice, and DAVID: from Maurice, the 2nd, descended the noble family of Fitzgerald. The eldest son,

WILLIAM, Lord of Carrio, had, with another son, (RAYMOND, ancestor of the Marquesses of Lansdowne,)

OTHO, from whom the 5th in lineal descent was

SIR NICHOLAS CAREW, Baron of Carew and Mulsford, a person of eminence, temp. EDWARD I., who was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN CAREW, father of

SIR NICHOLAS CAREW, Knt., Lord of Carew; who m. Joan, dau. of Sir Hugh Courtenay, of Haccombe, co. Devon, by Philippa, dau. and co-heir of Sir William Arcedecan, and had five sons and three daus. Sir Thomas, the eldest son, happening to disoblige his mother, that lady settled seventeen manors upon her younger sons, which proved the foundation of three great families, which have flourished ever since, namely, that before us, the Carews of Stodeleigh, and the Carews of Anthony. (See BURKE'S Commoners.)

SIR NICHOLAS CAREW, the 2nd son, succeeded at Haccombe, and from him directly descended, in the 6th degree,

I. THOMAS CAREW, Esq. of Haccombe, who was created a Bart. 2 Aug. 1661. He m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. and co-heir of Sir Henry Carew, Knt. of Brickleigh, and thus united two branches of the family. Sir Thomas was s. by his only surviving son,

III. SIR HENRY-DARRELL, at whose decease unm. the title devolved upon his brother,

IV. SIR THOMAS, who m. Dorothy, dau. and co-heir of Peter West, Esq. of Tiverton Castle, and was s. by his elder son,

Sir Thomas s. as 10th bart., at the decease of his brother.

Lineage.

Fifth in direct descent from

THOMAS GIBSON, who flourished under JAMES IV., and is particularly named amongst the barons of the co. Fife, was

I. SIR ALEXANDER GIBSON, one of the most eminent lawyers of his time, whom JAMES VI. presented personally to the court as principal clerk of Session, and remained to witness his inauguration. In 1621, he was constituted senator of the college of Justice, and in a few years afterwards, advanced to the lord-presidency of the court of Session, which office he enjoyed during the remainder of his life. In Feb. 1628, his lordship was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, and obtained, with the dignity, a grant of land, six miles in length and three in breadth, in Nova Scotia. Sir Alexander m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Thomas Craig, of Riccarton, lord-advocate of Scotland, by whom he had, with other children,

ALEXANDER, his successor.

John, of Pentland, a distinguished royalist, who was made a knight banneret, under the royal standard, at the battle of Worcester, 1651. Sir John m. 1st, Margaret Hay, of the noble family of Kinnoul, and had, (with a younger son, Sir John,)

SIR ALEXANDER GIBSON, one of the principal clerks of session, and clerk of the privy council in Scotland; m. Helen, dau. of Sir James Fleming, of Rathbyers, co. The lord president was s. at his decease by his eldest son,

II. SIR ALEXANDER, of Durie. This gentleman took an active part in the religious dissensions which agitated Scotland at the commencement of the reign of CHARLES I., and was zealous on the side of the covenanters. When matters, however, were in some measure compromised, he received the honour of knighthood, and was appointed lord-clerk registrar, A.D. 1641. He was constituted, 1646, one of the senators of the college of Justice, when he assumed the titular designation of Lord Durie. While in the discharge of the duties of this high office, an outrage was committed upon his lordship, which strongly marked the era in which he lived. An important cause existing between two noblemen, Lord Durie, when taking an airing on Leith sands, was forcibly carried off by one of them, to prevent his voting at the decision of the suit in the court of Session. His lordship was deprived of his judicial employments by CROMWELL. He m. 1st, 1649, Margery, dau. of Andrew Murray, Lord Balvaird, by whom he had an only dau., Anne, who m. John Murray, Esq. of Polmaise and Touchadam. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. iii. p. 68.) VII. SIR JOHN, (son of John Gibson, Esq. of London,) who d. without male issue,* and was s. by his brother,

VIII. SIR ROBERT, at whose decease, in America, the title devolved upon the descendant of Alexander Gibson, of Durie, 2nd son of Sir Alexander Gibson, clerk of the privy council, mentioned above, which descendant was

IX. SIR JOHN-GIBSON CARMICHAEL, of Skirling, grandson of John Gibson, of Durie, and Helen, his wife, dau. of the Hon. William Carmichael, advocate, son of John, 1st Earl of Hyndford, and father of John, 4th earl; at the decease of which 4th earl, this gentleman, (then Mr. Gibson, his lordship's grandnephew,) assumed, in conformity to an entail, the surname and arms of Carmichael. Lineage.

The surname of Carnegie is local, and was assumed from the lands and Barony of Carnegie, in Forfar.

JOHN CARNEGIE, who d. in 1280, was ancestor of

SIR ROBERT CARNEGIE, of Kinnaird, who, being a person of great abilities, and much political knowledge, was engaged in most of the public transactions during the regency of the Duke of Chatelherault, and subsequently. It is also recorded that he and his predecessors were cup-bearers to the kings of Scotland, and were accustomed to bear a golden cup upon the breast of the eagle, as an armorial mark of their office. In 1547, he was appointed one of the senators of the college of Justice. In the next year he was accredited ambassador-extraordinary to England, to treat for the redemption of the Earl of Huntly, the lord-chancellor, who had been taken prisoner at the battle of Pinkie; and received the honour of knighthood on his return. In 1551, he was sent ambassador to France; and in 1553 was one of the commissioners to arrange conditions for the peace of the Marches. Sir John d. in 1565, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN CARNEGIE, of Kinnaird, a man of great talents and worth, and, to the last, faithfully and steadily attached to the unfortunate MARY of Scotland. He was s. by his brother,

SIR DAVID CARNEGIE, of Coluthie; which estate, with other lands, he acquired by marrying Elizabeth, dau. and heiress of William Ramsay, Esq. This gentleman, who was of the privy council of Scotland, was constituted, in 1595, one of the eight commissioners of the treasury, called Octavians. He m. 2ndly, Euphemia, dau. of Sir David Wemyss; and d. in 1598, leaving, by his 1st wife, three daus.;* and by the 2nd, inter alios,

DAVID, his successor.

JOHN, created Earl of Northesk.

Sir David was s. by his eldest son,

DAVID CARNEGIE, an eminent lawyer, who was appointed a senator of the college of Justice, and elevated to the peerage by the title of Lord Carnegie, of Kinnaird, 24 April, 1616, and created EARL SOUTHESK, 22 June, 1633. His lordship was constituted high-sheriff of the county of Forfar, and remained firm in his allegiance to CHARLES I., for which he was imprisoned by the covenanters, and fined £3000 by CROMWELL, in 1654. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir David Lindsay, of Edzell, and had (with six daus., of whom the youngest, Magdalen, m. James, the great and gallant Marquess of Montrose,) four sons, viz.,

He was a capt. in the army, and endowed with very superior abilities. Through his exertions the fortunes of the house of Southesk were restored. By unremitting efforts, Sir James brought about the sale of the forfeited estates, not only to the great advantage of his own family, but to the benefit of many others similarly situated. He had procured an assignation to a lease of Kinnaird many years before, made it his residence, and improved the lands, when agricultural pursuits were not yet common among gentlemen of his rank, and when his funds were limited in the extreme. Lineage.

This family was originally of Clydesdale, whence it removed into Dumfriesshire, and there settled. Tradition details the origin of its surname and arms thus:

In the reign of KENNETH II., a kinsman and favourite of that monarch having been hung up by the Picts, it so exceedingly grieved the king, that he offered a considerable reward to any person who should rescue the corpse; but none were disposed to undertake so dangerous a duty, until a gentleman cried out Dal-ze! (Scotch, I dare,) and performing his task to KENNETH's entire satisfaction, himself and his family bore ever afterwards the name of Dalzell.

SIR ROBERT DALZELL, Knt., a faithful adherent of KING DAVID BRUCE during his captivity, obtained a grant of the Barony of Selkirk, in 1365. From this Sir Robert lineally descended,

ROBERT DALZELL, of that ilk, who was killed by Lord Maxwell, in 1508. His grandson,

SIR ROBERT DALZELL, of Dalzell, attached himself to the fortunes of the unhappy MARY of Scotland, and fought under her banner at Langside. He was s. by his son,

ROBERT DALZELL, of Dalzell, who was s. by his son,

SIR ROBERT DALZELL, of Dalzell, who was elevated to the peerage of Scotland, 18 Sept. 1628, by the title of Baron Dalzell, to himself and his heirs male bearing the name and arms of Dalzell; and was created, in 1639, EARL OF CARNWATH, with limitation to the heirs male of his body. GAVIN, his successor.

William, d. unm. 1647.

His lordship was at the battle of Naseby, 14 June, 1645, and to him Lord Clarendon imputes the loss of that action. "The king was upon the point of charging at the head of his guards, when the Earl of Carnwath, who rode next him, (a man never suspected of treachery,) suddenly laid his hand on the bridle of the king's horse, and swearing two or three full-mouthed Scottish oaths, said, Will you go upon your death in an instant? and before his majesty understood what he would have, turned his horse round; upon which the word ran through the troops, that they should march to the right, which led them both from charging the enemy and assisting their own men; upon which they all turned their horses, and rode upon the spur, as if they were every man to shift for himself." His lordship d. soon after, and was s. by his elder son,

GAVIN, 3rd earl; who was made prisoner, fighting under the royal standard, at Worcester, in 1651, and detained for several years in captivity. His lordship m. 1st, Margrave, eldest dau. and co-heir of David, Lord Carnegie, and had,

His lordship s. to the honours, as 2nd earl, at the decease of his father, 26 Aug. 1809.

Lineage.

This is a branch of the royal house of Stuart, springing from

ROBERT STEUART, 3rd son of ROBERT II., who acquired the Earldom of Menteith by his marriage with Margaret, Countess of Menteith, and afterwards succeeding to the Earldom of Fife, became Earl of Fife and Menteith. This nobleman, subsequently regent of Scotland, was one of the first persons honoured with a DUKEDOM, in the Scottish peerage. In 1398, the heir apparent to the throne having been created DUKE OF ROTHSAI, the Regent Fife was at the same time raised to the DUKEDOM OF ALBANY. His grace, who fills a conspicuous place in Scottish history, d. in 1419, and was s. by the only son of his 1st marriage,

MURDAC, 2nd Duke of Albany, who m. Isabel, eldest dau. and co-heir of Duncan, Earl of Lennox. Previously to the decease of his father, this nobleman was a captive for thirteen years in England, having been made prisoner at the battle of Homildon, in 1402. He s. the late duke in the regency as well as the dukedom, but with talents for such a station of a very inferior order. Within a few short years he was brought to the block, with his two elder surviving sons, and his father-in-law, the Duke of Lennox, (anno 1425,) when the Dukedom of Albany reverted to the crown. His grace's next son,

SIR JAMES STEUART, called James the Gross, upon being apprized of the imprisonment of his father by JAMES I., flew to arms, and, with the aid of the Bishop of Argyll, raising a band of highland freebooters, assaulted and burnt the town of Dunbarton, and put Sir James Steuart, of Dundonald, natural son of ROBERT II., governor of the castle, to the sword, 3 May, 1424. For these acts of violence he was proclaimed a felon, and forced to seek an asylum in Ireland, whence he never afterwards returned, but died there in 1451. His eldest son,

ANDREW STEUART, was brought over from Ireland by JAMES II., and created, in 1459, Lord Avandale; he was afterwards chancellor of Scotland, and dying s. p. 1488, was s. by his nephew,

ANDREW STEUART, Lord Avandale, who was s. by his son,

ANDREW, 2nd Lord Steuart of Ochiltie, commonly called the good Lord Ochiltie. This nobleman was s. at his decease, in 1592, by his grandson,

ANDREW STEUART, 3rd Lord Ochiltie, a lord of the bedchamber to JAMES I. of England, who, having sold, through pecuniary embarrassment, the barony of Ochiltie to his cousin, Sir James Stewart, of Killeith, and relinquished his title to that gentleman, was created, 7 Nov. 1619, Lord Steuart, Baron of Castle-Steuart, co. Tyrone, in the peerage of Ireland. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John Kennedy, of Blairquhan, and dying in 1632, left three sons,

- II. JOHN, successor to his nephew, Josias, as 5th lord.
- III. ROBERT, of Irry; a col. in the army; m. Jane, dau. of James Richardson, Esq. of Castle Hill, co. Tyrone. Col. Steuart d. 1662, and was s. by his son,

ANDREW, who was taken by his mother into Scotland, where he remained during the troubles in Ireland, and d. in 1715, leaving, with other issue, a son and heir,

ROBERT, who m. Margaret, eldest dau. of Thomas Edwards, Esq. of Castle Gore, co. Tyrone; and dying in 1742, left a son,

Lord Castle-Steuart was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ANDREW STEUART, 2nd lord; who had been previously created a Bart. of Nova Scotia. His lordship m. Lady Anne Steuart, 4th dau. and co-heir of John, 5th Earl of Athol; and dying in 1639, was s. by his eldest son, Viscount Caulfeild, and Baron Caulfeild, of Charlemont, in the peerage of Ireland; and Baron Charlemont, of Charlemont, in the co. of Armagh, in that of the United Kingdom; one of the representative lords; b. 3 Jan. 1775; s. to the honours, as 2nd earl, at the decease of his father, 4 Aug. 1799; m. 9 Feb. 1802, Anne, youngest dau. and co-heir of William Bermingham, Esq. of Ross Hill, co. Galway, but has no surviving issue. The earl obtained the barony of the empire, 13 Feb. 1837.

Lineage.

The settlement of this noble family in Ireland took place in the reign of ELIZABETH, when

SIR TOBY CAULFEILD, a distinguished and gallant soldier, was employed in that part of her majesty's dominions, against the formidable O'Neile, Earl of Tyrone. In 1615, Sir Toby was appointed one of the council for the province of Munster; and, the next year, joined in commission with the Lord Deputy St. John, and others, for parcelling out the escheated lands in Ulster to such British undertakers as were named in the several tables of assignation; in these employments, the King (JAMES I.) found him so faithful, diligent and prudent, that his majesty deemed him highly deserving the peerage of Ireland, and accordingly created him, 22 Dec. 1620, Lord Caulfeild, Baron Charlemont, with limitation of the honour to his nephew, Sir William Caulfeild, Knt. His lordship d. a bachelor, 17 Aug. 1627, and was s. by the said

SIR WILLIAM CAULFEILD, as 2nd baron. This nobleman took his seat in parliament, 4 Nov. 1634, after the lord chancellor had moved to know the pleasure of the house, whether he should be admitted to this place, having brought neither writ of summons nor patent; whereupon it was resolved that his lordship should be admitted, inasmuch as they were all satisfied that he was a lord of parliament. His lordship m. Mary, dau. of Sir John King, Knt., (ancestor of the Earls of Kingston,) by whom he had seven sons and three daus.; from the youngest son, Thomas, descended the Caulfeilds of Donamon, co. Roscommon, represented by St. GEORGE-FRANCIS CAULFEILD, Esq. of Donamon Castle, b. in 1806, who m. in 1830, Susannah-Anne, dau. of the late Sir Edward Crofton, Bart., and has issue. Lord Charlemont was s. at his decease, in 1640, by his eldest son,

TOBY, 3rd baron; who also succeeded the late lord as governor of the fort of Charlemont, and there resided, with his company of the 97th foot, in garrison. This fort was a place of considerable strength and importance during the Rebellion of 1641; but his lordship suffered himself to be surprised, 22 Oct. in that year; and being made prisoner, with his whole family, was subsequently murdered, by the orders, it is said, of Sir Phelim O'Neile. This unfortunate nobleman dying unm. was s. by his brother,

ROBERT, 4th baron; who d. a few months afterwards, from the effects of an over dose of opium, when the barony devolved upon his brother,

WILLIAM, 5th baron. This nobleman apprehended Sir

Phelim O'Neile, and had him executed for the murder of his brother. His lordship having filled, after the Restoration, several high and confidential situations, was advanced to a viscounty, as Viscount Caulfeild, of Charlemont, 8 Oct. 1665. He m. Sarah, 2nd dau. of Charles, Viscount Drogheda, by whom he had four sons and three daus., of whom,

WILLIAM, (the 2nd, but eldest surviving son,) s. as 2nd viscount.

COL. WILLIAM CAULFEILD, of Raheenduff, in the Queen's co.; lieutenant-governor of Fort George, N.B.; whose only sons to leave issue were, WADE-TOBY, his heir; and John, archdeacon of Kilmore.* The former,

GEORGE-PHILIP-CECIL-ARTHUR, Lord Stanhope, b. Sept. 1831.

Evelyn.

Lineage.

CAMDEN, in his account of Nottinghamshire, mentions "Shelford, the seat of the famous family of Stanhope, Knts., whose state and grandeur in those parts is eminent, and their names renowned." And in his discourse on surnames, the same learned antiquary observes, that they were "denominated from a place of their own name (without doubt) the town of Stanhope, (near a forest so called,) in Darlington wapentake, in the bishoprick of Durham, of which they might be owners; for it is certain their residence was in those parts before they came into Nottinghamshire."

SIR RICHARD STANHOPE, living in the times of HENRY III. and EDWARD I., had large possessions in the north, and received the honour of knighthood. His son and heir,

SIR RICHARD STANHOPE, Lord of Elstwick, co. Northumberland, and mayor of the town of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, had, in consideration of his services against the Scots, in the 24th of EDWARD III., a grant of the third part of the village and fishery of Paxton, with the appurtenances. From this eminent person we pass to his descendant,

THOMAS STANHOPE, Esq. of Rampton, who m. Mary, dau. of John Jerningham, Esq., and had two sons, EDWARD, (Sir) his heir.

John, ancestor of the present John Spencer-Stanhope, Esq.* of Cannon Hall, Yorkshire.

He espoused 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. of Foulk Bouchier, Lord Fitz-Warine, and had an only dau., Anne, 2nd wife of the PROTECTOR SOMERSET. Richard Stanhope, the elder son of Sir Edward, leaving at his decease, in 1529, a dau. only, named Saunchia,† the family was continued by the younger son,

SIR MICHAEL STANHOPE, an eminent person in the reign of HENRY VIII., who obtained a grant of the house and site of the monastery of SHELFORD, in Notts, by patent, in the 29th of that monarch's reign. Under EDWARD VI., Sir Michael was chief gentleman of the privy chamber, and he represented the co. Nottingham in parliament. But subsequently sharing in the ruin of his brother-in-law, the Duke of Somerset, he was found guilty of conspiring the death of Dudley, Duke of Northumberland, a privy councillor, and beheaded, with Sir Thomas Arundel, on Tower Hill, 25 Feb. 1552. He left, with other issue, by his wife, Anne, dau. of Nicholas Rawson, Esq. of Aveley Bellhouse, Essex,

John, of HARRINGTON, co. Northampton, created Lord Stanhope, of Harrington, 1603, which dignity expired with his son,

His lordship was a firm supporter of the royal cause during the civil wars. His house at Shelford was a garrison for the king, under the government of his son, Philip, who lost his life in defence thereof, when the rebels took it by storm, 27 Oct. 1645, and burnt it to the ground. PHILIP-DORMER, 4th earl, (the celebrated LORD CHESTERFIELD.) His lordship received his first instruction from private tutors, under the direction of his grandmother, the Marchioness of Halifax, and at the age of eighteen entered Trinity College, Cambridge. In the spring of 1714, he left the university to make the tour of Europe, unaccompanied by a governor. During the year of the accession of GEORGE I., he was elected to parliament for the borough of St. Germain, and became a distinguished speaker in the House of Commons. The death of his father, 1726, removed his lordship to the upper house, where he soon obtained the same celebrity as an orator. In 1728, he was appointed ambassador to the court of Holland; and in 1730, elected a knight of the Garter, and made lord steward of the household. In 1744, his lordship was admitted into the cabinet, and in the following year appointed lord-lieutenant of Ireland. All authorities agree in referring the descent of this family to a very remote period: some trace it antecedently to the Conquest. The earliest of its ancestors whom we find upon record is

SIR JOHN CHETWODE, lord of the manor of Chetwode, whose son Robert, who died in his lifetime, founded the Priory of Chetwode, and was grandfather of

SIR ROBERT CHETWODE, Lord of Chetwode, living 5th HENRY I., who attended KING RICHARD into Syria, and received the honour of knighthood from that prince in Palestine. Passing over sixteen successive generations, we come to

PHILIP CHETWODE, Esq. of Oakley, co. Stafford, who m. Hester, dau. and heir of William Touchet, Esq. of Whitley, in Cheshire, and was s. by his son,

I. JOHN CHETWODE, Esq. of Oakley, (22nd in lineal descent from Sir John Chetwode, Knt.,) who was created a Bart. 6 April, 1700. The CHETWYNDs, a family of great antiquity, assumed their surname from their place of abode, co. Salop. In the 37th of HENRY III.,

SIR JOHN CHETWYND, Knt., son of Adam de Chetwynd, by Agnes, dau. of John, LORD LOVEL, Baron of Dorkinges, and Lord of Munster Lovel, co. CHICHESTER.

CHICHESTER, EARL OF, (Henry-Thomas Pelham,) Baron Pelham, of Stanmer, co. Sussex, and a bart.; b. 25 Aug. 1804; inherited the honours, as 3rd earl, at the decease of his father, 4 July, 1826; m. in Aug. 1828, Mary, dau. of Robert, present Earl of Cardigan, by whom he has issue,

HARRIETT-MARY.

SUSAN-EMMA.

Lineage.

The surname of Pelham was assumed from a lordship in Hertfordshire, where anciently stood a castle, the owner of which, in 1265, was amerced in the then very large sum of forty pounds, for a contempt in not coming to an inquest to be taken concerning a trespass of the mint. This lordship of Pelham is recorded to be part of the possessions of Walter de Pelham, in the 21st of EDWARD I., and it is believed that his ancestors held it prior to the Conquest. From the earliest period it is certain that the family enjoyed very high consideration, and its members have, in different reigns, distinguished themselves as warriors and statesmen.

SIR JOHN DE PELHAM, a gallant soldier in the martial reign of EDWARD III., shared in the glory of Poitiers, and had the honour of participating personally in the capture of the French king, JOHN, for which exploit he had as a badge of honour, the Buckle of a Belt, which was sometimes used by his descendants as a seal-manual, and at others, on each side a cage, being an emblem of the captivity of the French monarch, and was therefore borne for a crest, as in those times customary. Sir John had certain lands and houses in Winchelsea in marriage with Joan, dau. of Vincent Herbert, alias Finch, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN PELHAM, K.B., constable of Pevensey Castle. This eminent person represented the co. of Sussex in parliament, and enjoyed great influence at the court of HENRY IV. He was likewise a man of large fortune, his estates yielding, according to a roll bearing date in 1403, the annual income of £870. 5s. 3d. In the 6th of HEN. IV., serving in parliament, with Sir John Dalyngrugge, as knight for Sussex, he had his moiety of £18. 18s. for his expenses in attending forty-six days. In two years afterwards, Sir John petitioned parliament praying, "that certain auditors be appointed to take his accounts as treasurer of war, and to make him due allowance; and that upon the same account, he, his heirs, and land-tenants, might be clearly discharged;" which was agreed to, and auditors assigned accordingly. In the 9th of Henry IV. he was constituted chief butler of the port of CHICHESTER, and the same year he was again returned by the co. of Sussex, which he continued several years afterwards to represent. From Sir John, we pass to his lineal descendant,

SIR WILLIAM PELHAM,* who m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Sir Richard Carew, of Bedington, co. Surrey, and by that lady

* From Sir William's uncle, ANTHONY PELHAM, of Buxsted, descended the PELHAMS of Swinshead, and the PELHAMS of Compton Valence, now represented by the THISTLETHWAYTES of Hampshire.

Meath, in the peerage of Ireland; b. 16 Jan. 1792; m. 1st, Oct. 1812, Caroline, 2nd dau. of the late Lieut.-General Colin Campbell, by whom (who d. 12 Oct. 1815) he has no issue. His

He s. to the honours of his family, as 2nd marquess, at the decease of his father, 10 April, 1827. He had been called by summons, in 1821, to the House of Lords, in his father's barony of Newburgh. His lordship is joint hereditary GREAT CHAMBERLAIN OF ENGLAND.

Lineage.

The most extraordinary instance, probably, of a surname's being differently spelt at different periods occurs in that of Cholmondeley, (derived from the lordship of Cholmondeley, in the hundred of Broxtow, co. Cheshire,) which has undergone no less than 25 variations. This family, and the other great Cheshire house of Egerton, are descended from a common ancestor, although they assumed, at a very early period, different surnames. At the time of the general survey, the lordship of Calmundelei formed part of the possessions of

ROBERT, son of HUGH, Baron of Malpas, which Robert dying without issue, the lordship of Calmundelei, &c., devolved on his only dau. and heiress, LETTICE, who married

RICHARD DE BELWARD, whose son, or grandson,

WILLIAM DE BELWARD, m. Beatrix, dau. of Ranulph de Meschines, Earl of Chester. This William, who, in right of his mother, was Baron of Malpas, left three sons, namely,

DAVID, who, from being clerk, or secretary, to the Earl of Chester, was sometimes written Le' Clerk, and sometimes de Malpas, having s. his father at Malpas, after the Earldom of Chester was annexed to the crown, he served the office of sheriff for the co. Chester, (36th HENRY III.,) bearing then the name of David de Malpas. The 2nd son of this David, PHILIP, having seated himself at Egerton, left the surname of Egerton to his descendants, whence the numerous eminent families of Egerton, in Cheshire.

ROBERT, of whom presently.
Richard.

The 2nd son,

ROBERT, having, by the gift of his father, the lordship of CHOLMONDELEY, and fixing his residence there, assumed his surname therefrom. He m. Mabel, dau. of Robert Fitz-Nigel, Baron of Halton, and was s. by his son,

SIR HUGH DE CHOLMONDELEIH, who lived in the reign of HENRY III., and from him we pass to his lineal descendant,

RICHARD DE CHOLMONDELEY, who m. Eleanor, 5th dau. of Sir Thomas Dutton, of Dutton, and sister and co-heir of John Dutton, who d. in minority. The grandson of this feudal lord,

SIR HUGH CHOLMONDELEY, was a military character of eminence in the reign of HENRY VIII. He was five times sheriff of Cheshire, as also sheriff of Flintshire for some years, and a long time one of the two only deputy-lieuts. of Cheshire. He m. twice, but had issue only by his 1st wife, Anne, dau. and co-heir of George Dorman, of Malpas, (by Agnes, his wife, dau. and co-heir of John Bird, of Chorlton, by Catherine, his wife, aunt and heir of David de Malpas.) Sir Hugh d. 6 Jan. 1506-7, and was s. by his son,

SIR HUGH CHOLMONDELEY, of Cholmondeley; who m. Mary, only dau. and heir of Christopher Holford, of Holford. This lady had a great contest with George Holford, of Newborough, about the lands which had descended to her by her father, which endured above 40 years, but was at length settled by the mediation of friends. Lady Cholmondeley, in her widowhood, resided at Holford, which she rebuilt and enlarged, and was styled by JAMES I., from the spirit she had evinced in the before-mentioned suit, "The bold lady of Cheshire." By Sir Hugh Cholmondeley she had six sons and three daus., of which,

ROBERT, (the eldest son) inherited Cholmondeley.
Hugh, m. Mary, dau. of Sir John Bodville, of Bodville

Castle, co. Carnarvon; and dying in 1655, left, with junior issue,

ROBERT, who s. his uncle.

Thomas, of Vale Royal, ancestor of the present Lord Delamere.

The eldest son,

ROBERT CHOLMONDELEY, Esq. of Cholmondeley, was created a Bart. 29 June, 1611, and advanced, in 1628, to the peerage of Ireland, in the dignity of Viscount Cholmondeley, of Kells. His lordship was enrolled amongst the barons of England, in the 21st of CHARLES I., as Lord Cholmondeley, of Wiche Malbank, commonly called Nantwich, and further advanced, the next year, to the Earldom of Leinster. He m. Catharine, dau. of John, Lord Stanhope, of Harrington, but d. s. p. 2 Oct. 1659, when his honours became extinct, but his estates passed to his nephew,

HUGH, 2nd viscount; who, having zealously forwarded the Revolution, was created, on the accession of WILLIAM and MARY, by letters patent, dated 10 April, 1689, Lord Cholmondeley, of Nantwich, with remainder to his brother, GEORGE, and advanced, 27 Dec. 1706, to the dignities of Viscount Malpas and Earl of Cholmondeley, with similar reversion. His lordship d. unm. 18 Jan. 1724, and was s. by his only brother,

GEORGE, 2nd earl; who had previously distinguished himself as a military officer, (having commanded the horse-grenadier guards of WILLIAM, at the battle of the Boyne,) and had been elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 15 March, 1714-15, as Baron Newburgh, co. Wexford, and, 2 July, 1716, created a peer of England, by the title of Baron of Newburgh, in the Isle of Anglesey. James Cholmondeley, m. Lady Penelope Barry, dau. of the 4th Earl of Barrymore, by which marriage the mansion-house and estate of Rocksavage came into the family of Cholmondeley. His lordship is lord-lieutenant of the co. Galway, and has recently been accredited ambassador to the court of St. Petersburg.

Lineage.

The family of De Burgh, De Burgo, Burke, or Bourke, (as at different times written,) Earls and Marquesses of Clanricarde, ranks amongst the most ancient in the kingdom, and deduces an uninterrupted line of powerful nobles from the Conquest.

JOHN, Earl of Comyn, and Baron of Tonsburgh, in Normandy, (descended from CHARLEMAGNE,) being gen. of the king's forces, and governor of his chief towns, assumed thence the surname of "DE BURGH." He had issue,

HARLOWEN, of whom presently.

Eustace, Baron of Tonsburgh, from whom the Viscounts de Vesci derive.

Millicent, m. Fulk, Earl of Anjou, who became King of Jerusalem, in 1131.

The elder son,

HARLOWEN DE BURGO, founded the abbey of Greteim, in Normandy, and d. before his father, leaving by his wife, Arlotta, mother of WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, Odo, Bishop of Bayeux, created Earl of Kent, and an elder son,

ROBERT, Earl of Moreton, in Normandy, who, with his brother, having distinguished himself on the field of Hastings, was created by his victorious kinsman, (anno 1068,) Earl of Cornwall, and further rewarded with grants of 793 manors. He m. Maud, dau. of Roger de Montgomery; and was s. by his only son,

WILLIAM DE MORETON, Earl of Cornwall, who, rebelling against HENRY II., d. a prisoner, having his eyes put out by order of that monarch, and his Earldom of Cornwall transferred to Stephen of Blois. This unfortunate nobleman left two sons, viz.,

ALDELME, or ADELM, of whom presently.

John, whose son, HUBERT DE BURGH, was deemed the most powerful subject in Europe in the reigns of JOHN and HENRY III.; but he experienced the vicissitudes of those turbulent periods. After exercising sovereign authority during some part of the minority of HENRY III., as JUSTICIARY OF ENGLAND, (he had been created Earl of Kent,) he suffered great persecution from that monarch, and d. almost in obscurity, 4 March, 1243.

The elder son,

ADELM DE BURGH, m. Agnes, dau. of LOUIS VII. of France, and was father of

WILLIAM FITZ ADELM, who was sent by HENRY II., with Hugh de Lacie, into Ireland, to receive the submission of Roderick O'Connor, King of Connaught, and of the King of Meath, and founded there, according to Sir Richard Cox, "one of the best and noblest families, which has yielded many brave and worthy men, that have proved eminently serviceable to their king and country, whereby the name, estate, and family are preserved, in great honour and reputation, to this day." This William, who was made governor of Wexford, was entrusted, on the king's return to England, with the management of his affairs in Ireland. In 1175, in a synod of the bishops and clergy at Waterford, he published the bull, and the privileges granted by Pope ALEXANDER III., in confirmation of the bull of Adrian IV., constituting the king lord of Ireland. In 1179, he obtained, by grant, a great part of the province of Connaught. He m. Isabel, natural dau. of RICHARD I., and widow of Llewellyn, Prince of Wales; and dying in 1204, was s. by his son,

RICHARD DE BURGO, surnamed the Great Lord of Connaught, who was lord-lieutenant of Ireland in 1227. This Richard built the castle of Galway in 1232, and that of Loughreah in 1236. He was a man of high authority and power, and d. on his passage to France in Jan. 1243, in proceeding to meet the King of England at Bourdeaux, attended "by his barons and knights." He m. Hodierna, dau. of Robert de Gernon, and grandaun., maternally, of Cahill Crovderg, or the Red Hand, King of Connaught, and had two sons, viz.,

WALTER, Lord of Connaught, who marrying MAUD, dau. and heir of Hugh de Lacie, the younger, became, in her right, EARL OF ULSTER, on the death of his father-in-law. He was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD, 2nd Earl of Ulster, usually called the Red Earl. This nobleman, who was educated at the court of HENRY III., was esteemed, from his great possessions, the most powerful subject in Ireland. He d. in 1326, and was s. by his grandson,

WILLIAM, 3rd earl; who was murdered in the 21st year of his age (anno 1333), by Robert Fitz-Richard Mandeville and his servants, near the Fords, in his way to Carrickfergus. His wife, the Lady Maud Plantagenet, dau. of Henry, Earl of Lancaster, grandson of HENRY III., and his only dau. and heir, returned immediately to England; and so barbarous an act as the assassination causing a prodigious outcry, the Lord Justice D'Arcy called a parliament, by whose advice he sailed for Carrickfergus; but before his arrival, the country people had destroyed the murderers, with their abettors, killing, in one day, more than 300 persons. The great heiress of this earl,

THE LADY ELIZABETH DE BURGO, espoused LIONEL, OF ANTWERP, Duke of Clarence, 3rd son of EDWARD III., who became, in consequence, 4th EARL OF ULSTER and Lord of Connaught. This prince repaired to Ireland, and was LORD-LIEUT. in 1361. He left at his decease an only dau., PHILIPPA, who was given in marriage, at the age of thirteen, by her grandfather, EDWARD III., to

EDWARD MORTIMER, 3rd Earl of March, who, in right of his wife, at the decease of her father, became 5th EARL OF ULSTER, and was s. by his son and grandson, as 6th and 7th Earls of March and Ulster. The latter, EDMUND, dying s. p. in 1424, his elder sister, the LADY ANNE MORTIMER, became his heir, and marrying

RICHARD PLANTAGENET, Earl of Cambridge, their son,

RICHARD PLANTAGENET, Duke of York, became EARL OF ULSTER, in right of his mother. This prince, who was declared heir to the crown, fell at Wakefield, in 1460, fighting under the colours of York, and was s. by his son,

EDWARD PLANTAGENET, Earl of March and Ulster, who ascended the throne as EDWARD IV., and his earldom merged in the crown.

WILLIAM.

The 2nd son of Richard de Burgo, Lord of Connaught,

WILLIAM DE BURGH, is known by the surname of Athankip, from being put to death at that place by the King of Connaught. He was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM DE BURGH, who, having m. a dau. of the family of Mac-Jordan, left, with other issue, at his decease, in 1324, ULICK, of whom presently.

Edmond, (Sir) from whom the (extinct) Viscounts Bourke, of Mayo, now represented by AYLMER-BOURKE LAMBERT, Esq. of Boyton, Wilts, derived.

Richard.

Redmond, from whom several eminent families of BURKE, in the county of Galway, have descended.

Thomas, (Sir) appointed lord-treasurer of Ireland in 1331. John, father of John de Burgo, Archbishop of Tuam, who d. in 1450.

Henry.

* His dau., Joane, became the 2nd wife of John, Lord D'Arcy, JUSTICE OF IRELAND. (See BURKE's Commoners, vol. iii. p. 144.)

The eldest son,

SIR ULICK DE BURGH, Lord of Clanricarde, was a person of great power, and distinguished, like his progenitors, in arms. He m. Agnes, dau. of the Earl of Warwick; and dying in 1429, was s. by his son,

ULICK DE BURGH, of Clanricarde, who m. Eglina, dau. of Hugh de Courtenay; and dying in 1451, was s. by his eldest son,

ULICK DE BURGH, who was s. by his son,

ULICK DE BURGH, who was created, by HENRY VIII., at Greenwich, 1 July, 1543, Baron of Dunkellin, and EARL OF CLANRICARDE; and obtained, at the same time, from the king, a grant of the monastery of Devia Nova, in the diocese of Clonfert, with the advowsons and donations of all the rectories, &c. in Clanricarde and Dunkellin belonging to the crown. The king, moreover, defrayed the charges of his journey, and made him a further grant of a piece of land, near Dublin, for keeping his horses and attendants, when he repaired to parliament or council. His lordship did not, however, long enjoy his honours; but dying in the following year, 1544, was s. by his only son,

RICHARD, 2nd earl; who, while lord-lieut. of Ireland, overthrew, in conjunction with Sir Richard Bingham, the Scotch, at the river Moye, in 1553. His lordship m. Margaret, dau. of Morough, Earl of Thomond, and had issue, ULICK, Lord Dunkellin. The earl* d. 1582, and was s. by his son,

RICHARD, } who s. as 6th and 7th EARLS OF CLANRICARDE.
WILLIAM, }

JOHN, created VISCOUNT BURKE, of CLANMORIES, co. Mayo, (a dignity now extinct.)

His lordship d. 20 May, 1631, and was s. by his eldest son,

RICHARD, 4th earl, surnamed of Kinsale, from the valour he had displayed against the rebels there. This nobleman was created an English peer, 3 April, 1624, by the titles of Baron Somerhill and Viscount Tunbridge, co. Kent, and 23 Aug. 1628, advanced to the Earldom of St. Albans. His lordship m. Frances, dau. and heir of Sir Francis Walsingham, and widow of Sir Philip Sydney, and of ELIZABETH's unfortunate favourite, the Earl of Essex, by whom he had one son, ULICK, his successor, and two daus., Mary, wife of Edmund, son of James, Earl of Ormonde; and Honora, m. to John Paulet, Marquess of Winchester. He d. in 1635, and was s. by his only son,

ULICK, 5th Earl of Clanricarde, and 2nd of St. Albans. This nobleman was advanced to the Marquisate of Clanricarde, in Ireland, 21 Feb. 1644. He m. Lady Anne Compton, only dau. of William, Earl of Northampton, and had an only dau.,

The Marquess dying thus without male issue, the Marquisate of Clanricarde and his English honours expired; while the Irish Earldom of Clanricarde and Barony of Dunkellin reverted to his first cousin,

RICHARD, 6th earl; at whose decease, without issue, the honours devolved upon his brother,

His lordship m. 2ndly, Ellen, dau. of Donough, Earl of Clancarty, and had,

The earl was s. at his decease, in 1687, by his eldest son,

RICHARD, 8th earl, who m. Miss Bagnell, and had one only dau., Dorothy, m. to Alexander Pendarves, Esq. of Rascarrow, in Cornwall. He was s. by his brother,

JOHN, 9th earl. This nobleman was col. of a regt. of foot in the army of JAMES, and being taken prisoner at the head of his regt., at the battle of Aughrim, was conveyed to the castle of Dublin, and thence removed into England. His lordship being outlawed and attainted, his estates were forfeited; but his children claiming their several remainders before the trustees for the sale of forfeitures, recovered the same; and an act of parliament passed (1st of QUEEN ANNE) for making provision for the protestant children of the Earl of Clanricarde, whereby his lordship was acquitted of all treasons and attainders, and restored to his estates. * This TITLE, first enjoyed by Sir Edward Hyde, was derived from a spacious park near Salisbury, formerly the site of a royal palace, but more noted as the place where HENRY II. summoned, in 1164, the great council of peers and prelates, from which emanated the celebrated regulations, so well known in history as the "CONSTITUTIONS OF CLARENDON." By those the clergy were declared amenable to the civil power, and hence arose the contest between that MONARCH and THOMAS A BECKET.

Lineage.

This family derives its surname from the town and lordship of Massey, near Bayeux, in Normandy; of which it is stated, that its chiefs had been lords for many generations previous to the descent of DUKE WILLIAM upon England, and that they were of great power in the province, from the time of its first invasion and conquest in the 9th century.

At the CONQUEST, the Masseys acquired, with other grants, the lordship of Dunham, in Cheshire, which then became Dunham-Massey; and from the Barons of Dunham-Massey descended

HUGH MASSEY, who had a military command in Ireland during the rebellion of 1641, and settled there upon the restoration of tranquillity. This successful soldier married no less than five wives, but had issue by his 1st (Margaret Percy) only. He was s. by his son,

This family derives from the Claytons of Northamptonshire.

SIR ROBERT CLAYTON, Knt., filled, in 1679, the civic chair of London, represented the metropolis for nearly 30 years in parliament, and was father of the city at his decease. During the reign of JAMES II., Sir Robert, having previously acted a prominent part in public affairs, retired from public life to his estate at Marden, which he converted into the beautiful form it now wears, and enjoyed his solitude with as much tranquillity as the convulsions of the times would permit, till the arrival of the Prince of Orange, when he was judged a fit person to compliment his royal highness, in the name of the city of London.* He was subsequently one of the commissioners of the customs. Sir Robert was a princely benefactor to Christ's Hospital, which suffered materially in the dreadful conflagration of 1666, and erected the south front, at an expense of £5000. Over the gateway, which is the entrance from Christ's-church passage, is a statue of KING EDWARD, with the following inscription: "EDWARD THE SIXTH, of famous memory, King of England, was the founder of Christ's Hospital; and Sir Robert Clayton, Knt. and alderman, sometime lord mayor of this city of London, erected this statue of KING EDWARD, and built the most part of this

Lineage.

This family claims a common ancestor with the noble house of Fane, (changed from Vane,) Earls of Westmorland, namely,

SIR HENRY VANE, who was knighted for his valiant achievements at the battle of Poitiers, 19 Sept. 1356. This gallant person m. Grace, dau. and heir of Sir Stephen de Leeke, and left a son,

JOHN VANE, who m. Isabel, dau. and co-heir of Martin St. Owen. The grandson of this marriage,

HENRY VANE, of Hilden, in Kent, m. Isabel, dau. and co-heir of Humphrey Peshall; and dying about the 34th HENRY VI., was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN VANE, Esq. of Hildon, who, in the reign of HENRY VI., had a grant of the manor of Hadloe, in Kent. He m. Isabel, dau. of John Darell, Esq., and had, with other issue,

RICHARD, (the eldest surviving son,) ancestor of the EARLS OF WESTMORLAND.

JOHN, of whom presently.

This John Vane, senior, appears the first to have changed the name to FANE, for so he writes himself (John Fane, Esq. of Tunbridge) in his will, bearing date, 16 April, 1488. His 2nd surviving son,

JOHN FANE, Esq. of Hadloe, m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of Edward Haute, Esq., and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY FANE, Esq. of Hadloe, who was involved in Sir Thomas Wyatt's insurrection, and committed to the Tower; but, owing to his youth, experienced the royal clemency. He subsequently represented Winchilsea in parliament, and became an eloquent and distinguished senator. He d. in the 22nd of ELIZABETH, and was s. by his son,

HENRY FANE, Esq. of Hadloe, who m. 1st, Mary, only dau. and heir of Thomas Fane, Esq. of Buston, but by her had no issue. He m. 2ndly, Margaret, dau. of Roger Twisden, Esq. of East Peckham, co. Kent, and was s. by his son,

SIR HENRY (who resumed the original surname of his ancestors) VANE, of Raby Castle, co. Durham, his chief place of abode. This gentleman was a distinguished politician, and high in the favour of JAMES I. and CHARLES I.; in the former reign he was appointed cofferer to the Prince of Wales; and in the latter, after enjoying many elevated offices, was constituted principal secretary of state for life, and sworn of the privy council. His subsequent dismissal from office was attributed to his having offended the king by the active part he took in the prosecution of the Earl of Strafford, against whom, it is said, he was influenced by private pique, arising from that nobleman's having, when elevated to the peerage, taken the title of Baron Raby, of Raby Castle, which Sir Henry Vane deemed more properly to belong to himself as owner of the castle. The removal of Sir Henry from power formed part of the justification of the parliament for first levying an army. "It is only," saith their declaration, "for the defence of the king's person, and the religion, liberties, and laws of the kingdom, &c. That by the instigation of evil counsellors, the king had raised an army of papists, by which he intended to awe and destroy the parliament, &c., and the putting out the Earl of Northumberland, SIR HENRY VANE, and others, &c., were sufficient and ample evidence thereof." Sir Henry Vane m. Frances, dau. of Thomas Darcy, of the co. Essex, and had, besides daus., two surviving sons, viz.,

HENRY, his successor.

George, of Long Melton, co. Durham, who received the honour of knighthood in 1640. Sir George m. Elizabeth, dau. and sole heir of Sir Lionel Maddison, of Rogerley, in the same co., and was s. by his eldest son,

Lionel, who m. Catherine, dau. of Sir Geo. Fletcher, Bart. and was grandfather of

The Rev. HENRY VANE, D.D., who was created a Bart. in 1782. Sir Henry d. two years afterwards, and was s. by his son,

SIR HENRY, who, in right of his mother, assumed the additional surname of Tempest.

Sir Henry Vane-Tempest m. 1799, ANNE-CATHERINE, COUNTESS OF ANTRIM; and dying in 1813, left an only dau. and heiress, FRANCES-ANNE-EMILY, who m. 1819, Charles, present Marquess of Londonderry.

Sir Henry Vane d. 1654, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR HENRY VANE, Knt., whom Clarendon characterises as a person of "great natural parts, a quick conception, and very ready, sharp, and weighty expression." This gentleman was appointed joint treasurer of the navy with Sir William Russell, and outliving his associate, enjoyed the office alone; in which he displayed a rare example of honour and integrity. The fees of office were, at that time, four-pence in the pound, which, by reason of the war, fairly amounted to little less than £39,000 per annum; but Sir Henry Vane looked upon it as too much for a subject, and nobly relinquished his patent, which had been granted by CHARLES I. for life, to the then parliament, desiring but £2000 a-year for an agent that he had brought up to the business, the remainder to go to the public. The part which Sir Henry took in the civil wars is so amply recounted by the historians of the period, that it would be presumption to attempt any detail in a work like this, even if our confined space did not present an insuperable barrier. He seemed in early life attached to the monarchy; "but when his father (further observes Clarendon) received the disobligation from the Lord Strafford, by his being created Baron of Raby, the house and land of Vane, (which title had been promised himself, but it was unluckily cast upon the earl, purely out of contempt to Vane,) they sucked in all the thoughts of revenge imaginable; and thence, the son betook himself to the friendship of Mr. Pym, and all other discontented or seditious persons, and communicated all that intelligence that designed the ruin of the earl, and which grafted him in the entire confidence of those who promoted the same; so that nothing was concealed from him, though it is believed he communicated his own thoughts to very few." After the Restoration, he was looked upon as a dangerous character; and being arraigned for high treason, was found guilty, and receiving sentence of death, was beheaded on Tower Hill, 11 June, 1662. Sir Henry had four sons and six daus. by his wife, Frances, dau. of Sir Christopher Wray, Bart. of Ashby, and was s. by the youngest and only surviving son,

SIR CHRISTOPHER VANE, Knt., who was elevated to the peerage as Lord Barnard, of Barnard Castle, in the Bishoprick of Durham, by letterspatent, dated 8 July, 1699. His lordship m. Elizabeth, eldest dau. of Gilbert Holles, Earl of Clare, and sister and co-heir of John, Duke of Newcastle, by whom he had two surviving sons,

William, who was elevated to the peerage of Ireland, 13 Oct. 1720, as Baron Duncannon and Viscount Vane; honours which expired with his lordship's son and successor, William, 2nd viscount, in 1789.

Lineage.

Of this gentleman no pedigree could be obtained; but by the coat of arms (that of the old and honourable family of Clifford, with some slight alteration) recently conferred upon him by the earl marshal and his retainers, the heralds, he must, in accordance with the rule so rigidly observed by those functionaries towards all other her majesty's liege subjects, have proved himself, by strong presumptive testimony at least, a legitimate scion of that family, so eminently distinguished in feudal times. We regret, therefore, not being able to trace the descent.

CLIFTON.

CLIFTON - JUCKES, SIR JUCKES-GRANVILLE, of Clifton, co. Nottingham; inherited, as 8th bart. on the demise of his brother, 29 April, 1837; m. 1st, 1794, Margaret, dau. of James de Lancy, Esq. of Bath, and 2ndly, in 1821, Marianne, dau. of John Swinfen, Esq. of Swinfen, in Staffordshire, and has issue by both marriages.

The baronet assumed the surname of JUCKES, in addition to, and after, his patronymic.

Lineage.

The surname of this very ancient family is derived from Cliffe-ton, or Clifton, a small hamlet, upon an eminence, about two miles from the town of Nottingham; which hamlet, and the manor of Wilford, were purchased, temp. EDW. I., from John de Soleni, by

SIR GERVAASE DE CLIFTON, Knt. This gentleman was appointed sheriff of the cos. Nottingham and Derby in 1279, and continued for seven years; in 1286, he was constituted sheriff of Yorkshire, and continued for six years. During his shrievalty, he was committed to gaol, upon complaint of John de Carleton, for making a false return to a writ. He m. Amflicia, dau. of Sir William Sampson, of Eperston, Notts, and d. 1324. From Sir Gervase we pass to his descendant,

SIR JOHN CLIFTON, M.P. for Nottingham in 1403; who m. Catharine, dau. of Sir John de Cressy, of Hodsack, and sister and co-heir of Sir Hugh de Cressy, and thus acquired a considerable augmentation of property. Sir John was slain at the battle of Shrewsbury, fighting on the king's side against the Percies. His lineal successor,

ROBERT CLIFTON, m. for his 2nd wife, Agnes, dau. of Henry, Lord Clifford, and sister of Henry, 1st Earl of Cumberland, who, through the lines of Clifford, Percy, and Mortimer, was descended from Lionel Plantagenet, Duke of Clarence, son of EDWARD III. Mr. Clifton d. 1518, and was s. by his son,

SIR GERVAASE CLIFTON, Knt., a very eminent person in the reigns of HENRY VIII., EDWARD VI., and MARY and ELIZABETH. He was a gentleman in great authority in peace and war, yet, notwithstanding his martial inclination, of so courteous and affable a disposition that he was usually styled "Gentle Sir Gervase;" and ELIZABETH has given him that title in a distich, attributed to her majesty, on four Nottingham knights:—

"Gervase, the gentle; Stanhope, the stout;
Marcham, the lion; and Sutton, the lout."

He m. 1st, Mary, dau. of Sir John Nevill, of Cheet, in Yorkshire, by whom he had an only surviving dau., Elizabeth. He espoused, 2ndly, Winifred, dau. and heir of William Thwaites, Esq. of Owlton, in Suffolk; and was s. by his grandson,

This gentleman was made knight of the Bath, at the coronation of JAMES I., and created a Bart. 22 May, 1611. CLINTON.

CLINTON, Baron, (Charles-Rudolphe-Trefusis,) of Maxtock, co. Warwick; b. 9 Nov. 1791; s. to the barony, on the decease of his brother, Oct. 1832; m. 25 Oct. 1831, Lady Elizabeth-Georgiana Kerr, dau. of William, 6th Marquess of Lothian, and has issue,

II. Mark-George-Kerr, b. 13 Nov. 1835.

III. A son, b. 5 Jan. 1838.

I. Emily-Harriet.

II. Mary-Louisa.

His lordship is the 17th Baron Clinton, and the eldest co-heir of the ancient Barony of Say; which has remained in abeyance for several centuries. When Sir James Fienes obtained the Barony of Say and Sele, by creation, 1447, John the 5th and then Baron Clinton, great-grandson and representative of Idonea Say, relinquished all claim to the barony and arms of Say; but how far such a cession affects his descendants has not been determined. According, however, to the celebrated resolution of the House of Lords, 18 June, 1768, "that no fine now levied, nor at any time hereafter to be levied, to the king, can bar such title of honour, or the right of any person claiming such title under him that levied, or shall levy, such fine," it would appear that it did not prejudice their hereditary right.

Lineage.

The first person of note in the Clinton pedigree is,

GEOFFRAY DE CLINTON, lord-chamberlain and treasurer to HENRY I., whose direct male line terminated with his great-grandson, Henry de Clinton, in 1332, but another house was founded by his nephew,

OSBERT DE CLINTON, who had a grant of the lordship of Coleshill, co. Warwick, from his cousin, Geoffrey de Clinton, lord-chamberlain to HENRY II. This Osbert was s. by his son,

OSBERT DE CLINTON, of Coleshill, who d. 1222, and was s. by his son,

SIR THOMAS CLINTON, who m. Margery, dau. of James de Besiege, of Baddesley, co. Warwick, and had issue,

THOMAS, his successor.

John, of Coleshill, whose male line terminated with his grandson,

JOHN, whose only child and heir,

JOANE CLINTON, m. 1st, Sir John Montfort; 2ndly, Sir John-Sutton Dudley; and 3rdly, Sir Henry Griffith.

Osbert, lord of the manor of Austrey, in the co. Warwick. William, a priest.

James, who inherited from his mother Baddesley, and residing there, gave it the name of Baddesley Clinton.*

Sir Thomas was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS DE CLINTON, who was s. by his son,

This John de Clinton was in the wars of Scotland, 26th EDWARD I., and had summons to parliament, as BARON CLINTON, of Maxtock, 6 Feb. 1299. He d. 1314, leaving two sons,

JOHN, his successor.

The elder son,

SIR JOHN DE CLINTON, 2nd Lord Clinton, was summoned to parliament from 1332 to 1335, in which latter year he died, and was s. by his son,

SIR JOHN DE CLINTON, 3rd baron, summoned to parliament from 1357 to 1397. This nobleman inherited the estates of his uncle, William, Earl of Huntingdon. His lordship was engaged in the French wars, with little interruption, from 29th EDWARD III. to 6th RICHARD II. He m. 1st, IDONEA DE SAY, elder sister of William, Lord Say, and aunt and sole heir of Elizabeth, Baroness Say;

* This estate, after various transmissions, was sold in the reign of HENRY IV. to John Brome, a wealthy lawyer of Warwick, whose grandaun. and heir, CONSTANCE BROME, conveyed it in marriage to Sir Edward Ferrers, ancestor of the present proprietor, MARMION-EDWARD FERRERS, Esq. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. iii. p. 131.)

she was also cousin and heir of William de Say, BARON OF SELE. (Her father was Jeffrey, Lord Say, and her mother, the Lady Maud Beauchamp, dau. of Guy, Earl of Warwick.) By this lady he had issue,

Sir John m. 2ndly, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of William de la Plaunch, of Haversham, co. Buckingham. He was s. at his decease, 1397, by his grandson,

THOMAS, 8th baron; who m. Mary, natural dau. of Sir Edward Poynings, K.G. and knight banneret; and dying of the sweating sickness, 7 Aug. 1517, was s. by his son,

EDWARD, 9th baron, b. 1512. This nobleman, who was one of the most eminent persons of the age in which he lived, (see Duke of Newcastle,) was created EARL OF LINCOLN, in 1571, having previously filled the office of LORD HIGH ADMIRAL. His lordship m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir John Blount, and widow of Gilbert, Lord Talboys, by whom he had three daus. COCKBURN.

COCKBURN, SIR JAMES, of Langton, co. Berwick, a major-gen. in the army, G.C.H.; inherited as 5th bart., at the decease of his father, 26 July, 1804; m. Mariana, eldest dau. of John, 13th Viscount Hereford, and has an only dau.,

MARIANA-AUGUSTA, m. in 1834, to Sir James-John Hamilton, Bart.

Lineage.

The patriarch of the very ancient house of Cockburn, of Langton, was

ALEXANDER DE COCKBURN, who obtained the Barony of Carriden, co. Linlithgow, from DAVID II., in 1358; which barony had been forfeited to the crown, by what, in the law of Scotland, is denominated recognition, or a vassal disposing of his property without consent of his superior; for all property at that time being subject to feudal tenure, the superior could challenge any deed of the vassal which affected the territory of which he was over-lord. This Alexander m. Mary de Veteri Ponte, (from which period the family has been designated of Langtoun, or Langton,) whose father fell at Bannockburn, in 1314. The eldest son of this marriage,

SIR ALEXANDER COCKBURN, Knt. of Langtoun, was keeper of the great seal between 1389 and 1396; and from him descended

SIR WILLIAM COCKBURN, Knt. of Langtoun, who obtained a grant, in 1595, of the lands and Barony of Langtoun, with the office of principal usher, and its fees and casualties, to himself and his heirs male whatsoever, bearing the arms and surname of Cockburn. He m. Helen, 5th dau. of Alexander, 4th Lord Elphinstone, and was s. by his son,

I. WILLIAM COCKBURN, Esq., who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia in 1627. It appears that, during the lifetime of this gentleman, some question concerning the office of usher, which he had inherited from his father, being raised, caused much public agitation. Principal Baillie, in his letters, relates "that while the question of ushery was depending in parliament, in 1641, Langton, too rashly, takes a rod and puts himself in possession of the place." The king, who was present, offended at his presumption, ordered him into custody, which gave rise to a motion, on the part of the Marquess of Argyll, that, when any subject of debate occurred, two members of each estate should be deputed to acquaint the king. Accordingly, deputies having obtained an audience of his majesty, in the course of the same day, they remonstrated on a member of the house being committed without advice of parliament, and required the king to enact a law that neither himself nor his successors should do so hereafter, without consulting the legislative body. Sir William, subsequently, alienated a moiety of the ushership, and became joint-usher with Colonel Cunningham. He was s. by his only son,

II. SIR ARCHIBALD, who, in 1657, was returned heir to his father in the office of principal usher, still held jointly with Colonel Cunningham, and also in the Barony of Langtoun, and other property. In 1674, Sir Archibald, having purchased Cunningham's life-rent, obtained another grant of the office, with a salary of £250, and other emoluments attached to it, for ever. Sir Archibald m. Lady Mary Campbell, dau. of the Earl of Breadalbane, and was s. at his decease, in 1705, by his eldest son,

JAMES, the present bart.; who, in 1806, was under-secretary of state; in 1807, governor and commander-in-chief at Curacao; and in 1811, governor and commander-in-chief of the Bermuda Islands.

Sir George, M.P.; vice-admiral of the white, major-gen. of marines; m. his cousin, Miss Mary Cockburn.

COFFIN.

COFFIN, SIR ISAAC, of the Magdalen Islands, Lower Canada; b. at Boston, 16 May, 1757; entered the royal navy, and attained, after a long series of gallant and useful services, the rank of admiral of the red; m. March, 1811, Elizabeth-Brown, only child of William Greenly, Esq. of Titley Court, Herefordshire. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. i. page 292.) Admiral Coffin (who is 4th son of the late Nathaniel Coffin, Esq. of Boston, by Elizabeth, dau. of Henry Barnes, Esq. of the same place) was created a Bart. 13 June, 1804.

Lineage.

SIR ISAAC COFFIN, Bart., is descended from an ancient family which came over with WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR and settled at Portledge, in Devonshire, where a mansion of considerable extent and great antiquity, now in the possession of Pyne Coffin, Esq., still exists. The authorities who have written respecting the co. Devon make honourable mention of Sir Elias Coffin, Knt. of Clist and Ingarby, in the days of KING JOHN; of Sir Richard Coffin, of Alwington, in that of HENRY II.; of Sir Jeffrey Coffin, of Coombe Coffin, in the reign of HENRY III.; and of other knights descendants of these, during successive reigns, till the time of HENRY VIII., when we find Sir William Coffin sheriff of Devonshire, and afterwards highly preferred at court, being master of the horse at the coronation of Anne Boleyn, a gentleman of the privy chamber, and afterwards one of the eighteen assistants of KING HENRY VIII. at the tournament of Guennes, in France, A.D. 1519. This Sir William Coffin was also high steward of the manor and liberties of Standon, co. Hertford. At his death he humbly bequeathed to his great master, HENRY VIII., with whom he was in especial grace and favour, all his hawks, his best horses, and a cart; and leaving no issue, he conveyed the manor of East Higgington, in the parish of Berryguerbir, with all his other estates in the co. of Devon, to his eldest brother's son, Richard Coffin, Esq. of Portledge. His monument in Standon Church is mentioned in WEEVER'S Funeral Monuments, p. 534.

During the wars between CHARLES and the parliament, the branch of the Coffin family from which Sir Isaac is descended, having embraced the royal cause, was driven to take refuge in America, having their lands in Dorsetshire, &c., sequestered; but another branch remained in peaceable possession of Portledge, where the original arms of the family are now to be seen on the walls; viz., azure, three bezants, between five cross crosslets, or.

Lineage.

By a very ancient grant, from Reginald de Villecore to Thomas Colleton, of an estate, and by subsequent deeds, in the beginning of the reign of EDWARD I., we find the Colletons style themselves gentlemen, and that they then bore the arms which they still continue to bear.

I. JOHN COLLETON, Esq., eldest son of Peter Colleton, Esq. of Exeter, was capt. of foot and a most active partisan of royalty in the beginning of the civil wars. Capt. Colleton had a col.'s commission to raise a regiment from Sir John Berkeley, afterwards Lord Berkeley, signed by the Prince of Wales; which regiment he raised within ten days, and expended for the king's service £40,000, beside losing considerably more than that sum by sequestration. He was obliged eventually to retire to Barbadoes; but returning after the Restoration, Sir John Berkeley presented a memorial in his favour to the king, who, in consequence, conferred upon him the dignity of Bart. 18 Feb. 1661. Sir John, in conjunction with the Duke of Albemarle and other distinguished personages, had a grant of large dominions in North America; he left at his decease four sons, and was s. by the eldest,

II. SIR PETER, M.P.; who m. Elizabeth, relict of William Johnson, Esq., and had, with a dau., Catherine, the wife of Robert Richardson, Esq., an only son, his successor, in 1666, COLQUHOUN.

COLQUHOUN, SIR JAMES, of Colquhoun and of Luss, co. Dumbarton; s. his father, 3 Feb. 1836. Sir James is lord-lieut. and M.P. for the co. Dumbarton.

Lineage.

The very remote antiquity of this family precludes, if our space permitted, any accurate development of its origin.

SIR ROBERT DE COLQUHOUN, Knt., living temp. DAVID BRUCE, m. the dau. and heiress of Umphridus de Luss, chief of an ancient family of that name, which flourished in Dumbartonshire long antecedently, and had issue,

HUMPHREY, his heir.

Robert, of Comstrodien, ancestor of the present JAMES COLQUHOUN, Esq. of London, colonial agent for St. Vincent, &c.

Sir Robert was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HUMPHREY, the heir and representative of the families of Colquhoun and Luss; from which circumstance himself and his posterity were ever after designated from those lands. His lineal descendant,

I. JOHN COLQUHOUN, of that ilk, and of Luss, who, in his father's lifetime, was styled in a charter, "eldest son of Alexander Colquhoun, Lord of Luss," was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 12 Aug. 1625. Sir John was s. by his eldest son,

II. SIR JOHN, who d. without surviving male issue, in 1675, when the title devolved upon his brother,

IV. and I. SIR HUMPHREY, a member of the union parliament, and who strenuously opposed that measure. He m. Margaret, dau. of Sir Patrick Houston, Bart. of Houston, by whom he had an only dau. and heiress, Anne, who m. in 1702, James Grant, Esq. of Pluscardine, 2nd son of Ludovick Grant, Esq. of Grant. Sir Humphrey resigned, in 1704, his baronetcy for a new patent to himself and his son-in-law, with the express limitation that his said son-in-law, or his heirs, on succeeding to the title should assume the surname and arms of "Colquhoun," and that the estates of Luss and Grant should not be conjoined. Sir Humphrey d. in 1718, when the original baronetcy and the chiefship of the family became vested in James Colquhoun, of Tillyquhoun, who became 5th bart., while the new patent devolved, according to the limitation, upon the deceased bart.'s son-in-law, who thereupon became

II. SIR JAMES COLQUHOUN, of Luss, 2nd bart. of the new creation; which estate and title he enjoyed until the death of his elder brother, Brigadier-Gen. Alexander Grant, of Grant, without issue, 1719; when, succeeding to the estate of Grant, he resumed his paternal family name of Grant, retaining the baronetcy only, it being vested in his person. Sir James d. in 1747, and was s. in the estate of Grant by his 2nd, but eldest surviving, son,

III. SIR LUDOVICK GRANT, who retained the baronetcy, which had evidently been intended for the inheritor of the estate of Luss. Prior to the decease of Sir Ludovick's elder brother, in 1732, he possessed that estate; but then his younger brother, George Grant, assumed the name of Colquhoun, and became the owner of Luss. Sir Ludovick was s. at his decease by his said brother,

IV. SIR JAMES COLQUHOUN, in the estate of Grant. Sir James m. Helen, dau. of William, Lord Strathnaver, and grandau. of John, 19th Earl of Sutherland, and had issue,

Sir James d. Nov. 1786, and was s. by his eldest son,

V. and I. SIR JAMES, who, to terminate all disputes about the title, was created a Bart. of Great Britain, 27 June, 1786. COLQUHOUN.

COLQUHOUN, SIR —, of Tillyquhoun, county of Dumbarton; succeeded as eleventh baronet in 1838.

Lineage.

The remote antiquity of this family precludes all accuracy in the development of its origin; indeed, the traditional accounts are various; some authorities deducing the descent from a younger branch of the old Earls of Lennox, because of the similitude of the armorial bearings; while others assert, that the family was founded by a younger son of Conock, one of the provincial monarchs of Ireland, who came into Scotland in the time of GREGORY THE

COL

GREAT, and obtained from that prince some lands in Dumbartonshire, which he called Conochon, soon after corrupted to Colquhoun, a name which they have ever since retained.

SIR ROBERT DE COLQUHOUN, Knt., temp. DAVID BRUCE, m. the heiress of Luss, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR HUMPHREY, who, as a representative of both families, was denominated of Colquhoun and Luss; and his posterity ever afterwards bore the same designation. This gentleman was s. by his eldest son,

SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, governor of the castle of Dumbarton in the minority of JAMES II. of Scotland. This gentleman, from his activity in repelling the inroads of the highlanders, became so obnoxious to those lawless persons, that they resolved upon his destruction; in furtherance of which, they dispatched a messenger to the governor requesting a friendly conference in order to adjust their differences. Sir John, apprehending no treachery, departed from his garrison to meet the marauders, with a few attendants, but had scarcely reached the place of conference when he was furiously set upon, and, with all his followers, barbarously murdered. This event took place in 1440. From him lineally descended,

I. SIR JOHN COLQUHOUN, of Colquhoun and Luss, who was created a Bart. of Nova Scotia, 12 Aug. 1625. This gentleman was a staunch royalist, and was plundered by CROMWELL, in 1654, of £2000. III. SIR JAMES, who was s. by his only son,

IV. SIR HUMPHREY. This gentleman was a member of the union parliament, and strenuously opposed the measure. He d. without male issue, when the estates passed to his dau., (see Sir Humphrey Colquhoun, of Colquhoun and Luss, 4th bart., in the genealogical detail of that dignity,) and the title reverted to his cousin,

V. SIR JOHN, of Tillyquhoun, (eldest son of Alexander Colquhoun, youngest son of the 1st bart.) This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Andrew Anderson, Esq., king's printer for Scotland, and was s. by his only son,

COLVILLE.

COLVILLE, OF CULROSS, BARON, (John Colville,) in the peerage of Scotland, one of the representative lords; b. 1768; m. 14 Oct. 1790, Elizabeth, dau. of Francis Ford, Esq., and aunt of the present Sir Francis Ford, Bart., but has no surviving issue. His lordship, who is vice-admiral of the white, inherited the peerage, as 10th baron, at the decease of his father, 8 March, 1810.

Lineage.

Of this ancient Scottish family, which deduces its descent from PHILIP DE COLVILL, of Oxenham, in Roxburgh, who lived in the 12th century, we shall commence with

ROBERT COLVILL, steward to MARGARET, Queen of JAMES III., who had a charter from that monarch of the lands of Hilton, co. Clackmannan, dated 10 Oct. 1483. This Robert appears to have actively espoused the cause of JAMES IV. against his father; for, six days after the accession of that monarch, he had the office of director of the chancery conferred upon him by royal charter, (17 June, 1488.) He subsequently had other considerable grants from the crown, among which were the lands and barony of Uchiltree, whence he assumed his designation. He fell, with his royal master, at the battle of Flodden, 1513, and was s. by his son,

SIR JAMES COLVILL, of Uchiltree, which barony he exchanged with Sir James Hamilton, for the lands of Easter-Wemyss and Lochorschyre. At the institution of the college of Justice, 1532, Sir James was appointed one of the judges at the temporal side of the bench. He was s. at his decease by his only son,

SIR JAMES COLVILL, who m. Janet, 2nd dau. of Sir Robert Douglas, of Lochleven, and had issue,

JAMES, (Sir) his successor.

Alexander, who had a charter of the whole abbey of

Culross, 1567, and was thence styled COMMENDATOR OF CULROSS. He was appointed one of the judges of session in 1575; and dying in 1597, was s. by his son,

JOHN, of whom hereafter, as successor to the 2nd LORD COLVILLE.

Sir James Colville d. 1580, and was s. by his elder son,

SIR JAMES COLVILLE, of Easter Wemyss, who had served in the wars of France, under HENRY THE GREAT, with high reputation. He had a charter of Culross, Valleyfield, &c., erected into the temporal Barony of Culross, 20 June, 1589, and was created a peer of parliament, 20 Jan. 1609, by the title of LORD COLVILLE, of Culross, with remainder to his heirs male whatsoever. His lordship m. 1st, Isabel, 2nd dau. of Patrick, Lord Ruthven, by whom he had an only surviving son, ROBERT, and a dau., Jean, who m. Sir James Campbell, of Lawers, and was mother of John, Earl of Loudoun, lord high chancellor of Scotland. Lord Colville m. 2ndly, Ellen Shaw, relict of Robert Moubray, of Barnbogle; and dying 1620, was s. by (the son of Robert, master of Colville, who predeceased his father) his grandson,

JAMES, 2nd Lord Colville; who d. without issue, 1640, when the title devolved upon his cousin, (refer to Alexander, COMMENDATOR OF CULROSS,)

JOHN COLVILLE, of Westercumbrie, as 3rd baron; but this gentleman did not assume the title, neither did his son and successor,

ANDREW COLVILLE, of Kincardine, 4th baron; who was professor of divinity at Sedan, in France. He was s. by his elder son,

JOHN, 5th baron; who also declined assuming the title. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir George Preston, of Valleyfield, by whom he had two sons, and was s. by the elder,

ALEXANDER, 6th baron; who likewise declined to assume the peerage. He m. Mary, dau. of Sir Charles Erskine, Lord Lion King-at-Arms, by whom he had five sons and six daus., and was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 7th baron, an officer in the army. This gentleman claimed the barony, but was refused, upon the ground that it was not upon the roll at the time of the Union. Lineage.

By reference to the records in the office of Ulster king-of-arms, it is established, that the Milesian family of Conroy, whose name (in Irish, O'Maolconaire) was formerly written O'Mulconry and Conry, is of great antiquity, and derives its descent from Niallus Magnus, monarch of Ireland, A.D. 400.

In this family was vested by hereditary right for many successive generations the honourable office of seanachie (historian or herald) to the kings of Connaught.

The early part of the pedigree is to be found in the registry entitled "Funeral entries of the nobility and gentry of Ireland," one of the books of record in the Irish heralds' college of arms for the year 1637, when the funeral and lineage of Moylin O'Mulconry were duly established and registered as the forty-third in lineal descent of this ancient family, and as such received the warranty, dated 6 July, 1638, of Thomas Preston, then Ulster king-of-arms of all Ireland. From this

MOYLIN O'MULCONRY, Esq. of Tullow, co. Roscommon, (who m. Catherine, dau. of Teigue O'Flanagan, Esq. of Ceanclain, county Roscommon, and died 5 January, 1637,) there descended, altering their surname,

THORNA O'MULCONRY, Esq., eldest son and heir, who m. Evelyn, dau. of Ferdoragh Mac Brenan, Esq. of Clonicarran, co. Roscommon, who dying in 1647, was s. by his only son,

JOHN CONRY, or O'MULCONRY, Esq., who having taken part in the civil war, suffered from the confiscations inflicted upon the native families by CROMWELL, and fled to France, where, dropping the two first syllables of his surname, he married; and died in 1670, leaving issue two sons, of whom the elder,

CHARLES CONRY, Esq., had a grant of land in Roscommon from CHARLES II., dated 18 Aug. 1678. By the adherence of this gentleman to the cause of KING JAMES II. he was totally ruined, and was slain at the fatal battle of the Boyne, 1 July 1690. He was succeeded by his brother as heir male,

FEARFEASSA CONRY, Esq. of Elphin, co. Roscommon, first protestant of this family; who m. Miss Elizabeth Aylmer; and dying in 1746, was succeeded by his only son,

JOHN CONROY, Esq. of Bettyfield, co. Roscommon, b. 1704; who m. 1747, Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Robert Fowke, Esq. of Tallow, co. Waterford, descended from the ancient English family of Fowke, of Brewood and Gunston, in Staffordshire; and dying in 1769, left issue two daus. and a son, JOHN-PONSONBY, his heir.

Elizabeth, m. 1776, Dr. Robert Longfield, of Cork, cousin to Viscount Longueville; d. 1818.

Catherine, m. 1783, Walter Hore, Esq. of Seafield, co. Wexford, brother to Robert Hore, Esq. of Harpers-town, co. Wexford, and nephew to the Earl of Courtown; d. 1824.

The only son,

The family was seated long prior to the year 1460 in the co. (For ample details, see BURKE'S Commoners, vol. iv. p. 261.)

EDWARD BURTON, for his good services and great fidelity to the house of York, was made a knight-banneret by EDWARD IV., after the battle of St. Albans, in 1460. Sir Edward afterwards settled at Longner, co. Salop, where he was s. by his son,

C O O T E.

COOTE, SIR CHARLES-HENRY, of Ballyfin, Queen's co., inherited, at the decease of his kinsman, Lord Mountrath, as 9th bart.; m. Anne, dau. of John Whaley, Esq. of Whaley Abbey, county Wicklow, and grandau., maternally, of John, Earl of Clanwilliam, and by her (who d. 13 April, 1837) has, CHARLES, b. in Sept. 1805, and other issue. Sir Charles is member of parliament for the Queen's co., and PREMIER BART. of Ireland.

Lineage.

This is the parent stock whence the noble houses of Coote, Earls of Mountrath, and Coote, Lords Castle Coote, both now extinct, emanated. The first settler in Ireland, and descended from a very ancient English family, was

I. SIR CHARLES COOTE, Knt. of Castle Cuffe, Queen's co., who served in the wars against O'Neill, Earl of Tyrone, at the head, as captain, of 100 foot, with which corps he was at the siege of Kinsale, and was appointed by JAMES I. (in consequence of the good and faithful services he had rendered to QUEEN ELIZABETH) provost-marshal of the province of Connaught for life. In 1620, he was constituted vice-president of the same province; and created, 2 April, in the same year, a BART. OF IRELAND. Sir Charles distinguished himself, subsequently, by many gallant exploits; but the most celebrated was the relief of Birr, in 1642. Being dispatched, with Sir Thomas Lucas, and six troops of horse, to relieve that garrison, and some other fortresses, it was necessary, in order to effect the object, to pass the causeway, broken by the rebels, who had thrown up a ditch at the end of it. Sir Charles, leading thirty dismounted dragoons, beat the enemy, with the loss of their captain and twenty men; relieved the castles of Birr, Burrass, and Knocknemease; and having continued almost forty hours on horseback, returned to the camp with the loss of one man only. This is the surprising passage through Mountrath woods which justly caused the title of Mountrath to be entailed upon his son. This family was founded in England by CORBEAU, a noble Norman, who accompanied the CONQUEROR, and with his two sons, Robert and Roger, was employed by Roger de Montgomery, Earl of Shrewsbury and Arundel. Of the earl and his servants, Ordericus Vitalis says, "That the earl was a prudent and moderate man, a great lover of equity and of discreet and modest persons, and being freely assisted by the wisdom and courage of the said Corbeau, and his two sons, Roger and Robert, was as glorious amongst the greatest nobles as any of them all, by keeping the Welsh in awe, and that whole province in peace." At the general survey, Roger, the elder son, held twenty-four lordships in Shropshire, and Robert, the younger, fourteen in the same county. Robert had a son, another Robert, Lord of Alcester, in Warwickshire, and two daus.: SIBIL, from whom the Herberts, Earls of Pembroke, and Finches, Earls of Winchelsea, descend, and

Cox, Baronet, of Dunmanway, co. Cork, s. as 8th bart., 28 June, 1838.

Lineage.

MICHAEL COX, Esq., the youngest son of a respectable Wiltshire family, (amongst whose progenitors was the learned Doctor Cox, one of the compilers of the liturgy, tutor to EDWARD VI., and in the reign of ELIZABETH, Bishop of Ely,) seated at Kilworth, co. Cork, some time within the first quarter of the seventeenth century, and left, with other children, at his decease,

RICHARD COX, a person of great bodily strength and courage, who became a captain in Major-Gen. Jephson's regt. of dragoons, and fought successively under the royal banner of CHARLES I. and the republican one of CROMWELL. He m. Catharine, dau. of Walter Bird, Esq. of Cloghnakilty, and d. 1651, (in consequence of a treacherous wound received from a brother officer of his own regt., a Capt. Narton,) when his orphan son,

I. RICHARD COX, then not quite three years of age, was taken under the care of his maternal grandfather, Mr. Walter Bird; but that relation dying in a few years afterwards, he was placed by his uncle, John Bird, Esq., at an ordinary Latin school, in the town of Cloghnakilty, where he soon evinced a strong disposition to learning. In 1671, he entered himself of Lincoln's-Inn, and was, in the regular time, called to the bar. Upon his return to Ireland, Mr. Cox married; but in consequence of some disappointment regarding the portion of his wife, retired, in a fit of despondency, very uncharacteristic of his active mind, to a farm near Cloghnakilty, and there remained in obscurity for nearly seven years. The patronage of Sir Robert Southwell at length, however, recalled him into active life; and in 1680 he was recorder of Kinsale, when he settled at Cork, and practised as a barrister with considerable success. In 1687, he withdrew, in consequence of the religious dissensions prevalent at that period in his native country, to Bristol, and there, at his leisure hours, compiled a "History of Ireland." At the period of the Revolution he returned to Ireland, as secretary to Sir Robert Southwell,

* He had one dau. besides, — Caroline, wife of Henry Seymour, Esq.

who accompanied WILLIAM in the capacity of principal secretary of state. Upon WILLIAM's march to Dublin, after the battle of the Boyne, that prince published his manifesto, called "The King's Declaration at Finglass," which emanated from the pen of Mr. Cox, and which so pleased his majesty that he was heard to say, that "Mr. Cox had exactly hit his own mind." After the surrender of Waterford, Mr. Cox was made recorder of that city, and thence, in 1690, removed to the second seat upon the bench of the court of Common-Pleas. In 1692, he received the honour of knighthood; in 1701, obtained the chief-justice-ship of his court; and in 1703, was appointed LORD HIGH CHANCELLOR OF IRELAND. In the absence of the lord-lieutenant, he was twice nominated one of the lords-justices, and created a BART. OF IRELAND, 21 Nov. 1706. Upon the termination of the Duke of Ormond's government, however, in 1707, Sir Richard Cox was removed from the chancellorship, but he subsequently accepted the office of lord-chief-justice of the court of Queen's-Bench, from which he was removed, with the other judges, upon the accession of GEORGE I., and his conduct was subsequently censured by a vote of the House of Commons. From an almost uninterrupted line of knights, distinguished alike in council and in arms, descended

SIR RICHARD CROFT, Knt. of Croft Castle, high sheriff of the co. Hereford; the captor of Prince Edward, son of HENRY VI., at the battle of Tewkesbury, in 1471. DACRE.

DACRE, BARON, (Thomas Brand;) b. 15 March, 1774; s. on the demise of his mother, a peeress in her own right, 3 Oct. 1819; m. in the Nov. following, Barbarina, relict of Valentine Wilmot, Esq. of Farnborough, co. Southampton, and dau. of the late Admiral Sir Chaloner Ogle, Bart. His lordship, who is the 19th Baron Dacre, represents a branch of the eminent house of VAUX, (see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage,) and is co-heir to the BARONY OF FITZHUGH.

Lineage.

The Barony of Dacre was originally in the family of Vaux, whereof three brothers settled in England, at the period of the Norman Conquest, Hubert, Ranulph, and Robert. Of these,

HUBERT had the barony of Gillesland granted to him by his kinsman, Ranulph de Meschines, on whom the CONQUEROR had conferred the whole co. of Cumberland. This Hubert was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE VALLIBUS, who founded the priory of Pentney, in Normandy, and the abbey of Lanercost, in Cumberland, and was sheriff of Cumberland and governor of Carlisle, temp. HENRY II. This Robert was not only a person of great valour, but also well learned in the laws of the land, and went justice-itinerant into Cumberland in the 24th year of the same monarch. Dying without issue, the feudal barony devolved upon his brother,

RANULPH DE VALLIBUS, or VAUX, whose great-grand-dau. and heiress,

MAUD, m. Thomas de Moulton, temp. HENRY III., and conveyed the barony of Gillesland to the family of her husband. The great-grandson of this marriage,

THOMAS DE MOULTON, was summoned to parliament in the reigns of EDWARD I. and EDWARD II.; and at his decease left an only dau. and heiress,

MARGARET DE MOULTON, who married

RANULPH DE DACRE, one of the most eminent persons in those parts, as well on account of his valour as a soldier, as his illustrious birth, being descended from William de Dacre, sheriff of Cumberland and governor of Carlisle in the reign of HENRY III. He was summoned to parliament, in right of his wife, from 15 May, (14 EDWARD II.) 1321, to 15 Nov. (12 EDWARD III.) 1338, in which latter year he died, and was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Baron Dacre, who was s. by his brother,

RANULPH, 3rd Baron Dacre, who was likewise s. by his brother,

HUGH, 4th Baron Dacre. This nobleman m. Ela, dau. of Sir Alexander Maxwell, Lord of Carlaverock; and dying in the 7th of RICHARD II., was s. by his son,

WILLIAM, 5th baron; who m. Joan, dau. of James, 1st Earl Douglas, and was s. by his son,

THOMAS, 6th baron, summoned to parliament from 1 Dec. (14 HENRY IV.) 1412, to 26 May, (33 HENRY VI.) 1455, as Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland. This nobleman, who was chief forester of Inglewood, in Cumberland, m. Philippa, dau. of Ralph Nevil, Earl of Westmorland, and had issue: THOMAS, Ranulph, Humphrey, and Joan. Thomas, the eldest son, m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Richard Bowes, and dying before his father, left an only dau. and heiress, JOANE; which

JOANE DACRE succeeded her grandfather in 1547; and marrying

SIR RICHARD FIENES, carried the barony into that family. Sir Richard was summoned to parliament from 9 Oct. (38 HENRY VI.) 1459, to 15 Nov. (22 EDWARD IV.) 1482. He was constable of the Tower of London, lord-chamberlain to the queen-consort of EDW. IV., and a privy counsellor. His lordship and his lady had great contests and disputes with Sir Humphrey Dacre, her ladyship's uncle, and the male heir of the family, concerning the lordships, manors, &c. of the late lord, which litigation was finally adjusted by the arbitration of EDWARD IV. That monarch, after hearing the cause, confirmed to Sir Richard and the Lady Joane the same place and precedence that her grandfather had and enjoyed; and also decreed to them certain lordships in Lancashire and Lincolnshire; but Gillesland, the ancient and capital seat of the Vauxes, and of all the barons their descendants, was adjudged, together with the best of the estates in Cumberland, to Sir Humphrey Dacre. It was provided, however, in case of failure of heirs male of Sir Humphrey, that the whole estate should go to Lady Joane and her heirs. At the same time, Sir Humphrey Dacre was created LORD DACRE, of Gillesland, with place next beneath Sir Richard Fienes (who was simply styled LORD DACRE) and his lady. Sir Richard's descendants were distinguished as Lords Dacre of the South, and those of Sir Humphrey, Lords Dacre of the North. (For particulars of whom, see BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.) Sir Richard Fienes, Lord Dacre, d. in 1484, and was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, 8th Baron Dacre, (son of Sir Thomas Fienes and his wife, Alice, eldest dau. and co-heir of Henry, Lord Fitz Hugh.) This nobleman was made a knight of the Bath at the creation of Henry, 2nd son of HENRY VII., Duke of York. His lordship m. Anne, dau. of Sir Humphrey Bouchier, son of John, Lord Bouchier, of Berners; and dying in 1534, was s. by his grandson,

THOMAS, 9th baron, (son of Sir Thomas Fienes, by Jane, dau. of Edward Sutton, Lord Dudley.) This nobleman was high in favour at the court of HENRY VIII.; but going, with other young persons, one night, from Herstmonceux, to steal a deer out of his neighbour's, Sir Nicholas Pelham, park, (a frolic not unusual in those days,) a fray ensued between some of his party and the park-keepers, in which one of the latter received an unlucky blow, that caused his death in a few days afterwards; and although Lord Dacre was not himself present on the spot, but in a distant part of the park, he was nevertheless tried, convicted, and executed for the murder, in 1541, when his honours became forfeited. In 1562, however, those honours were restored to his son and heir, (by Mary, dau. of George Nevill, Lord Abergavenny,)

GREGORY FIENES, as 10th baron; who was summoned to parliament in 1573. This nobleman d. 1594, without issue, when his sister,

MARGARET, the wife of Sampson Lennard, Esq., claimed the barony, and was allowed it in 1604. Her ladyship d. 1611, and was s. by her eldest son,

HENRY LENNARD, as 12th Lord Dacre; who m. Chrisogona, dau. of Sir Richard Baker, of Sissenhurst, in Kent; and dying in 1616, was s. by his only son,

RICHARD LENNARD, 13th Lord Dacre; who rebuilt his seat at Chevening, after the plan of Inigo Jones. This nobleman m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. and co-heir of Sir Arthur Throckmorton, of Pauler's Perry, co. Northampton, by whom he had, (with other issue,)

FRANCIS, his successor.

His lordship m. 2ndly, Dorothy, dau. of Dudley, Lord North, and by her had a son,

RICHARD, who had the manor of Horsford, in Norfolk, settled on him by his father, and he subsequently assumed the name of BARRETT, in consideration of the manor of Belhouse, and other lands in Essex, bequeathed to him by Sir Edward Barrett, Lord Newburgh. He m. Anne, dau. and heir of Sir Robert Loftus, Knt., and grandau. of Adam, Viscount Loftus, of Ely, lord-chancellor of Ireland, and was s. at his decease, in 1696, by his son,

DACRE BARRETT-LENNARD, who m. Lady Jane Chichester, dau. of Arthur, 2nd Earl of Donegal, and had a son,

RICHARD, of whom hereafter as husband of his cousin, Lady Anne Lennard, Baroness Dacre.

Richard, 13th Lord Dacre, d. 18 Aug. 1630, and was s. by his eldest son,

FRANCIS, 14th baron. This nobleman, during the civil wars, took the side of the parliament; but he opposed the proceedings against the king personally. His lordship m. Elizabeth, dau. and eventually co-heir of Paul, 1st Viscount Bayning, by whom he had three sons and three daus. Lord Dacre, upon the decease of Ranulph Dacre, last heir male of the Lords Dacre of the North, without issue, in the reign of CHARLES I., laid claim to Gillesland and the rest of the ancient estates in Cumberland, and though he at last consented to compromise matters with the Howard family, then in possession, yet he recovered Dacre, and divers other manors in Cumberland and Westmorland. He d. 1662, (his widow, Elizabeth, was subsequently created COUNTESS OF SHEPPY for life, and m. David Walter, lieut.-gen. of the ordnance, and groom of the bedchamber, temp. CHARLES II.) and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 15th Lord Dacre, who was created, 5 Oct. 1674, EARL OF SUSSEX. This nobleman, being of an extravagant disposition, was obliged to dispose of his seat at Herstmonceux, and his lands in Sussex. His lordship m. Lady Anne Palmer, dau. of Barbara, Duchess of Cleveland; but dying in 1715, without male issue, the earldom ceased, while the Barony of Dacre fell into abeyance between the earl's two daus. and co-heirs, Barbara and

Anne; the elder m. Lieut.-Gen. Charles Skelton, but dying without issue in 1741, the younger,

ANNE, became Baroness Dacre. Her ladyship m. thrice: 1st, Richard Barrett-Lennard, Esq., (revert to Richard, 13th baron,) by whom she had an only son, THOMAS; 2ndly, Henry, 8th Lord Teynham, by whom she had, with other children,

Charles, who m. Gertrude, sister and co-heir of John Trevor, Esq. of Glynd, in Sussex, and left at his decease, in 1754,

CHARLES-TREVOR, of whom presently, as 18th lord. GERTRUDE - TREVOR, who s. her brother as BARONESS DACRE.

Her ladyship m. 3rdly, the Hon. Robert Moore, son of Henry, 3rd Earl of Drogheda, by whom she had one son, HENRY. Lady Dacre, soon after the death of her 1st husband, in conjunction with her sister, sold Chevening, the ancient seat of the Lennards, to Earl Stanhope, and Dacre Castle, with the lands in Cumberland, to Sir Christopher Musgrave. She d. 1755, and was s. by her eldest son,

THOMAS BARRETT-LENNARD, as 17th Baron Dacre. This nobleman m. Ann-Maria, dau. of Sir John Pratt, lord-chief-justice of the King's Bench; but dying without issue, 12 Jan. 1786, the title devolved upon his nephew, (refer to Anne, Baroness Dacre,)

CHARLES-TREVOR ROPER,* as 18th Lord Dacre. His lordship d. 4 July, 1794, without issue, when the family honours reverted to his sister,

The Hon. GERTRUDE ROPER, who m. Thomas Brand, Esq. of the Hoo, co. Herts, and by him (who d. 21 Feb. 1794) had issue,

- I. THOMAS, present baron.
- II. HENRY-OTWAY, C.B., major-gen. in the army, who distinguished himself during the war in Spain; m. in 1806, Pyne, eldest dau. of the late Hon. and Rev. Dean Crosby, and sister of Lord Brandon. Gen. Brand assumed, by sign-manual, in 1824, the surname of "TREVOR" only. He has issue,

* The remains of this nobleman were interred at Lee, in Kent, and his widow visited his tomb daily, without interruption, until her decease in 1808. She usually rode from her mansion in the neighbourhood to the churchyard on a favourite pony, and wore a large, drab, flapping, beaver hat, with a cloth habit nearly trailing the ground. At home, her ladyship evinced an eccentric affection for her deceased lord; his chair was placed, as in his lifetime, at the dinner table, and its vacancy seemed to feed his widow's melancholy.

DALHOUSIE.

DALHOUSIE, EARL OF, (James-Andrew Ramsay,) and Lord Ramsay, in the peerage of Scotland; Baron Dalhousie, of Dalhousie Castle, co. Edinburgh, in the peerage of the United Kingdom; b. 22 April, 1812; m. 21 Jan. 1836, Susan-Georgiana, eldest dau. of George, Marquess of Tweeddale, and has issue. His lordship s. his father, 21 March, 1838.

Lineage.

This noble family, which is said to be of German descent, has been of note in North Britain since the reign of DAVID I. At that period (A.D. 1140) we find

SIMON DE RAMSAY, of Dalhousie, in Lothian, a subscribing witness to a grant of the church of Livingston, in West-Lothian. From this Simon descended

SIR ALEXANDER RAMSAY, Knt. of Dalhousie, warden of the Middle Marches, and, in 1332, constable of the castle of Roxburgh, which he had taken by escalade. This gallant soldier acquired so high a reputation in his conflicts with the English, that to be of his band was considered as a branch of military education requisite for all young gentlemen who ambitioned to excel in arms. In reward of capturing the fortress of Roxburgh, DAVID II. bestowed upon Ramsay the office of sheriff of Tiviotdale, which William Douglas, the Knt. of Liddesdale, then held. From that moment, Douglas, once the friend and companion in arms of Ramsay, became his implacable foe. In performance of the duty of his office, Ramsay held a court in the church of Hawick, 20 Jan. 1342, whither Douglas came with an armed retinue, and was courteously welcomed by the high-minded and unsuspecting Ramsay; but, regardless of every feeling save that of vengeance, he seized the sheriff, and dragging him from the judgment-seat, had him conveyed to the castle of Hermitage, in the dungeon of which he perished by famine. It is reported, that above the place of Ramsay's confinement there lay a heap of corn, and that with some grain which dropped down through crevices in the floor he sustained a miserable existence for seventeen days. From Sir Alexander we pass to his lineal descendant,

JAMES RAMSAY, who left at his decease, about the year 1580, two sons, viz.,

GEORGE.

John, (Sir) who, for his loyalty and valour in rescuing JAMES VI. from the attempt made upon his life by the Earl of Gowrie and his brother, Alexander Ruthven,*

* When the voice of his majesty, exclaiming "Treason and murder," was heard at the window of Gowrie's house, the royal attendants rushed up the principal staircase to his assistance, but found the doors locked. Sir John Ramsay fortunately entered the room by a back-stair, and finding Alexander Ruthven struggling with the king, drew his dagger, plunged it twice into Alexander's body, and threw him down stairs, where he was met by Sir Thomas Erskine and Hugh Herries, who dispatched him, and went up to the king. The Earl of Gowrie now rushed into the apartment, with a sword in each hand, followed by seven of his attendants, completely armed, and threatened them all with instant death. Notwithstanding the inequality of numbers, the three gentlemen attacked the earl, and Sir John Ramsay piercing Gowrie through the heart, he fell dead without speaking a word.—Wood's Douglas.

at Perth, 5 Aug. 1600, was created Lord Ramsay, of Burns, and Viscount Haddington. He was subsequently advanced to the dignity of EARL OF HOLDERNESSE, in the peerage of England. His lordship m. twice, but leaving no issue at his decease, in 1635, his honours expired.

The elder son,

SIR GEORGE RAMSAY, Knt., had the barony of Dalhousie, on his own resignation, and the lordship of Melrose, on the resignation of his brother, Lord Haddington, erected into a free barony, to himself and his heirs male of entail, to be called the Barony of Melrose, with a grant to himself, and his heirs male and successors in the said barony, of the dignity of a peer of parliament, under the title of Lord Ramsay, of Melrose, by charter, dated 25 Aug. 1618. But not being pleased with that designation, his lordship obtained a letter from JAMES VI. to change it to Lord Ramsay, of Dalhousie. His lordship m. 1st, Margaret, only dau. and heir of Sir George Douglas, of Helen Hill; and 2ndly, Margaret Ker. He d. in 1629, and was s. by the eldest son of his 1st marriage,

DALZIELL.

DALZIELL, SIR JAMES, of Binns, co. Linlithgow; b. 7 July, 1774; inherited at the decease of his father, 10 Oct. 1791. Sir James is the 5th bart. and the 17th in lineal descent from Walter, Earl of Menteth.

Lineage.

This family being the heirs male and representatives of the ancient Earls of Menteth, it is necessary, in the first instance, to deduce that line of descent.

The name of Menteth is local, there being a considerable district in North Britain, through which the river Teth runs, called the Stewartry of Menteth. It was written at different periods, Menethet, Monteth, Menteith, and Monteith; the last mode is the most recently adopted.

The title of Earl of Menteth is said to have existed in the reign of MALCOLM III., A.D. 1056; and there is no doubt of there having been such a nobleman in the reign of MALCOLM's son, David. In the 13th century, we have also upon record, Gilchrist and Maurice, successive Earls of Menteth.

WALTER STEWART, 3rd son of Walter, lord-high-steward of Scotland, m. the descendant and heiress of one of those earls, and thus, it is supposed, obtained the earldom. His lordship took an active part in the war against EDWARD I., and is said to have been put to death by that monarch on the surrender of the castle of Dunbar, wherein, with other Scottish chiefs, he had sought safety after a fierce conflict between the Scots and English, in which the former were totally routed. The earl left two sons, who, with their posterity, ever afterwards assumed the surname of Menteth, but retained the paternal coat of Stewart, altering the fesse cheque to a bend, for difference. The elder son, ALEXANDER, succeeded to the Earldom of Menteth. The younger son,

SIR JOHN MENTETH, having submitted to KING EDWARD, was appointed keeper of the castle of Dunbarton. In two interpolated chapters of Fordun, there is a long account of this gallant person, who refused to give up the fortress so entrusted to him to ROBERT I., unless he should obtain, with a full pardon, the Earldom of Lennox; but, having been taken by stratagem, he was thrown into prison, whence, through the influence of his sons-in-law, Malice, Earl of Strathern, Sir Archibald Campbell, of Lochow, and Maurice Buchanan, of Buchanan, he was released immediately before the battle of Bannockburn, where he deported himself valiantly on the part of the Scottish king, notwithstanding EDWARD's (the 2nd) causing his banner to be displayed in the English army. Sir John Menteth had, from KING ROBERT I., a charter of the lands of Glenbecriche and Aulisay, in Kintyre, paying a galley of twenty-six oars to the king. He was custos-comitatus de Menteth in 1320, when, under that designation, he signed the celebrated letter to the pope, asserting the independence of Scotland. He d. 1333, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WALTER MENTETH, of Rusky. This gentleman had four sons, two of whom survived and had issue, namely,

ALEXANDER, his successor.

John, pregenitor of the Menteths of Carse, or Kerse.

Sir Walter was killed in one of those local feuds which, at that remote period, so barbarously characterized the country. He was s. by his eldest son,

SIR ROBERT, whose heirs male failing with his grandson, the male line of the family was carried on by the descendants of the 2nd son,

JOHN MENTETH, who m. Marjory, dau. and heiress of John de Striveling, sheriff of Clackmannan, Lord of Carse, of Stirling and Alveth, with whom he acquired those lands and that heritable office. From this John, who d. towards the close of the 14th century, lineally descended,

II. Christian, m. to Robert Graham, Esq.

The eldest son, James, assumed the additional surname of Dalzell, or Dalziell, and succeeded his uncle, Thomas, the 2nd bart. of Binns, in that honour. The dignity was originally conferred, 7 Nov. 1685, upon

I. THOMAS DALYELL, of Binns, only son of the celebrated General Dalzell, with remainder to his heirs of entail succeeding to the estate of Binns. Sir Thomas was s. at his decease by his son,

II. SIR THOMAS, at whose decease unm. the baronetcy and fortune devolved upon the son of his sister, Mrs. Menteth, of Auldcathy, which son then became,

Lineage.

The founder of this noble family,

THOMAS LEGGE, of the company of Skinners, served the office of sheriff for the city of London in 1343, and was lord mayor in the years 1346 and 1353. In 1338, this opulent citizen lent EDWARD III. £300 towards carrying on the war with France, which was a very considerable sum in those days, and more than any other citizen advanced, except the lord mayor, and Simon de Frauncis, who lent each £800 in the ensuing year. Alderman Legge m. Elizabeth,* dau. of Thomas Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, and was s. by his elder son,

SIMON LEGGE, who m. Margaret, dau. of Sir John Blount, and his eldest surviving son,

WILLIAM LEGGE, was brought out of Ireland by his godfather, Henry Danvers, Earl of Danby, and sent by him to serve as a volunteer under Gustavus-Adolphus of Sweden; and he served afterwards under Prince Maurice of Orange, in the Low Countries. On his return to England, he was first constituted keeper of the king's wardrobe, during life; and made, soon after, groom of the bedchamber. Col. Legge, during the civil wars, became eminently distinguished by his faithful attachment

* It must be confessed, says Sir Egerton Brydges, in a note to Collins, that this match seems not very consonant to the alliances of the proud family of Beauchamp at that time, and requires strong proof.

In 1677, Governor Legge was constituted col. of a regt. of foot, and nominated lieutenant-gen. of the ordnance, of which he was soon afterwards made master. He was subsequently sworn of the privy-council, and elevated to the peerage, 2 Dec. 1682, as Baron of Dartmouth, co. Devon; with remainder, after his own male heirs, to his brother William, and his heirs male. His lordship soon afterwards was sent as admiral of the whole English fleet to demolish Tangier, and on his return, obtained a grant of £10,000, in reward of his services. DAVIE.

DAVIE, SIR HUMPHREY-PHINEAS, of Creedy, in the county of Devon; a colonel in the army; inherited as 10th baronet, at the decease of his nephew, 18 Sept. 1824.

Lineage.

This family is of high antiquity in the county of Devon, having been settled there since the Conquest. It is of Norman descent, but from the residence of its ancestors at an old mansion formerly known by the name of Wey, the first surname adopted in England was De la Wey, and the first of the De la Weys, mentioned in the family pedigree, had coat armour, which has ever since continued, without variation, to be borne by his descendants, although their surnames have been at different periods written De la Wey, Dewy, De Nie, and Davie. The delineation of the first ancestor, William de la Wey, in the pedigree above alluded to, is appropriately painted upon the margin, in the armour of those times, and on one side of him appears the following translation of some old Latin verses:

"What profit pedigree or long descents
From farre-fetcht blood, or painted monuments
Of our great grandsire's visage? 'Tis most sad
To trust unto the worth another had
For keeping up our fame; which else would fall,
If, besides birth, there be no worth at all.
For, who counts him a gentleman whose grace
Is all in name, but otherwise is base?
Or who will honour him that's honour's shame,
Noble in nothing but a noble name?
It's better to be meanly born and good,
Than one unworthy of his noble blood:
Though all thy walls shine with thy pedigree,
Yet virtue only makes nobility.
Then, that his pedigree may useful be,
Search out the virtues of your family:
And, to be worthy of your father's name,
Learn out the good they did, and do the same:
For, if you bear their arms, and not their fame,
Those ensigns of their worth will be your shame."

From this William de la Wey lineally descended

JOHN DAVIE, the younger, (4th son of Robert Davie, Esq. of Crediton, by the dau. and heir of John Bardolph, Esq. of Tichfield,) who had the honour to be three times mayor of the city of Exeter, and was celebrated for his hospitality. During the first mayoralty, in 1584, DON ANTONIO, King of Portugal, having been driven from his kingdom by PHILIP, King of Spain, landed at Plymouth, and thence removing to Exeter, was received, with his whole suite, by the mayor, and sumptuously lodged and entertained for a considerable time while he sojourned there, at the magistrate's expense, and in his own house. Lineage.

This is one of the families which settled in Ireland under the banner of Strongbow, Earl of Pembroke, and is supposed to have branched from the parent stock of the illustrious house of Clanricarde. It may not be irrelevant to observe, that all the French families of the name continue to write it De Bourg, and in Latin, De Burgo; and that after the De Burghs removed from Normandy into England, they also wrote De Burgo, and sometimes De Burgh, in order to accommodate the word to the English or Saxon accent. However, in process of time, they wrote Bourk, Bourke, and Burke; but the king, by letters patent, under the sign-manual, dated 13 May, 1752, granted to the Earl of Clanricarde, to Ulick Bourke, of London, and to Thomas Bourke, of Ireland, and their descendants, full authority to resume the original surname of De Burgh.

RICHARD BURKE, Esq. of Drumsally, co. Limerick, d. 1764, and was s. by his eldest son,

The Barony of De Clifford having fallen into abeyance at the decease of Edward Southwell Clifford, 18th Lord de Clifford, 30 Sept. 1832, without issue, the crown, in 1833, was pleased to terminate the same in favour of SOPHIA, (present baroness,) only surviving child of the late Col. George Coussmaker, by CATHERINE SOUTHWELL, eldest dau. of Edward, 17th baron, and sister of the late lord.

Lineage.

RICHARD, 4th Duke of Normandy, had six sons, viz.,

RICHARD the Good, 5th Duke of Normandy.

ROBERT, 6th duke, father of WILLIAM the Conqueror.

WILLIAM, of whom presently.

Nicholas, abbot of St. Andrews.

William, a monk.

Mauger, Archbishop of Rouen.

The third son,

WILLIAM, surnamed Ponce, or Poncius, was Earl of Arques and Tholouse, and came into England with his victorious nephew, DUKE WILLIAM. The youngest son of this nobleman,

RICHARD FITZ-PONTZ, m. Maud, dau. of Ralph de Toney, of Clifford Castle, co. Hereford; and their eldest son,

WALTER, assumed, upon inheriting Clifford Castle, the surname of Clifford. From this Walter descended a race of powerful feudal barons, which we pass over to arrive at

ROBERT DE CLIFFORD, commonly called 1st Lord de Clifford, being summoned as such to parliament, 29 Dec. 1209, and the first of the family so dignified. His lordship was son of Roger de Clifford, a distinguished soldier in the reigns of HENRY III. and EDWARD I., who fell in the Welsh wars, on St. Leonard's day, 1283. This Roger m. Isabel, eldest dau. and co-heir of Robert de Vipont, Lord of Westmorland, and, in her right, held Brougham Castle, in that county, part of which he built, and part repaired, causing the words, "This made Roger," to be cut out in stone, over the portal of the inward gate. Robert, the 1st baron aforesaid, was earl marshal of England in 1307. He fell at the battle of Bannockburn, 25 June, 1314, and was s. by his elder son, (by Maud, dau. and co-heir of Thomas de Clare.)

ROGER, 2nd baron, summoned to parliament in 1319. This nobleman was sheriff of Westmorland, and was beheaded at York, in 1327, with Thomas, Earl of Lancaster, leaving no issue. His brother,

ROBERT, s. as 3rd baron. This nobleman was sheriff of Westmorland, warden of the marches of Cumberland and Westmorland, and heir to his great-aunt, Idonea, one of the daus. and co-heirs of Robert de Vipont. He m. Isabel, only dau. of Maurice, Lord Berkeley, of Berkeley Castle; and dying in 1340, was s. by his eldest son,

ROBERT, 4th baron; who d. without issue in 1362, and was s. by his brother,

ROGER, 5th baron; who is recorded to have been "one of the wisest and gallantest of the Cliffords." His lordship was sheriff of Westmorland, and joint guardian of the west marches of Cumberland and Westmorland in 1370; warden of the west marches, sheriff of Cumberland, and governor of Carlisle Castle, 1376. He m. Maud, dau. of Thomas de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, by whom he had, (with three daus.,)

Lewis, (Sir) ancestor of the Lords Clifford of Chudleigh.

His lordship d. in 1390, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 6th baron; who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Thomas, Lord Roos, of Hamlake; and dying in 1392, was s. by his only son,

JOHN, 7th baron, K.G., sheriff of Westmorland. This nobleman fell at the siege of Meaux, 13 March, 1422, and was s. by his only son, (by Elizabeth, dau. of Henry, Lord Percy, the celebrated Hotspur,)

THOMAS, 8th baron; who m. Joan, dau. of Thomas, Lord Dacre, of Gillesland, and fell at the battle of St. Albans, 22 May, 1454. His lordship was s. by his eldest son,

JOHN, 9th baron; who m. Margaret Bromflete, dau. and heir of Henry, Lord Bromflete and Baron Vesey, (subsequently to which union the Cliffords were generally styled Barons Vesey, in addition to Clifford,) by whom he had three sons. His lordship, a partisan of the house of Lancaster, was killed on the day preceding the battle of Towton, (just three months after he had stabbed to the heart the young Edmund Plantagenet, Earl of Rutland, son of Richard, Duke of York,) and was attainted the following November. "John, Lord Clifford," says Dr. Whitaker, "who was b. 8 April, 1430, held the titles and estates five years, eight months, and seven days. His hands were early dipped in blood, for he was engaged in the civil war of the houses almost three years before his father's death. In the second battle of St. Albans, the king was brought to meet the queen in Clifford's tent. This nobleman, partly from the heat of youth, and partly in the spirit of revenge for his father's death, pursued the house of York with a rancour which rendered him odious even in that ferocious age. His supposed slaughter of the young Earl of Rutland left a deep stain on his memory, and his own untimely end is remembered without regret. On the day before the battle of Towton, and after the rencontre at Ferrybridge, having put off his gorget, he was struck in the throat by a headless arrow, discharged from behind a bush, and instantly expired." The eldest son of this nobleman,

HENRY, 10th baron, to protect him from the Yorkists, being but seven years of age when his father fell, was disguised as a shepherd's boy, and thus brought up, without the slightest education, not so much as that of writing, lest it should discover his rank. He was eventually restored, however, to his paternal honours, in the 32nd year of his age, by the first parliament of HENRY VII., as well as to his maternal Barony of Vesey. His lordship lived chiefly in rural retirement until the year 1513, when he was appointed to a principal command in the army that fought at Flodden, and there displayed the military genius of the Cliffords. He m. 1st, Anne, dau. of Sir John St. John, of Bletsoe, by whom he had three sons and four daus. He m. 2ndly, Florence, dau. of Henry Pudsey, and widow of Sir Thomas Talbot, and had a dau., Dorothy. His lordship d. in 1523, and was s. by his eldest son,

HENRY, 11th baron, b. 1493. This young nobleman had lived upon bad terms with his father for several years, in consequence of his youthful dissipation; to supply the means for which, in the spirit of the times, he turned outlaw, assembled a band of dissolute followers, harassed the religious houses, beat their tenants, and forced the inhabitants of whole villages to take sanctuary in their churches. He is said, however, to have been reclaimed in good time; and was created, 18 June, 1523, EARL OF CUMBERLAND, beside being made a knight of the Garter. His lordship d. 22 April, 1542, and was s. by his eldest son, (by the Lady Margaret Percy, dau. of Henry, 5th Earl of Northumberland.)

HENRY, 2nd Earl of Cumberland and 12th baron. This nobleman m. 1st, Lady Eleanor Brandon, dau. of Charles, Duke of Suffolk, and MARY, Queen Dowager of France, sister of HENRY VIII., by whom he had an only dau., Margaret, m. to Henry Stanley, Earl of Derby. His lordship espoused 2ndly, Anne, dau. of William, Lord Dacre, and was s. by his eldest son,

GEORGE, 3rd earl and 13th baron; who m. Lady Margaret Russell, youngest child of Frances, 2nd Earl of Bedford, by whom he had an only dau.,

ANNE, who m. 1st, 25 Feb. 1608-9, Richard Sackville, Lord Buckhurst, afterwards Earl of Dorset, and had surviving issue,

1 Margaret, m. to John Tufton, 5th Earl of Thanet, and left a son,

THOMAS, 6th EARL OF THANET, of whom presently, as BARON CLIFFORD.

2 Isabella, m. 1647, to James Compton, Earl of Northampton.

The Earl of Dorset d. 28 March, 1624, and his widow espoused, 1630, Philip Herbert, Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, whom she also outlived. Of this celebrated lady, Dr. Whitaker says: "She was one of the most illustrious women of her own or any age. She had all the courage and liberality of the other sex, united to the devotion, order, and economy of her own. She was the oldest, but most independent, courtier in the kingdom; had known and admired QUEEN ELIZABETH; had refused what she deemed an iniquitous award of JAMES; rebuilt her dismantled castles in defiance of CROMWELL; and repelled with disdain the interposition of a profligate minister under CHARLES II."

His lordship d. 29 Oct. 1605, when the Earldom of Cumberland devolved upon his brother,

FRANCIS, as 4th earl; who d. 1640, and was s. by his only son,

HENRY, 5th Earl of Cumberland; who m. Lady Frances-Cecil, only dau. of Robert, Earl of Salisbury, and had an only dau. and heir, Elizabeth, m. to Richard Boyle, Earl of Cork. Henry, Earl of Cumberland, d. 1643, when that dignity EXPIRED.

Upon the decease of her father, George, 3rd Earl of Cumberland, a great contest arose between the Countess of Dorset and her uncle, Francis, 4th earl, regarding the Barony of Skypton, which endured for no less a period than 38 years, and finally terminated in her favour, by her outliving both the Earls of Cumberland. In 1617, the king undertook to adjust this acrimonious family contest, and made an award, but her ladyship, although urged by her then husband, the Earl of Dorset, refused to abide by it. Her ladyship claimed the BARONY OF CLIFTON, in 1628, but accomplished nothing therein; she died in 1675, and the barony remained dormant from that period until 12 Dec. 1691, when the House of Lords allowed it to her ladyship's grandson,

THOMAS TUFTON, 6th Earl of Thanet, as 15th baron. His lordship m. Lady Catherine Cavendish, dau. of Henry, Duke of Newcastle, by whom he had surviving issue,

EDWARD, of whom hereafter, as Lord Clifford.

Margaret, m. to Thomas Coke, Earl of Leicester.

Mary, m. 1st, to Anthony, Earl of Harold; and 2ndly, to John, Earl Gower.

Isabella, m. to Lord Nassau Powlett, and afterwards to Sir Francis-Blake Delaval.

The Earl of Thanet d. 1721, when the earldom devolved upon his nephew, while the BARONY OF CLIFFORD fell into abeyance between his daus., and so continued until 13 Aug. 1734, when the crown interfered in favour of the third,

MARGARET, Countess of Leicester; at whose decease s. p. 1775, the barony was again placed in abeyance, but was again called out by the crown the following year, in the person of

EDWARD SOUTHWELL, Esq., (refer to Catherine, eldest dau. of Thomas, Earl of Thanet,) as 17th Baron Clifford. His lordship espoused Sophia, 3rd dau. of Samuel Campbell, Esq. of Mount Campbell, co. Leitrim, (this lady was governess to the Princess Charlotte of Wales,) by whom (who d. in 1828) he had issue,

I. EDWARD, his successor.

II. Catherine, m. 1790, to Col. George Coussmaker; and d. 1801, leaving issue,

1 GEORGE, since deceased.

2 SOPHIA, m. to Capt. John Russell, R.N., son of Lord William Russell. The barony being called out of abeyance in favour of this lady, in 1833, she is the present BARONESS DE CLIFFORD.

HOUSE OF LA WARRE.

The first of this family upon record,

JORDAN LA WARRE, who then paid two hundred pounds for livery of his lands. This feudal lord was in arms against KING JOHN, but upon paying a fine, with two palfreys, was re-admitted into favour. JOHN LA WARRE, who, was sheriff of Herefordshire in the 3rd EDWARD I., and was s. by

ROGER LA WARRE, who, in the reigns of EDWARD I. and EDWARD II., having had military summonses to attend the king in the wars of France, and being actively engaged in those as well as the Scottish wars, was summoned to parliament, as a BARON, from 6 Feb. 1299, to 16 June, 1311. This nobleman, in the 25 EDWARD I., his father still living, was in the expedition then made into Flanders, and the next year he was in the wars of Scotland. In the 29th of the same reign, upon the decease of his mother, Clarice, he inherited a moiety of the property of his grandfather, Lord Tregoz, (to which barony he was co-heir;) viz., Ewyas-Harold, co. Hereford; Alyngton, Wilts; and other lands in the cos. of Somerset, Salop, and Northampton. After this, during the remainder of the reign of EDWARD I., he was constantly engaged in the wars of Scotland, and was made a knt. of the Bath. In the 14th EDWARD III., his lordship was in the great sea-fight off Sluyo; in the 16th, he was in the

His lordship d. in 1347, and was s. by his grandson,

SIR ROGER LA WARRE, 3rd baron; summoned to parliament from 14 Aug. 1362, to 1 June, 1363. This nobleman, in the 30th EDWARD III., shared in the glory of POICTIERS, wherein the French King with the Dauphin were made prisoners. Touching the capture of the King of France it is recorded, that much contention took place, as he defended himself with great valour; and the pressure upon him becoming great, such as knew him cried out, "Sir, surrender, or you are dead;" whereupon he yielded, according to Froisard, to Sir Dennis Morbeck, a knight of Artois, in the English service; but being forced from that captain, more than ten knights and esquires claimed the honour of taking the royal prisoner. Amongst these, the pretensions of Sir Roger la Warre and Sir John Pelham (ancestor of the Pelhams, Dukes of Newcastle, and of the Lords Yarborough, and Pelham) having been acknowledged the strongest, Lord de la Warre had, in commemoration of so valiant an exploit, the crampet, or chape, of the captive prince's sword; and Sir John Pelham had the buckle of a belt as a memento of the same achievement. His lordship continued for several years after Poitiers in the French wars, and acquired in every campaign an augmentation of renown. JOHN LA WARRE, 4th baron; summoned to parliament from 8 Jan. 1370, to 5 Nov. 1397. This nobleman, before and after his father's decease, was in the wars of Gascony with PRINCE EDWARD. In the 22nd of RICHARD II., his lordship obtained a special dispensation exempting him from attending any future parliaments, or serving the king in his wars, or otherwise, against his own good will. Shortly after which he departed this life, anno 1398; and dying unmarried, was s. by his brother,

THOMAS LA WARRE, 5th baron. This nobleman, being a priest and rector of the church of Manchester, was summoned to parliament from 10 Aug. 1399, to 7 Jan. 1426, as "Magistro Thomæ de la Warre." In the 9th HENRY V., his lordship obtained licence for making the parish church of Manchester collegiate; to consist of a warden and a certain number of priests, to celebrate divine service continually, for the good estate of HENRY V., and of him,

Lord Denbigh is a Count of the Holy Roman Empire, and master of the horse to QUEEN ADELAIDE.

Lineage.

This family, which claims descent from the Counts of Hapsburg, settled in England in the reign of HENRY III.; and the occasion of its so settling is explained in an ancient manuscript, written about KING EDWARD IV.'s time, wherein it appears, that Geffery, Count of Hapsburg,* having been reduced to great poverty by the oppression of Rodolph, Emperor of Germany, one of his sons,

SIR GEFFERY, served HENRY III. in his wars in England, and assumed the surname of Fielden, or Filding, from his father's pretensions to the dominions of Laufenburg and RINFILDING; and it also appears that the English monarch, compassionating the said Geffery, gave him considerable support in rents and fees, lying in divers places. The son of this Geffery,

GEFFERY FIELDING, m. Agnes, dau. and heir of John de Napton, by whom he acquired the lordship of Munster-ton, co. Leicester, and was father of

WILLIAM FIELDING, who acquired, by marriage with Joan, dau. of William Prudhome, and grandau. and heir of Robert de Newnham, the manor of Newnham Paddox, co. Warwick, which has ever since continued the chief seat of the family. The grandson of this William,

SIR WILLIAM FIELDING, a staunch adherent of the house of Lancaster, fell at the battle of Tewkesbury, 9 May, 1740. Sir William m. Agnes, dau. and heir of John St. Liz, a branch of the noble house of St. Liz, Earls of Northampton and Huntingdon, with whom he had the lordship of Martinthorpe, co. Rutland, and a descent in blood from the great families of Vaux, Longvile, and Bellers. He was s. by his eldest surviving son,

SIR EVERARD FIELDING, K.B., who was sheriff of the cos. Warwick and Leicester in the 21st of EDWARD IV., and had a command in the king's army at the battle of Stoke, in 1487. Sir Everard was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM FIELDING, who m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Thomas Poultney; and dying in 1547, was s. by his son,

BASIL FIELDING, Esq., who was s. by his son,

SIR WILLIAM FIELDING, who m. Dorothy, dau. of Sir Ralph Lane, Knt., by Magdalen, dau. and co-heir of William, Lord Parr, of Horton, and was s. by his son,

BASIL FIELDING, Esq., sheriff of Warwickshire in the 9th of JAMES I. This gentleman m. Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Walter Aston, of Tixhall, co. Stafford, and was s. by his eldest son,

SIR WILLIAM FIELDING, Knt., who was elevated to the peerage, 30 Dec. 1620, in the dignities of Baron and Viscount Fielding, of Newnham Paddox, co. Warwick. He was afterwards made master of the king's great wardrobe, and created, 14 Sept. 1622, EARL OF DENBIGH. On the breaking out of the civil war, Lord Denbigh, adhering faithfully to CHARLES I., performed the part of a stout and valiant soldier in many engagements, but was at length mortally wounded in a sharp skirmish near Birmingham, 3 April, 1643, and died a few days afterwards. His lordship m. Mary, dau. of Sir George Villiers, of Brokesby, Knt. co. Leicester, by whom he had issue,

* In the year 1026, Radboton, grandson of GONTRAM the Rich, Count of Brisgau, founded the house of the Counts of Hapsburg, which derived its name from the Castle of Hapsburg, built by Werner, Bishop of Strasburg, upon the river Aar, in the canton of Berne. The princely line of Hapsburg became extinct in the person of CHARLES VI., after giving twenty-two sovereigns to Austria, sixteen emperors to Germany, eleven kings to Hungary and Bohemia, and six to Spain.

- I. BASIL, succeeded to the honours.
 II. GEORGE, was created, 22 Nov. 1622, Lord Fielding, of Lecaghe, and Viscount Callan, in the peerage of Ireland, as also EARL OF DESMOND after the death of Sir Richard Preston, Knt., then enjoying the latter dignity; which Richard, Earl of Desmond, was drowned on his passage from Dublin to England in 1628, and leaving only a dau., Fielding, Lord Callan, succeeded to the earldom. The earl was subsequently one of the most eminent of the parliament's military commanders; but eventually concurring in the restoration of the monarchy, he was created, 2 Feb. 1663-4, LORD ST. LIZ, with remainder to the heirs male of his father, in commemoration of his descent from the noble family of St. Liz, Earls of Northampton and Huntingdon. DENNY.

DENNY, SIR EDWARD, of Tralee Castle, in the county of Kerry; b. 2 October, 1796; s. as 4th baronet, at the decease of his father, in Aug. 1831.

Lineage.

SIR EDMOND DENNY, Knt., one of the barons of the court of Exchequer in England, in the beginning of the sixteenth century, was great-grandson of John Denny, Esq., who fell in the French wars of HENRY V., and was interred at St. Denys. The judge d. in 1520, and there is a monument to his memory in the church of St. Bennett's, Paul's Wharf, London. By his last will he directed his body to be laid in that church, and that twenty trentals of masses should be said for his soul, and for the souls of his wives deceased, and those of William and Agnes, his father and mother. The 4th son of this learned person,

SIR ANTHONY DENNY, Knt., b. in 1500, was groom of the stole in 1518, and sworn of the privy-council to HEN. VIII. This gentleman was the only individual amongst the courtiers who dared to apprise his royal master of his approaching dissolution. HENRY had, however, so high an esteem for Sir Anthony, that he could perform that sad office with impunity, and the monarch presented him with a magnificent pair of gloves, worked in pearls, which still remain in the possession of the family. The grandson of Sir Anthony,

SIR EDWARD DENNY, Knt., was summoned to parliament in 1604, as Baron Denny, and created, in 1626, EARL OF NORWICH. The latter dignity became extinct at his decease, without male issue, in 1630, while the barony devolved upon his only dau. and heir, Honoria, wife of James, Earl of Carlisle, at the decease of whose son, James Hay, Earl of Carlisle, in 1660, without issue, it expired. Lord Norwich (Sir Edward Denny) was buried at Waltham, and the following epitaph placed upon his tomb:

Learn, curious reader, ere you pass,
What Sir Edward Denny was:
A courtier in the chamber, a soldier in the field;
Whose tongue could never flatter,
Whose heart could never yield.

SIR EDWARD DENNY, Knt., (uncle to the deceased Earl of Norwich, and youngest son of the Rt. Hon. Sir Anthony Denny, HENRY VIII.'s privy-councillor,) m. Margaret, dau. of Peter Edgecombe, Esq., M.P. for Cornwall, by Margaret, his wife, dau. of Sir Andrew Luttrell, of Dunster, and had, with other issue,

Mr. Denny, a military officer in the army of the Earl of Essex, not only obtained the castle and possessions of Desmond for this exploit, but was created a Knight-Banneret, and presented with a rich scarf, embroidered with gold and pearls, and a pair of gloves taken off her own hands, by QUEEN ELIZABETH. This scarf, and those gloves, (with others, presented by HENRY VIII. and JAMES I.,) which were for many years out of the possession of the Denny family, were restored to it in the following manner:—In the year 1760, or 1761, the magnificent mansion of the Earl of Arran being to be sold by auction in London, the management of the sale devolved upon Mr. Herbert, (father of the late rector of Ledbury,) his lordship's executor, and the particular friend of Sir Thomas Denny, who discovered, in making preliminary arrangements for the sale, the gloves and scarf, with an old parchment manuscript, in a purple satin bag, by which, upon perusal, he was directed to the family to which they really belonged; and knowing how highly he should gratify his friend by the restoration of such inestimable relics, he purchased them for him—the gloves given to Sir Anthony Denny, by HENRY VIII., for 38*l.* 17*s.*; the gloves given by JAMES I. to Sir Anthony's son, Sir Edward Denny, for 22*l.* 1*s.*; the mittens, presented by ELIZABETH to Sir Edward Denny, Knight-Banneret, for 25*l.* 4*s.*

His lordship inherited, at the decease of his father, 21 Oct. 1834, as 13th Earl of Derby, and had been created by letters patent, dated 22 Oct. 1832, Baron Stanley, of Bickerstaffe, co. Lancaster. He is colonel of the Lancashire militia, vice-admiral of the coast of Lancashire, and president of the Linnean and Zoological Societies.

Lineage.

This is one of those families whose early baronial origin, though from a younger branch, seems, in defiance of change of name and arms, to stand upon a satisfactory foundation. From the time of RICHARD II. it makes a very considerable figure in history; and the prominent part taken by Lord Stanley at Bosworth renders the name familiar to every person at all versant in the annals of England. Camden, Dugdale, and all our antiquaries, agree that the noble house of Derby is a branch of the old Barons Audeley, of Audeley, co. Stafford. The immediate founder of the Stanleys,

DER

WILLIAM DE AUDLEIGH, who lived in the reign of KING JOHN, had from his cousin, Sir Adam de Audleigh, the manor of Stanleigh, where fixing his abode, he assumed the surname of STANLEIGH, or STANLEY. The great-great-grandson of this William,

SIR WILLIAM DE STANLEY, m. Joan, eldest dau. of Sir Philip de Bamville, Lord of Stourton, in Cheshire, by which alliance he became possessed of the manor and bailywick of Wyrall Forest, and thereupon assumed the armorial bearings since used by his descendants, in place of those borne by his ancestors: Three stags' heads on a bend. His grandson, another

SIR WILLIAM STANLEY,* Lord of Stanley, Great Stourton, &c., d. in the 21st RICHARD II., leaving three sons and a dau., of whom,

WILLIAM, (Sir) the eldest son, s. his father, and was also of Hooton, in Cheshire, by right of his wife, Margaret, dau. and heir of William Hooton, of Hooton. From this Sir William descend the STANLEYS, Baronets of Hooton.

The second son,

SIR JOHN STANLEY, K.G., m. Isabel, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Lathom, Knt. of Lathom and Knowesley, co. Lancaster, (descended from Robert Fitz-Henry, whose son, Robert, took the name of Latham from his place of residence,) and thus acquired those estates. In 1385, Sir John Stanley was lord-deputy of Ireland, and had a grant of the manor of Blake Castle, in that kingdom. In 1405, he had a commission, in conjunction with Roger Leke, to seize on the city of York and its liberties, and also upon the ISLE OF MAN, on the forfeiture of Henry Percy, Earl of Northumberland; and in the 7th HENRY IV., being then treasurer of the household to the king, obtained licence to fortify a house at Liverpool (which he had newly built) with embattled walls. In the same year, having taken possession of the Isle of Man, he obtained a grant in fee of the said isle, castle, and pile, anciently called Holm Town, and all the isles adjacent, as also all the regalities, franchises, &c., to be holden of the said king, his heirs, and successors, by homage, and the service of two falcons, payable on the days of their coronation. On the accession of HENRY V. he was made a knight of the Garter, and constituted lord-lieut. of Ireland for six years, in which government he d. 6 Jan. 1414, leaving two sons, the elder of whom,

JOHN STANLEY, Esq., representative for Lancashire in parliament, in the 2nd of HENRY V., m. Isabel, dau. of Sir Robert, and sister of Sir William, Harrington, Knt. of Hornby; and dying in 1431, was s. by his only son,

SIR THOMAS STANLEY, Knt., who was constituted lord-lieutenant of Ireland, and called a parliament there in 1432. He was subsequently elected a knight of the Garter, and summoned to parliament, 20 Jan. 1455-6, as LORD STANLEY. His lordship m. Joan, dau. and co-heir of Sir Robert Goushill, of Hoveringham, in Nottinghamshire, by Elizabeth, his wife, dau., and at length heir, of Richard Fitzalan, Earl of Arundel and Surrey, by whom he had, beside daus.,

THOMAS, his successor.

William, (Sir) of Holt, who was beheaded as a participator in the conspiracy for placing Perkin Warbeck upon the throne. Sir William was the richest subject in the kingdom, having no less than 40,000 marks in ready money, and 3000*l.* a year; to which circumstance, considering the rapacious disposition of HENRY VII., may be attributed his destruction, more than to his political principles.

John, (Sir) who m. Elizabeth, dau. and heir of Sir Thomas Weever, Knt. of Weever, co. Chester, and by her acquired that estate. From this Sir John Stanley

* From a younger brother of this Sir William Stanley descends the present Edward Stanley, Esq. of Ponsonby Hall, M.P. for Cumberland. (See BURKE'S Commoners, vol. i. p. 95.)

descends the present Sir John-Thomas Stanley, Bart. of Alderley Park.

James, archdeacon of Carlisle.

His lordship d. in 1458-9, and was s. by his eldest son,

THOMAS, 2nd Lord Stanley; summoned to parliament from 38th of HENRY VI. to 1st of RICHARD III. This nobleman m. 1st, Eleanor, dau. of Richard Nevil, Earl of Salisbury, and sister of Richard Nevil, (the king-maker;) the stout EARL OF WARWICK, by whom he had issue,

- 1 THOMAS, successor to his grandfather.

- 2 John.

- 3 James,* (Sir) ancestor of the present EARL OF DERBY.

- II. Edward, (Sir) of Hornby Castle, Lancashire. This gallant person commanded the rear of the English army at Flodden Field, 9 Sept. 1513, and forcing the Scots, by the power of his archers, to descend the hill, thus broke their line, and insured the triumph of the English arms; for which good service, HENRY VIII., keeping his Whitsuntide at Eltham the next ensuing year, 1514, commanded that Sir Edward Stanley, for those valiant acts against the Scots, where he won the hill, and vanquished all that opposed him, as also that his ancestors bore the eagle in their crest, should be there proclaimed LORD OF MONTEAGLE, and he had subsequently summons to parliament in that dignity. He was also elected a knight of the Garter. At the decease of his lordship's grandson, WILLIAM STANLEY, 3rd Lord of Monteagle, in 1581, that nobleman's only dau., ELIZABETH, became his heir, and marrying Edward Parker, Lord Morley, conveyed the BARONY OF MONTEAGLE into that family. The dignity is now in ABEYANCE. (See BURKE'S Extinct Peerage.)

Sir Thomas was s. by his elder son,

far his lordship contributed to the victory of Bosworth is recorded in history; and his placing the crown of Richard upon the head of the victorious Richmond in the field is also a matter of historic record. In consideration of those eminent services, the new monarch advanced Lord Stanley, 27 Oct. 1485, to the dignity of EARL OF DERBY, and constituted him one of the commissioners for executing the office of lord-high-steward of England on the day of his coronation. His lordship, in the March following, had a grant of the great office of CONSTABLE OF ENGLAND for life. He had no children by his second marriage; and dying in 1504, was s. by his grandson,

FERDINANDO, 5th earl. This nobleman having been tampered with by one Hesket, said to be an agent of the jesuits, to assume the title of king in right of his grandmother, and rejecting the proposition indignantly, is supposed to have been poisoned in consequence by the conspirators. His lordship m. Alice, dau. of Sir John Spencer, of Althorp, and had three daus., his co-heirs, viz.,

His death occurred in 1595, when the BARONIES OF STANLEY AND STRANGE fell into abeyance amongst his daus., and the earldom devolved upon his brother, DERING.

DERING, SIR EDWARD-CHOLMELEY, of Surrenden-Dering, co. Kent; b. 19 Nov. 1807; s. as 8th bart., on the demise of his grandfather, 30 June, 1811; m. 18 April, 1832, the Hon. Jane Edwardes, dau. of Lord Kensington, and has a son and heir, b. 21 July, 1834.

Lineage.

This is one of the very few houses still existing in England of undoubted Saxon origin; an origin confirmed, not only by tradition, but by authentic family documents. One of its remote ancestors,

DIERING MILES, (from the Saxon word Dering, signifying Terror,) appears as witness to a deed, by which KING ETHELUFF granted certain lands in Cucolnstone to the church of Rochester in 880, and this Diering is said to be descended in a direct line from ETHELWARD, King of Diera.

To pass, however, to more recent progenitors, we find

SIR RICHARD DERING, Knt. of Heyden, lieut. of Dover Castle in the reign of RICHARD II. His grandson,

RICHARD DERING, Esq. of Surrenden, d. in 1481, and was s. by his son,

JOHN DERING, Esq. of Surrenden Dering. The 5th direct descendant from this gentleman,

I. SIR EDWARD DERING, Knt. of Surrenden Dering, was created a Baronet on 1 Feb. 1626. This gentleman, who was lieut. of Dover Castle, was a man of talents and learning; but he adopted, upon one occasion, a very eccentric mode of evincing his erudition, that of presenting a bill from the gallery of the House of Commons, "for the extirpation of bishops, deans, and chapters," and prefacing his motion with two verses of Ovid, the classical application of which was said to have been his sole motive for the proceeding.

"Cuncta prius tentanda; sed irremedicabile vulnus
Ense recidendum est, ne pars sincera trahatur."

He m. 1st, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Nicholas Tufton, afterwards Earl of Thanet, but by her (who d. in 1622) had no surviving issue; 2ndly, Anne, 3rd dau. of Sir John Ashburnham, Knt., and by that lady (who d. in 1628) he had,

EDWARD, his successor.

DE ROS, BARON, (Henry-William Fitzgerald-De Ros,) in the peerage of England; b. 1792; inherited as 19th baron, and 22nd successor to the barony, on the demise of his mother, 9 Jan. 1831.

Lineage.

"That Peter, the ancestor of this great and noble family," says Dugdale, "did originally assume his surname, in the time of HENRY I., from that lordship, in Holderness, called Ros, where he then had his residence, needeth not to be doubted."

This Peter m. Adeline, one of the sisters and co-heirs of the famous Walter Espee, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE ROS, who was s. by his son,

EVERARD DE ROS. This feudal lord m. Roysia, dau. of William Trusbut, of Wartre, in Holderness, and, at the decease of her brothers without issue, co-heir to her father's estate; which estate was eventually inherited by her descendants the Lords Ros, her sisters and co-heirs leaving no posterity. Everard de Ros died about the year 1186, and was s. by his son,

ROBERT DE ROS, surnamed Furfan. This feudal lord, in the time of RICHARD I., was imprisoned in Normandy, and forced to pay a considerable sum for his deliverance. But under KING JOHN he regained the whole barony of his great-grandfather, Walter Espee, and was soon after employed as one of the commissioners to conduct WILLIAM, King of Scotland, into England. Robert de Ros was the founder of Hamlake Castle, in Yorkshire, and of Werke Castle, in Northumberland. During the troubles in KING JOHN's reign, he espoused the baronial interests, and was a leader in the baronial army. He m. Isabel, dau. of WILLIAM the Lion, King of Scotland, and had issue,

William, of Agmanthorpe, from whom descended the Roses of that place.

Having assumed the habit of the order of knights Templars, Robert de Ros d. in 1227, and was buried at London, in the Temple church. His eldest son's eldest son,

ROBERT DE ROS, taking an active part against the king, was one of the chief barons, who, after the battle of Lewes, in 1264, where HENRY III. and his son Prince Edward became prisoners, was summoned to the parliament, which was called by the barons in the king's name, as Baron de Ros, 24 Dec. 1264. His lordship espoused Lady Isabel, the great heiress of William de Albini, Lord of Belvoir, in Leicestershire; and dying in 1285, was s. by his eldest son,

WILLIAM, 2nd Baron de Ros. This nobleman was an unsuccessful competitor for the crown of Scotland in 1292; and in 1296, he obtained from EDWARD I. a grant of Werke Castle, upon its forfeiture by the treason of his kinsman, Robert de Ros. His lordship m. Matilda, dau. and co-heir of John de Vaux, and was s. in 1316, by his elder son,

THOMAS, 10th baron, who was summoned to parliament, from 2 Jan. (27th HENRY VI.) 1449, to 30 July, 1460. "The Lord Ros (says Leland) toke HENRY the 6th's parte agayn KING EDWARDE; whereupon the Lord Rose's landes stode as confiscate, KING EDWARDE prevailing, and Bellevoir Castle was given in keeping to the Lord Hastings; the which cumming thither upon a tyme to peruse the ground, and to lye in the castel, was sodenly repelled by Mr. Harrington, a man of poure thereabout, and friende to the Lord Ros; whereupon the Lord Hastings cam thither another tyme with a strong poure, and upon a raging wylle spoild the castelle, defacing the rofes, and taking the leades of them, wherewith they war all coverid. EDMUND, 11th baron, obtained a reversal of the attainder in 1485: he was not, however, summoned to parliament. Upon the demise of this nobleman, without issue, in 1508, the barony fell into abeyance between his three sisters and co-heirs, which terminated in favour of

DE SAUMAREZ.

DE SAUMAREZ, BARON, (the Rev. James Saumarez,) of Saumarez, in the island of Guernsey; a Bart.; rector of Huggate; b. 9 Oct. 1789; m. 5 Oct. 1814, Mary, dau. of Vice-Admiral Lechmere, of Steeple Acton, in Oxfordshire. His lordship s. as 2nd baron, at the decease of his father, 9 Oct. 1836.

Lineage.

The family of SAUMAREZ, originally de Saumarez, is of Norman extraction, and of great antiquity in the island of Guernsey. By an act of EDWARD II., anno 1313, and one of EDWARD III., in the year 1331, it appears, that Le Seigneur de Saumarez was appointed hereditary captain (or chate-lain) of the castle of Jerbourg, within the limits of that fief.

MATTHEW DE SAUMAREZ, of Guernsey, m. Anne Durell, and had issue, MATTHEW.

Philip, capt. R.N. } These gallant officers sailed with Thomas, capt. R.N. } Lord Anson in his expedition to the South Seas. The elder was made captain of the Gal-leon, captured upon that occasion. He gloriously fell commanding the Nottingham, 74, in the memorable engagement of Lord Hawke, 14 Oct. 1747.*

The younger was commander of the Antelope, of 50 guns, and captured the Bellequeux, of 64 guns, in the British Channel.

The eldest son,

MATTHEW DE SAUMAREZ, m. 1st, Susannah, dau. of Thomas Dumarsq, Esq. of Jersey, and had a dau., Susannah, the wife of Henry Brock, Esq. of Jersey. He wedded 2ndly, Carteret, dau. of James le Marchant, likewise of an eminent Guernsey family, and had issue, Philip, lieut. R.N., deceased.

Thomas, (Sir) a lieut.-gen. in the army; m. Harriet, dau. of William Brock, Esq.

Richard, of Newington, Surrey, a surgeon, F.R.S. and F.S.A., married, and left issue at his decease in 1835.

Nicholas, late collector-general of the revenue in Ceylon.

Anne, m. to Isaac Dobree, Esq.

Charlotte, m. to the Rev. Nicholas Dobree, M.A., rector of St. Mary-de-Castro, in Guernsey.

Mary.

Carteret, m. to Peter Listron, Esq.

The third son,

JAMES DE SAUMAREZ, b. 11 March, 1757, whose high professional reputation was established in the most brilliant epoch of our naval history, and whose name is to be found in the same immortal roll with those of RODNEY, HOWE, HOOD, JERVIS, and NELSON, was created a Bart. in 1801, and elevated to the peerage, by letters patent, dated Sept. 1831.

Within our confined limits it is impossible to render anything like justice to the exploits of this valiant seaman; but to pass them by unheeded would ill accord with those sentiments of admiration in which we have ever held the constitutional bulwark of England's freedom, her glorious and impregnable wooden walls.

In the year 1770, at the early age of 13, we first find young Saumarez on board the Montreal frigate, sailing for the Mediterranean, upon which station he remained until 1775. Upon the breaking out of the American war, he embarked in the Bristol, bearing Commodore Sir Peter Parker's broad pendant, and was serving in that ship during the memorable action against Sullivan's Island, on which occasion he received his first promotion, having been appointed acting lieut. of the Bristol; an appointment confirmed by Lord Howe. From that period to 1779, Lieut. Saumarez was employed in America upon most important and active services connected with the army, having had the command of an armed vessel, which he was under the necessity of destroying, to prevent her capture by the enemy's fleet, commanded by Count d'Estaing, off Rhode island. He was afterwards engaged on shore during the siege of that place, as aide-de-camp to Commodore Brisbane; and, finally, commanded a party of seamen and marines at one of the principal advanced posts.

After Mr. Saumarez's return to England, he was appointed lieut. of the Victory, under Sir Charles Hardy, and he continued in that ship, under different flag officers, until he followed Rear-Admiral Sir Hyde Parker on board the Fortitude, and was the admiral's 2nd lieut. during the action on the Dogger Bank. When the squadron subsequently returned to port, Lieut. Saumarez was advanced to the rank of master and commander, and appointed to the command of the Tisiphone fire-ship, then fitting out at Sheerness. In the Dec. following, he sailed under the orders of Rear-Admiral Kempenfelt, and had the good fortune to be the first who discovered the enemy's fleet, consisting of nineteen sail of the line, escorting a numerous convoy from Brest. Of those several were captured, and the object of the expedition entirely defeated. To convey intelligence of this affair to Vice-Admiral Sir Samuel Hood, in the West Indies, Capt. Saumarez was detached from the fleet, and, upon his arrival, he was appointed by that officer to the Russel, a vessel which he subsequently commanded in the victory achieved by Sir George Rodney over the French fleet, 12 April, 1782, and had a distinguished share in that memorable action.

At the commencement of the war in 1793, Captain Saumarez hoisted his pendant on board the Crescent, and captured, in Oct. following, the French frigate, La Réunion; for which service his majesty was pleased to confer upon him the honour of knighthood, and the city of London presented him with an elegant piece of plate.

In the month of June, in the following year, Sir James Saumarez, having the Druid and Eurydice under his orders, maintained an action with the enemy's squadron, more than triple his force, consisting of two seventy-fours cut down, two large frigates, and a corvette; and succeeded in extricating the Eurydice from their grasp.

Capt. Saumarez soon after obtained the command of the Orion, and was under the orders of Lord Bridport in the action off L'Orient, when three ships of the line were captured. The Orion was one of the first ships which brought the enemy to action.

In a short time afterwards, Sir James was detached from the Channel fleet to join Admiral Sir John Jervis, (subsequently Earl St. Vincent,) and had the honour to bear a distinguished part in the action of 14 Feb. 1797; for which gallant service he received the strongest marks of the admiral's approbation, and was entrusted with the command of the advanced squadron off Cadiz. In this ship he accompanied Lord Nelson off Toulon, and was second in command in the glorious battle of the Nile, wherein he received a severe contusion on the side by a splinter, at almost the close of the conflict.

Having been ordered to Gibraltar with the captured ships, for the purpose of repair, Sir James Saumarez soon after returned to England, and a promotion of admirals taking place, his majesty was pleased to confer upon him one of the colonelcies of marines, and he was at the same time appointed to the command of the Cæsar. During two successive winters, he was entrusted with the command of the squadron employed to watch the enemy's fleet in Brest, which arduous service he performed with so much vigilance that not a single ship escaped from the port. Sir James Saumarez was promoted to the rank of rear-admiral, 1 Jan. 1801; and he continued with the Channel fleet until the following June, when he was created a Bart., and nominated to command a squadron appointed to watch an expedition preparing at Cadiz for the invasion of Portugal. Soon after his arrival there, the rear-admiral having obtained information that three French line-of-battle ships had anchored off Algeziras, he proceeded from his station to attack them. The action commenced on the following morning, (6 July,) and after a long and severe conflict, in which the squadron had to contend against the enemy's formidable batteries, as well as line-of-battle ships, his majesty's ship Hannibal having unfortunately grounded, and the enemy having succeeded in warping his ships on

* The remains of Capt. Philip de Saumarez were interred with naval honours at Plymouth, where a monument was erected to his memory, with the following inscription:

Sacred to the memory of Philip de Saumarez, Esq.; one of the few whose lives ought rather to be measured by their actions than their days. From sixteen to thirty-seven years of age he served in the navy, and was often surrounded with dangers and difficulties unparalleled, always approving himself an able, active, and gallant officer. He went out a lieutenant on board his majesty's ship the Centurion, under the auspicious conduct of Commodore Anson, in his expedition to the South Sea. He was commanding officer of the same ship when she was driven from her moorings at the Isle Tinion, in the year 1746. Being captain of the Nottingham, a 60 gun ship, he then alone attacked and took the Mars, a French ship of 64 guns. In the first engagement of the following year, when Admiral Anson defeated a squadron of French men-of-war and Indiamen, he had an honourable share; and in the second, under Admiral Hawke, when the enemy, after a long and obstinate resistance, were again defeated, in pursuing two ships that were making their escape, he gloriously, but unfortunately, fell. He was the son of Matthew de Saumarez, Esq. of the island of Guernsey, by Anne Durell, of the island of Jersey, his wife. He was born 17 Nov. 1710, killed 4 Oct. 1747, and buried in the old church at Plymouth, with all the honours due to his distinguished merits. This monument is erected out of gratitude and affection by his brothers and sisters.

shore, Sir James was compelled to withdraw from the attack, and to repair to Gibraltar Mole to refit. The enemy, meantime, being joined by a reinforcement of six sail of the line from Cadiz, the utmost exertions were made by the rear-admiral in getting the squadron ready to renew the engagement; and the whole of the enemy's fleet having put to sea on the morning of 12 July, the Cæsar, which had only the day before got a new mainmast, was warped out of Gibraltar Mole, and the squadron, consisting altogether of five sail of the line, proceeded in immediate pursuit. Bearing up through the Straits of Gibraltar, Sir James was fortunate enough to overtake the foe before midnight, to attack him, and to triumph. In this gallant action, which rendered the whole of the enemy's force in Cadiz subsequently useless, two Spanish three-deckers, mounting 120 guns each, took fire and blew up, and a French seventy-four was captured.

For this important service, Sir James Saumarez obtained the order of the Bath, the unanimous thanks of both houses of parliament, with a pension of £1200 per annum, and the freedom of the city of London, accompanied by a splendid sword. On the eve of the late war, he hoisted his flag at the Nore, and a strong force was placed under his orders, to guard against an expected invasion, menaced by the enemy. In this station he was replaced by Lord Keith, and appointed to command upon that of Guernsey and Jersey, then threatened with an immediate attack from the ports of St. Malo and Granville.

In Dec. 1806, Sir James Saumarez was promoted to the rank of vice-admiral, and nominated second in command in the Channel fleet, under the Earl of St. Vincent; his lordship being absent on Admiralty leave, the vice-admiral was employed in watching the enemy's fleet until the following August, when, upon the appointment of Lord Gardner to the command of the Channel fleet, he resumed his former station.

In March, 1808, Sir James was nominated to the command of the fleet destined for the Baltic; where, by his able arrangements, the extensive and highly important trade in that quarter was protected under extraordinary difficulties; and his firm and conciliatory conduct towards the court of Sweden and the Northern States, tended to detach Russia from her alliance with France, and to unite with Great Britain in the common cause of Europe. Previously to his removal from that station, in Nov. 1812, he was presented with a magnificent sword, set in diamonds, by his majesty, the King of Sweden, in testimony of the services he had rendered to that monarch's dominions. Upon the subsequent visit of the Emperor of Russia and the King of Prussia to England, Admiral Saumarez was honoured with their majesties' personal thanks; and he received those of the Emperor of Austria through his excellency, Prince Metternich, for the benefit the common cause of Europe had derived from his services while in the northern seas. Sir James Saumarez was appointed commander-in-chief on the Plymouth station, 24 March, 1824, and continued there until replaced by Admiral, the Earl of Northesk, after the usual period of service.

His lordship assumed, by sign-manual, in 1832, instead of his patronymic, the surname of WARREN only, with the arms of that family.

Lineage.

For a full account of this nobleman's paternal ancestors, the BYRNES of TIMOGUE, refer to BURKE's History of the Commoners.

The LEICESTERS, (or LEYCESTERS, as formerly written,) are of very great antiquity in the co. Chester, and were possessed of land there in the time of KING JOHN. The village of Nether Tabley, manor, and mansion, came to them with Margaret Dutton, dau. of Jeffrey Dutton, of Dutton, co. Chester, A.D. 1272, as appears in the History and Antiquities of Cheshire, by Sir Peter Leicester, Bart. "Jeffrey Dutton, (says Sir Peter,) son of Adam Dutton de Dutton, gave Nether Tabley to his dau., Margaret, and her heirs, about the end of the reign of HENRY III. This Margaret first married Robert de Denbigh, and had no issue; afterwards she married Nicholas de Leicester, by whom she had issue, and to whose succeeding progeny the manor of Nether Tabley still belongeth. He was afterwards Sir Nicholas Leicester, Knt., so styled in 1292, and was seneschal to Henry Lacy, Earl of Lincoln, constable of Cheshire." His son Roger's son and heir,

NICHOLAS LEICESTER, died in 1349, leaving two sons,

JOHN, his heir.

Ralph, who m. Joan, dau. and heir of Robert Toft, of Toft; and dying temp. RICHARD II., left three sons,

ROBERT, of Toft, ancestor of the LEYCESTERS of Toft, in Cheshire. (See BURKE's Commoners, vol. i. p. 73.)
